$1.776 Million Sewage Plan Outlined

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

A $1,776,750 program for upgrading San Rafael's sanitary sewer system has been recommended by Dan Coleman Associates after a lengthy study of the system's inadequacies.

This would include major construction totaling $1,100,000, minor construction totaling $76,750, and inspection, testing and sealing totaling $600,000.

There might be additional cost for side sewers or other construction found necessary by the inspection and testing programs, warned Dominic J. Selmi, former San Rafael city engineer now on Coleman's staff, in the report to the city.

The report, delivered this week, recommends the upgrading be undertaken in stages. First stage construction, estimated at $573,792, is designed to relieve what Selmi called "an almost intolerable condition in the vicinity of Second Street and Lincoln Avenue." He urged this be started as soon as possible, with the remaining stages to follow "as soon as financing is available."

The first stage would include new sewer lines on Second Street and Francisco Boulevard, a $275,000 pumping station at Second and Irwin streets and a $15,000 ejector station on Francisco Boulevard at the creek.

The "almost intolerable condition" results largely from infiltration of storm water into the sanitary sewer system during rainy weather — a condition which has drawn the wrath of the Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board.

Selmi's report notes that "in the past, it was generally conceded that the effective alleviation of this condition would require reconstruction of the entire system." As this was not economically feasible, he notes, "it was deemed more expedient to provide greater capacity downstream" as portions of the system were reconstructed. "It is now apparent that the effect on the terminal point must be considered," he wrote.

During the rainy season, he reported, the peak flow entering the sanitary sewer system — largely from this infiltration — is estimated at 13 to 14 million gallons per day, and this does not include overflow onto city streets, which "cannot be estimated." The treatment plant capacity is five millions gallons per day.

It is to detect and eliminate the infiltration that the $600,000 inspection, testing and sealing program is recommended. This would be done by smoke-testing throughout the system and examination of all lines by close-circuit television.

Both of these methods were

Lindsay Fails To Win GOP Mayor's Bid

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor John V. Lindsay, defeated in his bid for the Republican mayoral nomination, said today he will form a new "urban party" and appeal to independents and liberals in the Democratic and Republican parties in the fall mayoral election.

Lindsay, who said he would remain a Republican, said that State Sen. John J. Marchi, who defeated him, had been "captured by the forces of the ultra right.

"He stands for negativism," Lindsay said, "and appeals to the forces of hatred and divisiveness."

"My theme in the campaign," he said, "will be 'a mayor for all the city.' We will create an independent line for a new urban party."

The mayor said no name had been chosen for the new party. But he is already on the ballot as the candidate of the Liberal Party.

Lindsay, who lost in a mayoral primary that echoed the results of recent elections in Los Angeles and Minneapolis, warned that any Republican leader who supports Marchi in

One-Way San Rafael Street Pattern Urged

Fourth Street should be made a one-way street eastbound and Fifth Avenue a one-way street westbound to improve downtown traffic flow in San Rafael, in the belief of D. Jackson Faustman, Sacramento traffic consultant.

Faustman, in the latest of a series of traffic and parking studies commissioned by the City of San Rafael, this week recommended this change, along with widening Fourth Street to four lanes from G Street west to its intersection with Second Street at the "Miracle Mile."

He proposed also that A Street be made a one-way street northbound and B Street one-way southbound between Second Street and Fifth Avenue, and that C Street be one-way northbound and D Street one-way southbound between First Street and Fifth Avenue.

The north-south streets are carrying traffic without much congestion now, noted Faustman, but the situation will worsen as traffic increases. He estimated the increase, based on recent years, as 4 per cent per year.

The one-way street pattern would facilitate traffic flow to an underground garage under the courthouse square, Faustman observed. He presented a design for a 510-space two-level underground garage in a report to the city last year, and in his new report declared he still considers it feasible.

Faustman would reverse traffic direction on narrow Julia Street to complete the access-egress pattern for the courthouse square garage.

"Traffic from the west would move on Fourth Street to the garage, or on Second Street to A Street, thence north to the entrance," he wrote. "From the east, movement would be on Third Street to A Street, then north to the garage. Traffic from the east on Fifth Avenue will have some circuitry in that it must go to B Street, thence south to Fourth Street, thence east to the garage. Traffic from the north would follow the same path on Fifth Avenue, B Street, and Fourth Street, or via Third Street and A Street. Vehicles from the south would reach the

Robert Wood Win Gives GOP Control

SALINAS (UPI)—Republican Robert G. Wood easily defeated Democrat Fred S. Farr yesterday in a special election that gives the GOP political control of the Assembly with a 41-39 majority.

With 176 of 178 precincts reporting, Wood had 24,722 to 18,624 for Farr. The three minor candidates in the race failed to influence the election's outcome.

Republicans Mitchell Bedford polled 328, Republican Bertram Rudolph, 120, and American Independent Party candidate Alton Ogborn, 178.

At his victory celebration in Monterey, Wood said he was surprised by his wide margin of victory and added the win resulted from his opponent's absence from the district the past three years.

"I didn't think we would come anything close to this," said Wood who describes himself as a moderate Republican. He noted that Farr had been absent three years from the district working in Washington, D.C., and "I don't think he realized times and people have changed."

Wood, 53, said he intended to vote his own mind and not necessarily follow GOP-sponsored legislation.

"I don't intend to be a rubber stamp Republican," he said. "If it's a good bill by a Democrat I'll vote for it."

Wood apparently ran strong in traditionally strong GOP areas and kept GOP voters in

Clifford For Reducing U.S. Vietnam Fighting

Plea For Complete Pullout

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Defense Secretary Clark M. Clifford says the United States should order a reduction of fighting in South Vietnam and remove all its ground combat troops by the end of 1970.

In a remarkably candid statement Clifford blistered the South Vietnamese government, picturing its leaders as having a big stake in continued war. He says:

"As the Saigon authorities saw it, the longer the war went on, with the large-scale American involvement, the more stable was their regime and the fewer concessions they would have to make to other political groupings."

Clifford, once regarded as a "hawk," served as Pentagon chief for the last year of the Lyndon B. Johnson administration. His statement, appearing today in Foreign Affairs, quarterly of the Council on Foreign Relations, is the most outspoken comment on the Saigon regime to come from a recent U.S. government official at this level.

A MAJOR ROLE?

The article is likely to play an important role in the continuing American debate on the war.

He makes these proposals:

1. As a first step, the United States should announce it will withdraw 100,000 troops before the end of this year.

President Richard M. Nixon already has announced an initial withdrawal of 25,000. The Clifford article was written before the presidential announcement but released Wednesday night.

2. "We should also make it clear that this is not an isolated action, but the beginning of a process under which all U.S. ground combat forces will have been withdrawn from Vietnam by the end of 1970."

3. "Concurrently with the decision to begin withdrawal, orders should be issued to our military commanders to discontinue efforts to apply maximum military pressure on the enemy and to seek instead to reduce the level of combat."

LOGISTIC SUPPORT

4. "While our combat troops are being withdrawn, we could continue to provide the armed forces of the Saigon government with logistic support and with our air resources." Clifford contends that a policy of applying maximum military pressure has resulted in continuing high U.S. casualties "without any discernible impact on the peace negotiations in Paris."

He says a decision to shift the combat burden to the South Vietnamese "would confront North Vietnamese leaders with a painful dilemma."

"Word that the Americans were beginning to withdraw might at first lead them to claims of victory," he wrote.

REPORT TO TRANSIT PANEL

Commuter Buses Seen Operational In 90 Days

A bus system to serve within Marin and to and from San Francisco is feasible and can be started in three months to a year, according to a report on the "optimum bus system" presented today to the Marin County Transit District.

A financial study by R. L. Banks and Associates shows that some subsidy will be required, as is the case with most public transit systems, but the subsidy is less than anticipated, said Seymour Kashin, general manager of the transit district.

The financial study shows an annual operating loss of $279,400, $716,692, or $775,815, depending on the type of bus system chosen.

Plan one is a transitional plan wherein existing Greyhound buses would be leased to the district until a new fleet of district-owned buses can be delivered. This plan would require 160 buses and could be in operation within three months from the time a decision is made to enter the bus business.

Plans two and three would require 132 and 166 buses respectively, and either one could be in operaton in one year from the time a decision is made, Kashin reported.

Under plan one, the initial outlay would be lowest, but the buses would be old Greyhound ones, Kashin pointed out.

Under plan two a capital outlay including bus purchase would be $6,613,000, and under plan three, total outlay would be $8,097,000.

Banks' financial survey shows that under plan two, total revenue would be $3,290,500, and total operating expense $4,007,192, leaving an annual deficit of $716,692.

Under plan three, total revenue would be $3,924,047, and total operating expense $4,699,912, for an annual deficit of $775,815. Together with interest to be paid on the original debt for capital outlay, the annual net loss would come to slightly over a million dollars, according to Banks and associates.

Plans one, two and three represent different levels of service, starting from low to high.

Proposed bus routes in Marin County show feeder runs into Ignacio, Terra Linda, Fairfax and San Anselmo, Santa Venetia, San Quentin, Ross, Kentfield, Larkspur and Corte Madera, Mill Valley, Tiburon, Tam Valley and Sausalito.

Future extensions of routes are proposed from Fairfax to Inverness, and from Mill Valley to Bolinas.

Sonoma State Students To Take Election Challenge To Trustees

By BONNIE BARD

Recent Sonoma State College student elections — center of a widening controversy that now includes the concern of Gov. Ronald Reagan — will be challenged before the California State Colleges board of trustees.

Action will come in the form of an appeal to the trustees, meeting July 2 in Los Angeles, by students who oppose Sonoma State President Ambrose R. Nichols's validation of the fourth in a series of aborted elections.

The students claim they won support on the state level last week. They have been assured of a review of the president's decision by the educational policy committee of the trustees.

In the election process, in which three elections were voided and charges of conspiracy hurled, the students claim the outgoing student government invalidated only the elections in which candidates it supported lost.

In the first two elections, voters were required to present identification to indicate student status. Later, the Student Board of Directors nullified the elections, saying that not all students possessed correct identification and had to pay a fee to secure a duplicate for voting.

No voting identification was required in the final election and resulted in charges that high school students had voted and that ballot boxes had been stuffed.

In the last election the previous winner as student body president, Jon Owen of Novato, was defeated by James G. Gillette, 35, of Cotati. All other former winners also lost.

In a five-hour session with students, Nichols said he found no improprieties in the final election and validated it.

James G. Dierke of Sebastopol, former elections commissioner, said the students representing the slate of defeated candidates will appeal the decision.

Dierke and Timothy McGeachy of San Francisco presented their case in Sacramento last week and will continue the appeal the trustees meeting in Los Angeles.

John T. Kehoe, educational consultant to Reagan, confirmed that he met with the two students and heard from many others concerning the matter.

"The governor, as a member of the trustees, is deeply interested in the problem at Sonoma State." Kehoe said.

Kehoe said it appeared to him there had been some manipulation of the due process system.

"At Sonoma State we have the classic case of problems that could lead to a violent confrontation," he said.

Ross Financial Consultant, Mill Valleyans In Hijacking

Three Marin County residents, including a financial consultant from Ross, were aboard the Trans World Airlines jet hijacked to Cuba yesterday by an armed gunman reportedly carrying Black Panther literature. (See hijack story, page 5.)

The consultant, Richard Scott Smith, 34, was enroute to New York on business. The other Marinites were identified as Stephan M. Peterson and Ardis L. Peterson of Mill Valley.

Smith telephoned his wife from Miami, where the hijacked plane landed after being permitted to leave Havana Airport.

"He said he saw the gun," Mrs. Smith said. "He said there was no panic. The pilot warned them right after it happened. He said that they were on their way to Cuba and there was no reason to be alarmed."

Mrs. Smith said her husband was "surprised at the buildup of military equipment at the airport." He reported seeing MIGs and bombers.

"He said he felt rather relieved when they landed but the sight of a very stern group of soldiers had a rather sobering effect."

Mrs. Smith said her husband reported seeing a squad of the soldiers board the plane and remove the hijacker. "He said that was the last they saw of him," Mrs. Smith related.

She said her husband and the other passengers were held at the airport from two to three hours during which time all were asked their name, address, profession and destination.

"My husband had his passport and he used it for identification," Mrs. Smith said. "They stamped it."

Lana's New Husband Arrested

Dante

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Hypnotist Ronald Dante, latest husband of actress Lana Turner, was arrested last night on a bench warrant charging grand theft in Santa Ana.

Earlier yesterday, Dante, Miss Turner's seventh husband, was shot at five times as he parked his car in the basement of an apartment house here.

Santa Ana police said the warrant was in connection with the illegal removal of five motorboats from a sales yard. The warrant was dated June 3, 1968.

The warrant charged he failed to appear to face the charge as ordered July 11, 1968. Bail on the warrant is set at $12,500.

Dante, 49, told deputies he threw himself to the floor of the car when the shooting incident occurred. He suffered a minor cut from flying glass.

Philospher Hit

ROME (AP) — Herbert Marcuse, the German-born philosopher of revolution from California, was shouted down by Italian students yesterday and ended up in an impromptu debate with the German student revolutionary Daniel (Danny the Red) Cohn-Bendit.

Marcuse, 71, a professor from the University of San Diego, appeared before 2,500 students in the Eliseo Theater as a lecturer in a series which brings prominent writers to Rome.

Students of all political persuasions showed up, Marcuse was drowned out by shouts of "Servo!" and "Buffoon!" as he spoke of "permanent revolution" as the only adequate way to change society.

At one point Danny the Red, in Rome on a film-making project, rose up from the audience and held an unscheduled debate with Marcuse on the merits of the student revolution.

Two Earthquakes

VIENNA (AP) — The Central Institute for Meteorology and Geodynamics registered two large earthquakes today—a quake in eastern Turkey with an intensity of 5.3 on the Richter scale and a 6.8-intensity quake believed to be located in the Kermadec Islands northwest of New Zealand.

New Subway

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The Mexico City subway, the first in Mexico and the second in Latin America, will make its first official test run Thursday and will be inaugurated some time next month.

The subway will have three routes and will be capable of carrying 1.8 million riders a day. The route to be tested Thursday runs seven and three-quarters miles from the airport to Chapultepec Park at the edge of the city's downtown section.

The 26-mile-long system cost $320 million. It was built by French-trained technicians and with French financial aid.

Latin America's other subway is a 16-mile system in Buenos Aires.

Koreans Returned

SEOUL (AP) — Two South Koreans who escaped from the Viet Cong only to be captured and sentenced to six years in prison as spies by Cambodia have been returned to Korea, the Seoul government announced today.

The two men, 2nd Lt. Park Chung-hwan, 27, and Chae Kyu-chang, 39, a civilian, were turned over to the Australian Embassy in Phnom Penh Monday and taken to the South Korean Embassy in Bangkok yesterday, a government announcement said. They returned to South Korea today. The government said Cambodian chief of state, Prince Norodom Sihanouk, released the men at South Korea's request.

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Gov. Ronald Reagan yesterday appointed San Francisco Police Chief Thomas J. Cahill to the state Disaster Council to succeed William L. Faulstich, Sacramento, who resigned.

Apollo 11 Will Aim For July 16 Launch

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The Apollo 11 man-on-the-moon mission has received a new go-ahead to aim for a July 16 launching.

The Apollo program director, Air Force Lt. Gen. Samuel Phillips, gave the proceed order last night after a nine-hour flight readiness review in which he received reports on all aspects of the mission.

First Troop Withdrawal Unit Selected

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command announced today the first American unit to leave South Vietnam under the plan to withdraw 25,000 troops will be the Third Battalion, 60th Infantry, part of the Second Brigade, Ninth Infantry Division.

Headquarters spokesmen said the battalion will be moved out by air on or about July 8 and will return to the United States for inactivation.

"The remainder of the Second Brigade, which includes the brigade headquarters company, the Third Battalion, 47th Infantry, and the Fourth Battalion, 47th Infantry, will move to the continental United States at a later date.

OTHER UNITS

These units also will be inactivated," the announcement said.

It had been announced earlier that one battalion would be airlifted from the Ninth Division, but the specific unit was not disclosed until today. The First and Second brigades of the Ninth Division will leave Vietnam, while the Third will remain.

The Ninth Division is the only major U.S. ground force in the Mekong Delta.

The U.S. Command also identified four nondivisional Army units, totaling about 2,000 men, that will be redeployed by the end of August.

They are the 86th Engineer Battalion Construction; Sixth Battalion, 56th Artillery (air defense-Hawk missiles); 70th Engineer Company, and the 1097th Transportation Company (medium boat).

The command said their destination in the United States will be announced later.

BOMBING RUNS

On the war front U. S. B52 bombers marked their fourth anniversary in Vietnam today as North Vietnamese troops stepped up attacks on American installations in the areas near Laos and Cambodia.

Spokesmen said the enemy killed 13 Americans and wounded 28 in two fierce assaults early today while 72 North Vietnamese died. U.S. military analysts said captured enemy documents indicated the Communist Command has ordered increased sapper attacks on American bases.

About 200 North Vietnamese infantrymen and sappers assaulted a base of the First Brigade, Fifth Mechanized Infantry Division, three miles south of the abandoned Khe Sanh combat base, with machine guns, rifles and rocket-propelled grenades. The base is four miles from the Laotian border.

The B52 bombers marked their anniversary with 10 missions against North Vietnamese bases and troop concentrations near the Laotian and Cambodian borders. The strikes ranged from 51 miles northwest of Saigon to 281 miles northeast of the capital.

Cong Mission Hit

JAKARTA (AP) — The Indonesian Christian Workers Union has called on the government to shut down the Jakarta mission of the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front and expel its personnel because North Vietnam "does not want peace."

First Lady Hopeful Projects Will Work

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pat Nixon, winding up her tour of 10 West Coast volunteer projects today, says she hopes she is "doing a lot of good by spreading the word of what's being done."

She made the comment after exuberant slum children gave her a display of their talents and projects on her visit last night to the Wesley Social Service Center.

The center's founder, Rev. William Rollins, gave the First Lady an honorary three-year volunteer pin with its symbol of black and white shaking hands and the agency motto, "With Love and Concern in the Inner City."

Volunteers got up one after another to tell Mrs. Nixon of their work.

One was Donald Lewis, a gas company accountant who comes from his white community 15 miles away to help in neighborhood projects because, he said, "I finally realized it was hypocrisy not to become involved."

Michael Stanford, 12, performed with his volunteer teacher duet guitar renditions of "Tequilla" and "Scarborough Fair."

Sid Luft Loses Check Case

FREEHOLD, N.J. (AP) — Michael Sidney Luft, Judy Garland's former husband, has been convicted by a jury of passing a $2,639 bad check.

The jury acquitted Luft yesterday of a second charge of passing a $1,000 bad check.

Luft, who is still Miss Garland's business manager, wrote the checks to a hotel in Asbury Park last June to cover her bill while she was performing at a nearby theater. He said, "I thought I had the money in the bank, but apparently I was overdrawn."

Luft, who said he would appeal, faces a maximum penalty of three years in prison and a $1,000 fine.

Dock Tieup Is Settled

NEW YORK (AP) — Striking deck officers have reached a tentative settlement with a major portion of the nation's merchant marine, ending a two-day tieup at East and Gulf Coast ports.

Agreements reached last night between two ship owner groups and the International Organization of Masters, Mates and Pilots, AFL-CIO, affect more than 400 freighters and passenger liners.

Bargaining was set to resume today on contracts for 150 tankers.

The Maritime Service Committee, representing 220 dry cargo ships, was first to settle with the union. Later, the American Maritime Association reached an "interim agreement" covering 189 dry cargo ships.

Both the AMA, which also represents 42 tankers, and the Tanker Service Committee planned to meet with the master's union today. It was expected they would reach agreement on the basis of the terms agreed to last night.

House Panel Approves Extension Of Surtax

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Richard M. Nixon has scored a substantial gain in his drive for a full year's extension of the income surtax but opponents are continuing their effort to cut it back, if not in the House, then in the Senate.

The House Ways and Means Committee yesterday gave its approval to the Nixon anti-inflation package, practically intact.

It includes continuation of the surtax at its present 10 per cent rate through Dec. 30, with the rate halved for the last six months of fiscal 1970, tax relief for low income taxpayers, repeal of the investment credit and postponement of scheduled reductions in automobile and telephone excise taxes.

The House will vote next week. Rep. Hale Boggs, D-La., acting chairman of the committee, pledged support and cited endorsement of leaders of both parties in the House. But he predicted a tough fight and would not claim victory in advance.

Secretary of the Treasury David M. Kennedy., however, said he expects Congress to pass the bill.

The committee was unofficially reported to have voted 15-10 against an amendment to cut back the surtax extension to Oct. 31.

Five Democrats out of the 15 on the committee joined all 10 Republicans in defeating the shorter period, sources said.

Rep. Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio, a committee member who is pushing for a shorter extension promised to continue the fight in the rules committee and the House. He and his associates fear leverage for early tax reform will be lost if the surtax is extended for a long period.

The provision benefiting low-incomes persons — a "sweetener" that did not satisfy many liberal Democrats — was calculated to relieve about two million poverty-level families.

MAYOR

the general election campaign "had better look very carefully."

Lindsay's two running mates in the primary, Fioravante Perrotta and Sanford Garelik, won their primary races but joined Lindsay in the news conference to say they will supported Lindsay rather than their formal ticket leader, Marchi.

The same conservative trend that hit Lindsay also wrecked former Democratic Mayor Robert F. Wagner's comeback bid.

The final unofficial count for Lindsay was 106,358 against the 111,725 for Marchi, a little-known state senator from Staten Island.

Wagner lost to Italian-born City Comptroller Mario A. Procaccina, who rejected the label of "law-and-order candidate" but was the most conservative in a five-man Democratic field. He won with only about a third of the vote.

Bronx Borough President Herman Badillo, who was born in Puerto Rico, ran a close third. Author Norman Mailer and Rep. James H. Scheuer trailed.

The vote was Procaccino 252,283, Wagner 221,605, Badillo 215,381, Mailer 41,136, Scheuer 38,631.

The commissioner of the board of elections, Maurice J. O'Rourke, ordered a police guard placed on all voting machines this morning because of the closeness of the vote.

O'Rourke said the action was requested by Wagner and some candidates for lesser office. Badillo charged there were a large number of voting machine breakdowns in the South Bronx, where he felt he was strong. He said this indicated a "fix" to deprive him of votes.

Official recanvassing of the vote may begin Monday and take four days.

The GOP defeat was a severe blow to the party prestige of Lindsay, who last year was considered a possible contender for the national ticket.

However, it did not knock the 47-year-old mayor out of contention for reelection to a second term in November. In a city that is 7-2 Democratic in voter registration, he will be the most liberal candidate in the three-man field.

Marchi, also 47, is the son of an Italian sculptor who came to New York to build movie sets and became a wax fruit manufacturer.

TRAFFIC

entrance via A Street, etc."

Garage entrances and exits would be from Fourth, A and Court streets. Court Street would be closed between the garage entrance and Fourth Street, becoming a dead-end.

Faustman figured that this street pattern would handle the maximum number of vehicles leaving the garage and on-street parking at peak hours with only 62 per cent of street capacity used.

As additional improvements in handling downtown traffic flow, the Sacramento consultant recommended investigation of installing stop signs on Tamalpais Avenue at Mission Avenue northbound, Stevens Place at Mission Avenue southbound, Second Street at Brooks Street southbound, Lincoln Avenue at Francisco Boulevard westbound, Fourth Street at Tamalpais Avenue northbound, and Third Street at Brooks Street northbound.

He found some deficiencies in railroad crossing protection — a matter not touched in previous studies when the Northwestern Pacific Railroad was not operating through San Rafael. He called the crossing protection at Third Street and Avenue "grossly deficient."

Increased curb radii are needed at various locations also, he noted.

The report is to be discussed by the city council at its July 7 meeting.

Nicasio Board Reviews Budget

Nicasio School District trustees reviewed the preliminary $49,500 budget last night, and set it for final adoption at their next meeting at 8 p.m. on July 15 in Nicasio School.

No changes were made in the budget, up from the current fiscal year's budget of $48,835, reported Beverly Alberigi, secretary-bookkeeper.

A decision on the "kindergarten situation" was postponed to the July meeting. If a teacher's aide cannot be found, then kindergarten pupils will have the option of attending Lagunitas School, she reported.

SYSTEM

used in investigations preparatory to the report. In the smoke-test method, smoke is blown into a dry line to see where it comes out. It came out, in various locations, from catch basins, roof drains, water meter boxes, gutter cracks, pavement cracks, and even a planter — all indicating breaks through which storm water could enter the sanitary sewer lines.

Closed-circuit television inspection is done by running a camera through a sewer line, taking pictures which are projected onto a television screen. This shows up the breaks from the inside.

These two detection methods would make possible sealing of the many leaks in old lines. In addition, Selmi wrote, "complete control of new construction by competent inspection, comprehensive construction standards, and air-testing before final acceptance" should be instituted.

"It could very well be that the existing treatment plant will be quite adequate" when this is done, he concluded.

The same is not true of all the existing lines, however. Besides the improvements in the Francisco-Second Street area, the report recommends the following new lines.

Stage 2: D and Bayview streets to Second Street and Francisco Boulevard, $138,980.

Stage 3: Irwin Street between Second and Third streets, $9,765; Third Street from Irwin to Mary streets, $20,962; Mary Street from Third Street to Mission Avenue, $11,600; Mission Avenue from Mary Street to San Rafael High School, $16,400; Park Street from Mission to Belle avenues, $5,225. Total, including engineering and contingencies, $76,743.

Stage 4: Fourth Street from Greenfield Avenue to Santa Margarita Drive, plus engineering, $23,795.

Stage 5: Grand Avenue from Third Street to Belle Avenue, plus engineering, $95,382.

Stage 6: Highway 101 frontage road and Stevens Place, $31,050; Paloma Avenue, $5,400; Lincoln Avenue from Paloma Avenue to Linden Lane, $17,122; total, with engineering, $64,286.

Stage 7: Mountain View Avenue from Grand Avenue to Sienna Way, with engineering etc., $34,215.

Stage 8: Fourth Street, F Street and Fifth Avenue, $16,848, including engineering, etc.

Stage 9: Sea Way, with engineering, etc., $18,678.

Stage 10: Fifth Avenue from K Street to Sirard Lane, with engineering, etc., $42,174.

Selmi commented that in the inspections it was found that the sewer lines generally were in better condition than supposed. Much of the system requires no replacement, he concluded.

The study was based on ultimate population in the area of 67,299.

SONOMA

Ross said he had also been told by students and members of the adult community about improprieties in the election process and thought the matter would be of concern to the trustees' committee and to the entire board of trustees.

Hart said he had been approached to meet with both interested adults and students next week so that he might become fully aware of the Sonoma State situation before the trustees meeting.

Gene Benedetti of Petaluma, president of Friends of Sonoma State, said his group is also looking into the dispute.

"Our organization is very much concerned about the election maneuvering," Benedetti said. "In fact, I'm just sick about it."

Owen, the defeated presidential candidate, said he was also pursuing the matter, but would not attend the trustees meeting because the case might appear as a personal vendetta.

Not singling out the previous election, Owen said he would request an investigation of the operations of student government officers for the entire year. He said he was concerned with "certain inconsistencies" in the government operation and was not attacking Gillette.

"If it's given a thorough review, it's likely the students may lose control over some portions of student government," Owen said.

The students maintain they wish to appeal to the trustees as individuals so as not to damage the image of the college and give the trustees the impression that Sonoma State is in the midst of decay.

"It's unfortunate the matter has to go to the trustees," Dierke said. "But something must be done."

Acknowledging that such an appeal will put great pressure on Nichols, he said, "We must save the college even if it's at the expense of Dr. Nichols. He should have sensed which way the wind was blowing."

Nichols's office said he is on vacation this week. He could not be reached for comment.

IDABELLE LEWIS MAIN
Missionary to China

OBITUARIES

Idabelle Lewis Main Rites Set

Memorial service will be held for Dr. Idabelle Lewis Main, former Mill Valley resident and a missionary for 39 years in China, at 3 p.m. Saturday at the Methodist Church of Mill Valley.

Mrs. Main, 82, died Saturday at a retirement home for missionaries and deaconesses in Pasadena after a brief illness.

Born in a Methodist parsonage in Blairstown, Iowa, Mrs. Main had wanted to become a missionary since she was 7. She was graduated from Morningside College in Sioux City, Iowa, in 1909 and taught school for one year.

Her late father was elected a church bishop in 1908 and had also served in China.

Dr. Main went to Tientsin, China, in 1910 as a missionary teacher, returning in 1915 to study for her doctorate in education at Columbia University.

She returned to China as assistant secretary of education for the Methodist Church and, from 1926 to 1928, was president of Hua Nan College for Women in Foochow. She went to Shanghia in 1930 and became editor of the China Educational Review.

In 1932 she married Rev. William Artyn Main, who was in charge of Methodist funds in China, and both continued missionary work until 1941 when World War II forced them to leave.

The Mains moved to Mill Valley and remained there until Rev. Main's death in 1945. In all, Mrs. Main lived 12 years in Mill Valley, residing at 157 Lovell Avenue.

She returned to China in 1946 to teach at Hua Nan College but was forced to leave again in 1949 because of war. In 1950 she took a teaching job at Bennett College in Rio de Janeiro, where she taught until 1955.

She had lived in Pasadena since 1961.

Mrs. Main is survived by her sister, Mrs. J. H. Berkstresser of Chula Vista, and three stepsons, Orrin W. Main of Jekyll Island, Ga., Comdr. Artyn L. Main of Tiburon and George Main of Providence, R.I.

Private inurnment will be held Monday at Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael.

The family requests that tributes be in contributions to either the Methodist Church of Mill Valley or the Tamalpais Valley Methodist Church.

WOOD

his column to deny Farr the crossover ballots he had hoped to collect.

The Democrat voter turnout also was low compared to the Republicans who went to the polls in this Monterey County district in which Democrats hold the registration edge 51 per cent to 44 per cent.

Farr, a former state senator, had sought to win the seat for the Democrats and knot up the lower house in a 40-40 deadlock.

But Republicans won their third straight special legislative election this year and sixth since 1965 to give the GOP its first clear majority in both the Assembly and Senate in more than a decade.

The Assembly vacancy was created when Alan Pattee, R-Salinas, was killed in an automobile accident last April. He had held the seat since 1954.

Gov. Ronald Reagan telephoned Wood to congratulate him and said the election "again shows that the Republican Party is on the move."

The victory regained the Assembly majority Republicans had won in last November's general election.

Last month, voters elected Clare Berryhill, R-Ceres, to fill the seat left vacant when Assemblyman Republican John G. Veneman resigned to join the Nixon administration.

In March, the GOP captured a Senate seat by electing Sen. John A. Nejedly, R-Walnut Creek, in a district that had gone to the Democrats for more than 20 years.

CONTESSA FIORENTINO-VALLE
Lover of arts and letters

CONTESSA MAUDE FIORENTINO-VALLE

Contessa Maude Fiorentino-Valle, musician, painter, poetess, countess and centenarian, is dead.

The countess, who up to the time of her death at age 100 led a zesty life "doing my thing" in the arts, died at the Mill Valley home of a niece Saturday after a short illness.

"I enjoy everything so much, I can't say what I like to do most now," Mrs. Valle said shortly after her 100th birthday last November. At that time, she advised, "do your bit and your best" and "throw your troubles over your left shoulder."

Until shortly before her death, Mrs. Valle still played the piano daily and the guitar occasionally.

An accomplished artist, she once was a weekly contributor to the old Colliers Magazine. She studied at the Art Institute of Chicago and the Art Students League in New York City and for many years was head instructor at the School of Fine and Applied Arts (now Chappell Art School).

Mrs. Valle was art critic for the Rocky Mountain News in Denver for several years and was a frequent contributor to several Sunday newspaper supplements.

Born in a small town near St. Paul, Minn., on Nov. 25, 1868, she was reared at her family's plantation home near Richmond, Va. Educated by private tutors in Europe, she met her husband, Italian cavalry officer Count Ricardo Fiorentino-Valle while she was painting in a studio in a convent on the Tiber River in Rome.

They lived for many years in Rome and Manhattan before they were separated and Mrs. Valle moved to Denver. She lived with her niece, Mrs. Nathalia Walker Richmond, at 390 Eldridge Avenue, Mill Valley, the past five years.

Mrs. Valle was a member of the New York Women's Press Club and the Pen and Brush Club of New York City. She was a life member of the Denver Press Club and past president of the Poetry Society of Colorado.

Private memorial services are pending in Denver.

MAYOR

the general election campaign "had better look very carefully."

Lindsay's two running mates in the primary, Fioravante Perrotta and Sanford Garelik, won their primary races but joined Lindsay in the news conference to say they will supported Lindsay rather than their formal ticket leader, Marchi.

The same conservative trend that hit Lindsay also wrecked former Democratic Mayor Robert F. Wagner's comeback bid.

The final unofficial count for Lindsay was 106,358 against the 111,725 for Marchi, a little-known state senator from Staten Island.

Wagner lost to Italian-born City Comptroller Mario A. Procaccina, who rejected the label of "law-and-order candidate" but was the most conservative in a five-man Democratic field. He won with only about a third of the vote.

Bronx Borough President Herman Badillo, who was born in Puerto Rico, ran a close third. Author Norman Mailer and Rep. James H. Scheuer trailed.

The vote was Procaccino 252,283, Wagner 221,605, Badillo 215,381, Mailer 41,136, Scheuer 38,631.

The commissioner of the board of elections, Maurice J. O'Rourke, ordered a police guard placed on all voting machines this morning because of the closeness of the vote.

O'Rourke said the action was requested by Wagner and some candidates for lesser office. Badillo charged there were a large number of voting machine breakdowns in the South Bronx, where he felt he was strong. He said this indicated a "fix" to deprive him of votes.

Official recanvassing of the vote may begin Monday and take four days.

The GOP defeat was a severe blow to the party prestige of Lindsay, who last year was considered a possible contender for the national ticket.

However, it did not knock the 47-year-old mayor out of contention for reelection to a second term in November. In a city that is 7-2 Democratic in voter registration, he will be the most liberal candidate in the three-man field.

Marchi, also 47, is the son of an Italian sculptor who came to New York to build movie sets and became a wax fruit manufacturer.

entrance via A Street, etc."

Garage entrances and exits would be from Fourth, A and Court streets. Court Street would be closed between the garage entrance and Fourth Street, becoming a dead-end.

Faustman figured that this street pattern would handle the maximum number of vehicles leaving the garage and on-street parking at peak hours with only 62 per cent of street capacity used.

As additional improvements in handling downtown traffic flow, the Sacramento consultant recommended investigation of installing stop signs on Tamalpais Avenue at Mission Avenue northbound, Stevens Place at Mission Avenue southbound, Second Street at Brooks Street southbound, Lincoln Avenue at Francisco Boulevard westbound, Fourth Street at Tamalpais Avenue northbound, and Third Street at Brooks Street northbound.

He found some deficiencies in railroad crossing protection — a matter not touched in previous studies when the Northwestern Pacific Railroad was not operating through San Rafael. He called the crossing protection at Third Street and Avenue "grossly deficient."

Increased curb radii are needed at various locations also, he noted.

The report is to be discussed by the city council at its July 7 meeting.

Nicasio Board Reviews Budget

Nicasio School District trustees reviewed the preliminary $49,500 budget last night, and set it for final adoption at their next meeting at 8 p.m. on July 15 in Nicasio School.

No changes were made in the budget, up from the current fiscal year's budget of $48,835, reported Beverly Alberigi, secretary-bookkeeper.

A decision on the "kindergarten situation" was postponed to the July meeting. If a teacher's aide cannot be found, then kindergarten pupils will have the option of attending Lagunitas School, she reported.

SYSTEM

used in investigations preparatory to the report. In the smoke-test method, smoke is blown into a dry line to see where it comes out. It came out, in various locations, from catch basins, roof drains, water meter boxes, gutter cracks, pavement cracks, and even a planter — all indicating breaks through which storm water could enter the sanitary sewer lines.

Closed-circuit television inspection is done by running a camera through a sewer line, taking pictures which are projected onto a television screen. This shows up the breaks from the inside.

These two detection methods would make possible sealing of the many leaks in old lines. In addition, Selmi wrote, "complete control of new construction by competent inspection, comprehensive construction standards, and air-testing before final acceptance" should be instituted.

"It could very well be that the existing treatment plant will be quite adequate" when this is done, he concluded.

The same is not true of all the existing lines, however. Besides the improvements in the Francisco-Second Street area, the report recommends the following new lines.

Stage 2: D and Bayview streets to Second Street and Francisco Boulevard, $138,980.

Stage 3: Irwin Street between Second and Third streets, $9,765; Third Street from Irwin to Mary streets, $20,962; Mary Street from Third Street to Mission Avenue, $11,600; Mission Avenue from Mary Street to San Rafael High School, $16,400; Park Street from Mission to Belle avenues, $5,225. Total, including engineering and contingencies, $76,743.

Stage 4: Fourth Street from Greenfield Avenue to Santa Margarita Drive, plus engineering, $23,795.

Stage 5: Grand Avenue from Third Street to Belle Avenue, plus engineering, $95,382.

Stage 6: Highway 101 frontage road and Stevens Place, $31,050; Paloma Avenue, $5,400; Lincoln Avenue from Paloma Avenue to Linden Lane, $17,122; total, with engineering, $64,286.

Stage 7: Mountain View Avenue from Grand Avenue to Sienna Way, with engineering etc., $34,215.

Stage 8: Fourth Street, F Street and Fifth Avenue, $16,848, including engineering, etc.

Stage 9: Sea Way, with engineering, etc., $18,678.

Stage 10: Fifth Avenue from K Street to Sirard Lane, with engineering, etc., $42,174.

Selmi commented that in the inspections it was found that the sewer lines generally were in better condition than supposed. Much of the system requires no replacement, he concluded.

The study was based on ultimate population in the area of 67,299.

SONOMA

Ross said he had also been told by students and members of the adult community about improprieties in the election process and thought the matter would be of concern to the trustees' committee and to the entire board of trustees.

Hart said he had been approached to meet with both interested adults and students next week so that he might become fully aware of the Sonoma State situation before the trustees meeting.

Gene Benedetti of Petaluma, president of Friends of Sonoma State, said his group is also looking into the dispute.

"Our organization is very much concerned about the election maneuvering," Benedetti said. "In fact, I'm just sick about it."

Owen, the defeated presidential candidate, said he was also pursuing the matter, but would not attend the trustees meeting because the case might appear as a personal vendetta.

Not singling out the previous election, Owen said he would request an investigation of the operations of student government officers for the entire year. He said he was concerned with "certain inconsistencies" in the government operation and was not attacking Gillette.

"If it's given a thorough review, it's likely the students may lose control over some portions of student government," Owen said.

The students maintain they wish to appeal to the trustees as individuals so as not to damage the image of the college and give the trustees the impression that Sonoma State is in the midst of decay.

"It's unfortunate the matter has to go to the trustees," Dierke said. "But something must be done."

Acknowledging that such an appeal will put great pressure on Nichols, he said, "We must save the college even if it's at the expense of Dr. Nichols. He should have sensed which way the wind was blowing."

Nichols's office said he is on vacation this week. He could not be reached for comment.

IDABELLE LEWIS MAIN
Missionary to China

OBITUARIES

Idabelle Lewis Main Rites Set

Memorial service will be held for Dr. Idabelle Lewis Main, former Mill Valley resident and a missionary for 39 years in China, at 3 p.m. Saturday at the Methodist Church of Mill Valley.

Mrs. Main, 82, died Saturday at a retirement home for missionaries and deaconesses in Pasadena after a brief illness.

Born in a Methodist parsonage in Blairstown, Iowa, Mrs. Main had wanted to become a missionary since she was 7. She was graduated from Morningside College in Sioux City, Iowa, in 1909 and taught school for one year.

Her late father was elected a church bishop in 1908 and had also served in China.

Dr. Main went to Tientsin, China, in 1910 as a missionary teacher, returning in 1915 to study for her doctorate in education at Columbia University.

She returned to China as assistant secretary of education for the Methodist Church and, from 1926 to 1928, was president of Hua Nan College for Women in Foochow. She went to Shanghia in 1930 and became editor of the China Educational Review.

In 1932 she married Rev. William Artyn Main, who was in charge of Methodist funds in China, and both continued missionary work until 1941 when World War II forced them to leave.

The Mains moved to Mill Valley and remained there until Rev. Main's death in 1945. In all, Mrs. Main lived 12 years in Mill Valley, residing at 157 Lovell Avenue.

She returned to China in 1946 to teach at Hua Nan College but was forced to leave again in 1949 because of war. In 1950 she took a teaching job at Bennett College in Rio de Janeiro, where she taught until 1955.

She had lived in Pasadena since 1961.

Mrs. Main is survived by her sister, Mrs. J. H. Berkstresser of Chula Vista, and three stepsons, Orrin W. Main of Jekyll Island, Ga., Comdr. Artyn L. Main of Tiburon and George Main of Providence, R.I.

Private inurnment will be held Monday at Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael.

The family requests that tributes be in contributions to either the Methodist Church of Mill Valley or the Tamalpais Valley Methodist Church.

WOOD

his column to deny Farr the crossover ballots he had hoped to collect.

The Democrat voter turnout also was low compared to the Republicans who went to the polls in this Monterey County district in which Democrats hold the registration edge 51 per cent to 44 per cent.

Farr, a former state senator, had sought to win the seat for the Democrats and knot up the lower house in a 40-40 deadlock.

But Republicans won their third straight special legislative election this year and sixth since 1965 to give the GOP its first clear majority in both the Assembly and Senate in more than a decade.

The Assembly vacancy was created when Alan Pattee, R-Salinas, was killed in an automobile accident last April. He had held the seat since 1954.

Gov. Ronald Reagan telephoned Wood to congratulate him and said the election "again shows that the Republican Party is on the move."

The victory regained the Assembly majority Republicans had won in last November's general election.

Last month, voters elected Clare Berryhill, R-Ceres, to fill the seat left vacant when Assemblyman Republican John G. Veneman resigned to join the Nixon administration.

In March, the GOP captured a Senate seat by electing Sen. John A. Nejedly, R-Walnut Creek, in a district that had gone to the Democrats for more than 20 years.

Contessa Maude Fiorentino-Valle, musician, painter, poetess, countess and centenarian, is dead.

The countess, who up to the time of her death at age 100 led a zesty life "doing my thing" in the arts, died at the Mill Valley home of a niece Saturday after a short illness.

"I enjoy everything so much, I can't say what I like to do most now," Mrs. Valle said shortly after her 100th birthday last November. At that time, she advised, "do your bit and your best" and "throw your troubles over your left shoulder."

Educated by private tutors in Europe, she met her husband, Italian cavalry officer Count Ricardo Fiorentino-Valle while she was painting in a studio in a convent on the Tiber River in Rome.

They lived for many years in Rome and Manhattan before they were separated and Mrs. Valle moved to Denver. She lived with her niece, Mrs. Nathalia Walker Richmond, at 390 Eldridge Avenue, Mill Valley, the past five years.

Oakland Plane Is Hijacked To Cuba

MIAMI (AP) — An armed Negro carrying literature of the militant Black Panthers forced a Trans World Airlines jet with a crew of seven and 80 passengers to fly to Cuba.

The gunman, tall, well-dressed and bespectacled, took control of the scheduled Oakland-to-New York nonstop flight yesterday over Wilson Creek, Nev.

Except to describe himself as "a desperate man who had to get to Havana," he gave no reason for his action. Eldridge Cleaver, a Black Panther leader who is a fugitive from U.S. justice on a parole violation charge, is reported to be living in the Cuban capital.

The hijacker carried a copy of a Cleaver book.

He was not identified, but Lynn Bell of Piedmont, a passenger, took moving pictures of him as he left the plane in Havana. Bell said the film was taken from him by an FBI agent when the plane reached Miami.

Nora Hampton, fashion editor of the Oakland Tribune and a passenger aboard the Boeing 707, said the hijacker left his luggage at his seat after being admitted to the flight deck at gunpoint.

Navy Inquiry Excuses Evans Deck Officer

SUBIC BAY, Philippines (AP) —Lt. (j.g.) Ronald C. Ramsey, deck officer of the U.S. destroyer sliced in half by an Australian aircraft carrier, was permanently excused today from testifying before a board of inquiry.

U.S Rear Adm. Jerome H. King Jr., chairman of the board of six American and six Australian officers, said the panel "will be happy" to hear from Ramsey later if he changes his mind.

Ramsey, who was deck commander of the destroyer Frank E. Evans when it collided with the aircraft carrier Melbourne on June 3 and 74 Evans crewmen lost their lives, said his lawyer had not been granted the right to cross-examine witnesses, review all previous testimony and recall witnesses, and that testifying under such conditions would violate his constitutional rights.

The board agreed to excuse Ramsey because U.S. military law allows witnesses in investigative hearings to refuse to answer questions.

Ramsey, who other witnesses said ordered the turn that led to the collision, was told when he first appeared before the board that he was "suspected of negligence."

After the board excused Ramsey, it called Lt. (j.g.) Roland T. Bowler III, who turned the bridge of the Evans over to Ramsey about three hours before the accident.

Wrecked Barge Feeds Oil Slick On Mississippi River

ALMA, Wis. (AP) — An ugly film of oil spread for 25 miles along the scenic upper Mississippi River from a wrecked barge today as Minnesota and Wisconsin conservationists wrung their hands over its impact on wildlife.

"It's like living in a refinery," said James Everson, a Wisconsin conservation warden. "A lot of people are pretty unhappy. All of a sudden we get a big slug of petroleum right in the middle of some of the clearest water on the Mississippi."

The diesel oil slick began floating downstream between tree-clad bluffs Monday from a barge which struck a current-diverting wing dam about a mile above Alma.

The barge carried 567,000 gallons of oil. Its captain, Chester Forkum, said about 400,000 gallons escaped into the river.

The river current quickly thinned the film in the main channel. But winds pushed the slick into bayous and left it stranded in still water containing plant and insect life needed by fish, waterfowl and other wildlife.

Teachers Say Close Schools

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Oakland Teacher's Negotiating council proposed yesterday that the school district close half of the city's schools and put all pupils on double sessions.

The proposal, presented to the Board of Education, was intended to save the district $1 million. The board expects to be $830,000 short of balancing its budget next year.

Ed Case, chairman of the negotiating council, said a total of $3.3 million could be saved by the school closing plus drastic cuts of administrators, maintenance employees and security guards. As a result, no teachers would lose their jobs and funds would be available to raise their pay.

Chaplian's View Of Man's Needs

ASPEN, Colo. (UPI)—Man has learned to fly like a bird and navigate the seas like a fish—it is time he began to walk the earth like a man, the chaplain of Yale University said yesterday.

The Rev. William Sloane Coffin Jr., controversial chaplain at Yale, told 700 persons at the 19th annual international design conference they "must find a moral alternative to war."

"We must play down ideological differences. Man has more in common than in conflict, and any increase in armament insures a decrease in national security," he said.

Federal Spending Ceiling Nears Approval In Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is headed toward approval of a federal spending ceiling of $191 billion, some $1.9 billion below both President Nixon's budget and a ceiling passed earlier by the House.

Both ceilings are flexible, however.

The issue is likely to provide the major conflict between the two houses as Congress strives to complete action by June 30 on a supplemental appropriations bill, the final money measure for the fiscal year ending on that date.

The Senate's $4.4 billion version of the bill is about $700 million more than the House measure.

The $191 billion spending ceiling was devised by the Senate Appropriations Committee under the leadership of Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., chairman of its supplemental subcommittee.

An effort by Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., to tighten the ceiling was defeated yesterday 79 to 16.

Williams also planned to try to eliminate from the bill a provision repealing the ceiling enacted last year on federal employment. The Nixon administration favors repeal.

Several other amendments also remained for consideration today, including one by Sens. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., Alan Cranston, D-Calif., and Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., to add $47.5 million to the $7.5 million approved by the Appropriations Committee for the Neighborhood Youth Corps' summer jobs program in urban ghettoes.

The spending ceiling in the bill starts at $187.9 billion—$5 billion below the House and administration figures—but brings this up to $191 billion by exempting a number of programs where actual spending is either uncontrollable due to law or unforseeable such as the Vietnam war.

The exemptions include such things as farm price supports, public assistance and medicaid, social security and other retirement programs, vocational rehabilitation payments, costs of Congress and the federal judiciary, veterans benefits and interest on the national debt.

Services Board Discusses Budget

Tamalpais Community Services District directors last night discussed the 1969-70 budget in general terms, but no figures will be set until current property valuations are received from the county assessor, Director Gale E. Bishel reported.

The budget will be in the vicinity of $50,000, Bishel said. The board set a preliminary budget meeting for 7 p.m. July 15 at 305 Bell Lane.

The board also discussed the district master plan and property acquisition it will require, Bishel said.

Queen Mary A Rust Bucket?

LOS ANGELES (AP)—County Supervisor Kenneth Hahn calls Long Beach's acquisition of the liner Queen Mary "a monument to stupidity."

During debate yesterday, Hahn said, "Long Beach bought an old bucket—a rust bucket."

He moved that supervisors urge that no more public funds be allocated to convert the ship into a combination convention center, museum and tourist attraction.

Supervisor Burton W. Chace, a former Long Beach mayor, said he couldn't understand "why Mr. Hahn thinks this board should meddle in City of Long Beach . . . actions."

The motion lost 4-1.

The truth about 5% Passbook Accounts.

The truth is our 5% is better than our 4%. By 1%. And that's all.

For some people that's plenty. Especially since Wells Fargo Bank gives you a five-year guarantee on that 5% interest rate. And most banks don't.

But aside from the obvious advantage, there are some disadvantages attached to 5% Passbook Accounts. You can only make a withdrawal at the end of the quarter. Or after giving us 90 days notice. For people who are used to making long term investments that's no trouble. But for others it might spoil spur of the moment spending.

All banks require a minimum deposit of $500 to open a 5% Passbook Account. And deposits of $100 or more.

So a Wells Fargo 5% Passbook Account offers you only one big extra. 1% to be exact. On the other hand, Wells Fargo 4% Passbook Savings also offers you one big thing. Your money can come and go as you please. That's because we think there just may be more to saving money than interest.

Maybe.

Conflicting Restaurant Reports Prompt Sausalito Investigation

Given conflicting information about remodeling costs for a proposed restaurant, the Sausalito City Council last night asked for a staff investigation and report July 1 on Edgewater Yacht Co.'s proposal.

An attorney charged Edgewater has illegally spent at least $50,000 in remodeling its yacht sales building at Bridgeway and Turney Street, far exceeding allowable modifications for the nonforming building. Attorney Richard V. Bettini produced an engineer's sworn statement estimating that $150,000 had been spent on the site in all, with at least $50,000 in structural work.

Bettini said this was far over the 50 per cent allowed, citing an appraised value on the improvements of $33,000.

But Eric Groneman, a partner in Edgewater, produced a statement from his engineers certifying the structural work was less than 50 per cent.

Councilmen were impressed by photos Bettini produced showing the alterations, but an Edgewater spokesman said much of the visible work on the building was not considered structural change.

Only structural modifications are limited under the pertinent ordinance, City Atty. Leland H. Jordan told the council.

The council asked Jordan to report on legal aspects of the case and told Norman Wohlschlaeger, public works director, and building inspector William L. Hynes to report on value of the work.

Bettini, representing restaurant owner Sam Zakessian, again asked the city to halt Edgewater's project. "Our pimrary interest . . . is that special benefits . . . and a violation of the waterfront plan are not allowed here."

He called the project a "blatant violation" and said it was inconcievable it could be done "under the very nose of the city" with no city inspection of the job in the two weeks since he asked for one.

If the city does not halt the project, "we'll have no alternative but to go to a court of law," he said.

Another Edgewater partner charged Zakesstan had used legal harassment to delay the Edgewater project for more than a year.

The council also asked for a report July 1 from consultant William T. Spangle and Associates on Edgewater's encroachment application to build a boardwalk on the shoreline of the property in a city right-of-way, after City Mgr. George M. Patterson suggested the boardwalk might conflict with the one in the central waterfront plan.

Elephant Statue Cleaning Offer To Be Eyed Further

Sausalito was offered a pair of free white elephants last night, but turned the offer over to the Community Appearances Advisory Board.

John L. Anker of Tiburon offered to sandblast and seal the city's two elephant statues in Vina Del Mar Plaza, along with the war memorial, free of charge.

Tied to the offer was a bid by Anker to clean and seal the plaza fountain for $2,100 and to do the steps on Excelsior and El Monte lanes for $2,400.

City engineer Norman Wohlschlaeger said the steps are structurally sound but the fountain needs the repair and patching which Anker also offered in his bid.

The Sausalito City Council Also:

COMMISSION — Appointed Margaret T. Meeks, physical education director at Tamalpais High School, to the recreation commission.

PARK — Read a complaint from George F. Carney of the Sausalito Rotary Club that Carl Gabrielson Park is a "junkyard" because of lack of maintenance since the Rotary Club donated it to the city last year. Acting Mayor Alexander R. Imlay agreed with the complaint. Wohlschlaeger said more summer maintenance help started work Monday and the park is clean now. The city will also have one more maintenance man in the new fiscal year, he said, which will improve clean-up.

VARIANCE — Set a July 1 public hearing on a variance sought by Mobil Oil Corp. for a gas station at Second and Main streets.

HEARINGS — Set a public hearing July 1 on a use permit, variance and encroachment permit sought by Robert Engman to allow rebuilding a fire-damaged residence at 63 Central Avenue.

SIDEWALK — Authorized Wohlschlaeger to start proceedings to complete a sidewalk on Spring Street between Bridgeway and Pearl Street.

TREES — Approved a request by John M. Davis to retain four pine trees he planted on city property at 101 San Carlos Avenue but ruled against two redwoods he planted. The redwoods should be replaced by smaller trees, the council ruled.

PARKING — Adopted an ordinance altering off-stree parking requirements for educational uses.

Jury Considers Fate Of Eight

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The fate of eight persons on trial for disturbances at San Francisco State College was back before a Municipal Court jury today.

The five woman, seven man jury was unable to reach a verdict last night. Jurors were taken to a hotel before resuming deliberations today.

They are considering charges of failure to disperse, unlawful assembly and disturbing the peace against the defendants.

On trial are Steven L. Harris, Susan C. Hano, William J. Helmer, Douglas W. Helppie, Michael D. Huber, Frederick T. Kearney, Frank D. Kee and Nancy L. Koenig.

The jurors, before retiring, asked Judge James J. Welch to reread instructions on two of the charges, unlawful assembly and disturbing the peace.

Burn Ban Is Expected To Cleanse Air

An end to backyard burning will make a significant difference in reaching hope-for levels of air pollution control, a pollution expert told the Sausalito City Council last night.

Backyard burning in the six-county Bay Area Air Pollution Control District pours 350 tons of pollutants a day into the air, Milton Feldstein told the council.

Feldstein, director of technical services for the district, said it has already cut industrial emissions by 50 per cent, agricultural burning emissions by 90 per cent, and with the Jan. 1 ban will cut backyard burning pollution by 90 per cent.

Control of auto emissions, not under district control, will be cut 75 per cent by state rules, Feldstein said.

Taken all together, the steps are to eliminate 80 per cent of Bay Area air pollution to return to air purity levels of 1950. Without banning back yard burning, the reduction would be only 65 per cent, he said, while with it pollution would be cut 75 per cent.

A fourth of the district's back yard burning pollution comes from Marin, Feldstein said.

He said the district produces 500 tons a day of organic gases from industry, 250 tons from agricultural burning and more than 1,000 tons from cars. A ton of burned yard clippings produces 875 pounds of pollutants, he said, more than half that in carbon monoxide.

The council agreed to consider naming a citizens' committee at the July 1 meeting to develop plans for disposal of garden clippings now burned.

Bridge Crossings Up During March

A total of 494,514 vehicles crossed the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge during March, up 32,098 from the same month last year, the state Division of Bay Toll Crossings reported today.

The net operating revenue was $340,470 for the month, up from $335,488 in March, 1968.

New Parking Lot's Meters By Weekend

Sausalito's fourth downtown parking lot will be finished and metered by this weekend, adding 128 spaces to the city's parking capacity, Norman C. Wohlschlaeger, public works director, said yesterday.

The lot is in use now, but some parking meter posts and the meter heads are yet to be installed.

Part of the lot, which lies between the U.S. Post Office and the Sausalito Yacht Harbor, will be nonmetered and reserved for boat owners. So far the city has received 55 applications for the nonmetered spaces, which will cost $10 a month. Until a few weeks ago the lot was free, but was also crowded, unpaved, unmarked and rutted, A city hall clerk said only a few complaints have been received about the change and the accompanying parking fees.

Sausalito will have 506 spaces in four parking lots with the new addition.

The city has made several changes in recent months to shift more of the parking cost to visitors. Residents can get stickers good for two hours free parking in lots one, three and four. Meter costs have been boosted to 20 cents an hour in high-use sections of the parking lots and on downtown streets, and several unmetered 12-minute spaces have been located downtown for one-stop shoppers.

The Thirty Years War lasted from 1618 to 1648.

Gary Frederickson, 26, Federal Way; his brother, Glenn, 19; Carl Moore, 34, Tacoma, and Peter Sandstedt, 22, Seattle, were reported in good condition following their airlift to Sunrise Camp.

Conflicting Restaurant Reports Prompt Sausalito Investigation

Given conflicting information about remodeling costs for a proposed restaurant, the Sausalito City Council last night asked for a staff investigation and report July 1 on Edgewater Yacht Co.'s proposal.

An attorney charged Edgewater has illegally spent at least $50,000 in remodeling its yacht sales building at Bridgeway and Turney Street, far exceeding allowable modifications for the nonforming building. Attorney Richard V. Bettini produced an engineer's sworn statement estimating that $150,000 had been spent on the site in all, with at least $50,000 in structural work.

Bettini said this was far over the 50 per cent allowed, citing an appraised value on the improvements of $33,000.

But Eric Groneman, a partner in Edgewater, produced a statement from his engineers certifying the structural work was less than 50 per cent.

Councilmen were impressed by photos Bettini produced showing the alterations, but an Edgewater spokesman said much of the visible work on the building was not considered structural change.

Only structural modifications are limited under the pertinent ordinance, City Atty. Leland H. Jordan told the council.

The council asked Jordan to report on legal aspects of the case and told Norman Wohlschlaeger, public works director, and building inspector William L. Hynes to report on value of the work.

Bettini, representing restaurant owner Sam Zakessian, again asked the city to halt Edgewater's project. "Our pimrary interest . . . is that special benefits . . . and a violation of the waterfront plan are not allowed here."

He called the project a "blatant violation" and said it was inconcievable it could be done "under the very nose of the city" with no city inspection of the job in the two weeks since he asked for one.

If the city does not halt the project, "we'll have no alternative but to go to a court of law," he said.

Another Edgewater partner charged Zakessian had used legal harassment to delay the Edgewater project for more than a year.

The council also asked for a report July 1 from consultant William T. Spangle and Associates on Edgewater's encroachment application to build a boardwalk on the shoreline of the property in a city right-of-way, after City Mgr. George M. Patterson suggested the boardwalk might conflict with the one in the central waterfront plan.

Elephant Statue Cleaning Offer To Be Eyed Further

Sausalito was offered a pair of free white elephants last night, but turned the offer over to the Community Appearances Advisory Board.

John L. Anker of Tiburon offered to sandblast and seal the city's two elephant statues in Vina Del Mar Plaza, along with the war memorial, free of charge.

Tied to the offer was a bid by Anker to clean and seal the plaza fountain for $2,100 and to do the steps on Excelsior and El Monte lanes for $2,400.

City engineer Norman Wohlschlaeger said the steps are structurally sound but the fountain needs the repair and patching which Anker also offered in his bid.

The Sausalito City Council Also:

COMMISSION — Appointed Margaret T. Meeks, physical education director at Tamalpais High School, to the recreation commission.

PARK — Read a complaint from George F. Carney of the Sausalito Rotary Club that Carl Gabrielson Park is a "junkyard" because of lack of maintenance since the Rotary Club donated it to the city last year. Acting Mayor Alexander R. Imlay agreed with the complaint. Wohlschlaeger said more summer maintenance help started work Monday and the park is clean now. The city will also have one more maintenance man in the new fiscal year, he said, which will improve cleanup.

VARIANCE — Set a July 1 public hearing on a variance sought by Mobil Oil Corp. for a gas station at Second and Main streets.

HEARINGS — Set a public hearing July 1 on a use permit, variance and encroachment permit sought by Robert Engman to allow rebuilding a fire-damaged residence at 63 Central Avenue.

SIDEWALK — Authorized Wohlschlaeger to start proceedings to complete a sidewalk on Spring Street between Bridgeway and Pearl Street.

TREES — Approved a request by John M. Davis to retain four pine trees he planted on city property at 101 San Carlos Avenue but ruled against two redwoods he planted. The redwoods should be replaced by smaller trees, the council ruled.

PARKING — Adopted an ordinance altering off-stree parking requirements for educational uses.

Jury Considers Fate Of Eight

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The fate of eight persons on trial for disturbances at San Francisco State College was back before a Municipal Court jury today.

The five woman, seven man jury was unable to reach a verdict last night. Jurors were taken to a hotel before resuming deliberations today.

They are considering charges of failure to disperse, unlawful assembly and disturbing the peace against the defendants.

On trial are Steven L. Harris, Susan C. Hano, William J. Helmer, Douglas W. Helppie, Michael D. Huber, Frederick T. Kearney, Frank D. Kee and Nancy L. Koenig.

The jurors, before retiring, asked Judge James J. Welch to reread instructions on two of the charges, unlawful assembly and disturbing the peace.

Souza Ranch Firing Range Wins Approval

A firing range on the William Souza ranch near the Sonoma County border won a unanimous go-ahead from the Marin County Board of Supervisors yesterday, over the objections of a neighbor who argued that the firing range would endanger his horses and property.

On a motion by Supervisor Louis H. Baar, supervisors granted a five-year use permit for the firing range, to be located on the west side of Alexander Road between Fallon-Two Rock Road and Tomales-Petaluma Road.

The Marin County Planning Commission approved the use permit on May 19, but neighbor Ben Rothbard, who owns 44 acres adjacent to Souza, appealed.

Pearl Rasimas of Martinez, who represented Rothbard yesterday, reported that vandals had wrecked an equipment shed on the property. She said she fears the gun club would bring more vandalism to the Rothbard ranch.

Supervisors Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. and Michael Wornum declared that a public firing range would tend to reduce indiscriminate firing in other areas of the county.

James Marsico Jr. of Novato, president of the United Conservationists and Sportsmen of Marin, assured the supervisors the firing range meets all regulations of the National Rifle Association, and the 1,500 feet distance from Rothbard's ranch is more than adequate to keep noise from being a nuisance.

Howard Johnson High-Rise Held Lacking Open Space

Builders of the Howard Johnson motel-restaurant at Richardson Bay Bridge, in front of Fireside Motel, should cut down its seven-story high-rise building and provide more open space, the Marin County Board of Supervisors decided yesterday.

"I don't want to knock this thing," said Supervisor Michael Wornum. "But I for one would like to see the height reduced. I think this can stand another review on the congestion and on the height."

Supervisors Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. and William A. Gnoss agreed that the height should be lowered. Chairman John F. McInnis and Supervisor Louis H. Baar saw no objection to the height but agreed that at least one of the two two tennis courts could be eliminated to provide more open space.

On a motion by Baar, supervisors continued the matter until 3 p.m. next Tuesday and asked the county planning staff and architect E. C. Heine to reconsider the height and the layout.

Mill Valley Planning Commissioners Paul Rosenthal and Robert Burton objected to the seven-story high-rise and density of the buildings on the five-acre parcel.

Hugh G. Lawrence, attorney for the developers, protested that further delay on the plans would kill the project altogether. He argued that the seven-story structure had the approval of the planning staff.

The Marin Board Of Supervisors Also:

DAMAGE CLAIMS — Rejected a $52,500 claim by Gardner Baldwin, who charges that a defective storm drain caused runoff waters to inundate his property at 38 Reed Ranch Road, Tiburon, and another claim for $8,000 by Mrs. Anne Geraldine O'Neill of 10 Woodland Road, Kentfield, who alleges that a wooden bridge in front of her property was removed because of the Corte Madera Creek flood control project, and she can no longer park in her garage.

KENTFIELD PARKING — Authorized parking restrictions on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard in the vicinity of the Kentfield Fire Station and at Maple Avenue.

SUTRO BRIDGE — Awarded a $39,215 contract to Mountail States Construction Co. of Concord to widen Sutro Avenue Bridge in Novato between Novato Boulevard and Center Road. It was the lowest of three bids, but higher than the engineer's estimate of $36,800.

JUVENILE HALL PARKING — Awarded a $4,057.60 contract to William K. McLellan of San Anselmo to overlay existing parking areas and add 16 parking spaces at Juvenile Hall. This was the lowest of six bids and lower than the engineer's estimate of $5,300.

FIRE DISTRICT — Asked the Marin Local Agency Formation Commission to form a fire protection district in the unincorporated areas of Marin County which are not served by cities or fire districts. McInnis pointed out that the formation of the district merely enables communities which want better fire protection to set up sub-zone and vote for improved service instead of going through the elaborate red tape of forming special assessment districts.

COMMENDATION — Voted a resolution of commenation to Peter F. Rothermel IV, who will leave for a new job in Rhode Island after six years as headmaster at Marin County Day School. Wornum and Arrigoni jointly moved for the commendation.

NEW CAREERS — Approved a job description for the coordinator of the New Careers Program, with a salary range of $892 to $1084 per month.

TRIMMING — Instructed the parks and recreation department to trim hedges along the shoulder area of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard in Greenbrae between Eliseo Drive and Manor Road.

TRAILER — Gave Mrs. Lucile D. Shoemaker 60 days in which to clean up debris on her property at 100 South Dream Farm Road in Inverness and get a variance for a house trailer on the property if it is to be used as a dwelling.

ABATEMENT — Gave Jack Tefft of 23 Lomita Drive, Mill Valley, until the first of September to complete his unfinished home and comply with dwelling requirements. Otherwise, he must move out of the home, which he is occupying.

RADIO MAINTENANCE — Approved new rates which the county will charge cities and other public agencies for maintaining radio equipment. The new rates will not go into effect for 30 days, during which time cities may present valid objections if any.

CONFERENCE — Authorized Austin J. Thompson, director of the human rights department, to attend conferences in Hartford, Conn., at a cost of $413.

BELVEDERE — Approved Belvedere's request to extend the city limits west of Belvedere Island to the middle of Richardson Bay. Belvedere officials want the annexation so that the city will have control over potential drydock and houseboat problems.

COURTHOUSE MEETING — Agreed to a joint meeting with San Rafael at 8 p.m. June 30 in San Rafael City Hall to continue discussions on the Courthouse Square sale and on the widening of San Pedro Road.

Picket Fence Sought Along Creek Culvert

A four-foot high picket fence will line both sides of Tamalpais Creek when the textured concrete culvert is completed in Kent Woodlands.

Public Works Director Donald R. Frost won the approval of the Marin County Board of Supervisors yesterday on a picket fence which he will suggest to the Army Corps of Engineers to replace the six-foot chain link fence originally planned.

On May 19, Col. Frank C. Boerger, district engineer for the Army engineers, offered to use simulated stone textured concrete to line the walls of Tamalpais Creek between Goodhill Road and Kent Avenue, at no extra cost.

At the same time, the colonel suggested that reducing the height of the fencing might help reduce "the impact of the project in this area."

The Supervisors endorsed the textured concrete concept and asked Frost to make a study on the fence and come back with a recommendation.

Asst. Director of Public Works William L. Hess said the Corps suggested a split rail fence (two horibontal bars), but this was ruled out in favor of a picket fence because children can easily slip through a split rail fence.

County superisors yesterday approved the four-foot picket fence but wanted Frost to make sure that there is no space at the bottom where children can squeeze through.

Ex-Panthers Claim Party Now Exploiting The Slums

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two former members of the Black Panther Party testified in a heavily guarded Senate hearing room today the militant Negro force has spurned its original purpose of self-defense and now exploits the people of the slums.

Larry Clayton Powell and his wife, Jean, both clad in black, wearing berets, eye shades and carrying the quotations of Mao Tse-Tung, told the Senate subcommittee on investigations the Black Panther party is now directed by people who only want money for themselves.

"The party began with the idea of helping black people," said Mrs. Powell. She said it originally began with approximately 40 men in Oakland.

"The members have either been assassinated, set up to be killed, set up to be arrested, or expelled, which leaves only one person to run the Black Panther Party at present, David Hilliard," she testified.

Mrs. Powell said she defected from the Panthers when the party refused to provide bail money for her husband who, she said, was arrested while attempting an armed robbery on the orders of the party.

Powell said he was expelled from the party and termed a counter revolutionary after his arrest because the party did not want to spend its funds in his defense.

Both witnesses testified the Black Panthers are financed by rallies, donations, sale of propaganda and armed robberies. They estimated collections of the party total $50,000 to $100,000 a month.

Earlier, a police captain furnished the subcommittee evidence that Black Panther chieftains have called for destruction of American industry.

Capt. John E. Drass of the Washington, D.C., police department gave the Senate permanent subcommittee on investigations transcripts of statements made by Black Panther leaders in foreign countries and radio interviews broadcast from Cuba.

He quoted George Mason Murray, the party's minister of education, and Joudon Ford, a Panther leader in New York as saying in Cuba last August:

"So long as we are alive there will be no industry, factory, bank, or company that is safe. We do not guarantee the lives of their congressmen, candidates, generals or businessmen who control power. We shall use bullets, birdshot, kitchen knives and everything at hand to destroy imperialism."

Parents Ask $100,000 In Girl's Death

The parents of a 16-year-old girl inmate of Marin Juvenile Hall who died March 14 have charged county officials with negligence in allowing their daughter to obtain drugs and filed a $100,000 claim against the county.

Robert and Beverly Hopps of 120 San Rafael Avenue, Belvedere, said that the staff at Juvenile Hall allowed their daughter, Cynthia, "to obtain and ingest so-called 'peace pills,' consisting of a combination of hard drugs such as LSD, STP, methedrine, strychnine and arsenic."

They further alleged that the staff failed to give the girl adequate care when she became ill.

A coroner's jury on April 25 found that the youngster probably died because her nervous system was so damaged by the use of such drugs as LSD that her normal responses were gone.

The jurors found that death was due to asphyxiation on vomit brought on by a neurological disorder.

Other teen-agers from juvenile Hall testified at the inquest that Cynthia had taken a "peace pill" during an outing to the beach chaperoned by Juvenile Hall counselors.

The claim filed against the county is a legal forerunner to any civil suit that may be filed in Marin Superior Court if the claim is denied.

All basket work is either plaited or coiled.

And the California Aqueduct just can't be seen, disproving a myth promulgated by state water projects publicists.

Apollo 10 astronauts described what California looks like from the moon yesterday during a Capitol press conference—their only official one of a three-day formal state visit.

Col. Thomas P. Stafford, Cmdr. John W. Young and Cmdr. Eugene A. Cernan and their families flew here from San Francisco after a downtown tickertape parade in the Bay city.

Today, the astronauts appeared before a joint session of the Legislature. "For once," Young told the lawmakers, "we could look down and see Los Angeles as clear as a bell. And we didn't see any fog over San Francisco."

Stafford, the spacecraft commander, said the problems legislators face are "more political and social than technical" and revolve around "how to take this (scientific) technology and put it to effective use."

Also on their schedule today were tours through Aerojet and McDonnell Douglas aerospace facilities and a flight to Los Angeles. They'll be in San Diego tomorrow.

Gov. Ronald Reagan accompanied the astronauts at every public appearance, acting as emcee.

"These three are a product of what so many would malign and amend—our society," said the governor. "Too many are telling our young children that heroes are a thing of the past. Well, these are authentic heroes."

What does California look like from up there?

"You know, one of the amazing things that we saw when we were out at the moon," said Young, "was California...

"During 'earthrise' you could see it with the naked eye. It is really something. The San Joaquin Valley stands out like somebody had taken a big shovel and just spooned it out. And you could see it from 250,000 miles away."

Publicists for the state Water Project a couple of years ago contended, somewhat jokingly, that when man reached the moon two public works he could see would be the California Aqueduct down the west side of the Central Valley and the Great Wall of China.

Not so.

It "would have taken a mighty powerful telescope to see anything" beyond the valley itself and the Sierra, said Cernan.

State employees were given time off to watch a downtown Sacramento motorcade carrying the astronauts. Later, the astronauts were guests at a father-son-daughter banquet attended by 1,100.

In San Francisco, the space voyagers were presented by Mayor Joseph Alioto with a miniature likeness of "Snoopy." The lunar vehicle was named after the comic strip dog.

The trip is being paid for by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA).

Jack Watson Is Relected

Jack Watson was reelected to a second term yesterday as president of Carpenters Union Local 35 in San Rafael in the union's biannual election.

About 20 per cent of the 1,400 members voted, reported financial secretary Bill Wilson, who declined to give the vote count.

Seeking to unseat Watson were Al Long and Art Roscoe.

Results in other contested elections saw Charlie Howe defeat Lou Faverio for vice president, and Jim Adrian defeat Hank Torget for business agent.

Elected trustees were incumbents Paul Crumley and Scotty MacKay, and Pat Miller. Defeated were Ted Benson, Pete Petrakis and Bill Stritmatter.

Council Cuts Parks Budget

The Novato City Council cut $1,300 from the $108,940 parks and recreation budget making it $107,640, during a study session last night, reported City Mgr. Charles A. Brown.

This was not a cut in the total city budget, however, but a transfer of $1,300 profit from some of the self-paying recreational programs to be applied to salaries, Brown said.

The council agred to apply $33,000, carried over from this year, for a spray pool at Pioneer Memorial Park, to next year's budget as the work cannot be done until then, Brown said.

The council discussed the purchase of the Rodoni property just north of the community house as a teen center. It appointed Councilmen J. Wayne Womack and Babe Silva to investigate the purchase of the property.

The council adjourned to 8 p.m. today when it will hold its first public hearing on the budget.

Fairfax Man Hurt In Auto Mishap

Theodore Randolph Workman, 48, of 322 Forest Avenue, Fairfax, was treated for a cut knee and bruises at Marin General Hospital last night after he failed to turn his car at the intersection of Front Street and Medway Road, San Rafael, and ran into a chain-link fence owned by Albert Bidegain of 20 Mercury Avenue, San Rafael.

Police cited Workman as being drunk in and about his vehicle.

Passenger Hurts Neck In Collision

Susan Rubin, 24, of Philadelphia, Pa., was treated for back sprain yesterday at Marin General Hospital after an accident in which a car driven by Bilie Ruth Bertrand, 27, of Inverness struck the car in which Mrs. Rubin was a passenger with her husband, Marshall, on Red Hill Avenue at Sequoia Drive, police reported.

Miss Bertrand reportedly told officers that her foot apparently slipped off the brake as she was stopping behind the Rubin car at about 9:40 a.m.

Classified Employees Reject Pay

A proposed 6.67 per cent salary scale increase was turned down last night by the classified employees research and salary committee of San Anselmo School District.

Committee chairman Barbara Nilsen said that a counter-proposal is being discussed and will be submitted today in time for discussion by the school board at its 7:30 p.m. meeting today in Red Hill School.

A board committee, meeting with the classified employees committee, made the 6.67 per cent offer plus an 8.3 per cent increase for nine teacher library aides.

Classified employees are seeking a 7.5 per cent increase.

Supt. Stephen L. Parodi said today that the board committee's 6.67 per cent proposal is in addition to the automatical annual 5 per cent rise in pay. Under the board committee's proposal salaries plus increments — now $181,751 — would be $198,910. This would be a $17,159 increase.

Tiburon Teen Center Gets Design Nod

The design for a proposed Tiburon teen recreation center was unanimously approved yesterday by the Tiburon Design Review Board.

The proposed center would be located near the lagoon on Tiburon Peninsula Club property and would be run by Tiburon Youth.

The center still must obtain a use permit from the city before it can be built. Plans approved yesterday included renovation of the Ark which is already at the site, construction of an outdoor deck area, brick entrance paving, landscaping and parking for 20 cars.

The design review board attached a number of conditions to its design approval, among them a 35-foot limitation on a flag pole, a requirement that the outside of the center be painted white and controls over lighting and landscaping.

The board also approved sign permits for Triangle Builders for an identification sign for Tiburon Knolls and for Marinero Residence No. 1 Inc., for an identification and sales sign.

FATAL AUTO TRUCK COLLISION

Apollo 10 Astronaut Describes California

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—From the moon, according to those who have been there, the San Joaquin Valley looks as if "somebody had taken a big shovel and just spooned it out."

The Sierra appears to be "beautifully snow capped"—which it is.

The state—a best selling book to the contrary—doesn't seem ready to "slip into the ocean."

And the California Aqueduct just can't be seen, disproving a myth promulgated by state water projects publicists.

Disco Store Gets Bomb Scare

Disco department store at 1 Larkspur Plaza in Larkspur was evacuated at 1:19 p.m. yesterday after an employee received a telephone call from a man who said a bomb in the building was about to go off and "we're not foolin'."

Police and firemen searched the premises but found nothing. About 50 people were forced to leave the store, said police Sgt. Jerry Mattos.

Planners Hear Open Space Report

The Petaluma Planning Commission last night heard a review of the general plan and the various means of developing open space.

William C. McGivern, city planner, said the city can apply open space concepts in three manners, each complementary to the others.

He said one concept would be to increase the size of lots in selected sections of the city, while maintaining regular lot sizes in others and incorporating the neighborhood park plan.

McGivern said small parks, possibly four acres in size, could be used as "green belts" in subdivision areas and provide play equipment areas for youngsters.

In the open space concept of large areas of greenery, McGivern suggested that the plan for rural development in the area northeast of the Sky Ranch Airport should be retained. He said the development of farms should be encouraged to provide an atmosphere of an open expanse of land adjacent to the fully developed residential areas.

Discussion on updating the general plan will continue at the July 1 commission meeting.

The Petaluma Planning Commission also:

WAREHOUSE — Denied the request of Robert E. Smartt to operate a distribution warehouse and office in a highway commercial zone at the intersection of Petaluma Boulevard North with Old Redwood Highway and Stony Point Road. The commission said it needed more information about the proposed operation and what opinion the Sonoma County Flood Control District would have on development along a tributary of the Petaluma River.

VARIANCE — Granted the request of Commissioner Robert L. Koenitzer to allow a reduction in setback for reconstruction of a garage at 311 Keller Street.

REZONING — Considered the possible rezoning of the area between Schuman Lane and Cherry Street to the city limits to redesign larger lots.

AUTO WRECKING — Reviewed conditions of auto wrecking businesses on Lakeville Highway and gave operators 30 days in which to begin bringing their operations up to city standards. Complaints had been received that operators are burning cars, stacking autos over the fence tops and creating a public nuisance.

Trustees In Fairfax Plan New Tax Vote

The Fairfax School District board decided last night to hold another election to increase the district's general operating tax rate.

No date for the vote was set, according to Dist. Supt. H. Reginald Hammond, although the board indicated it might be held in late January or early February.

Voters on June 3 rejected a proposed 95-cent increase in the general purpose rate to $3 per $100 of assessed valuation.

Hammond said the board expressed interest in forming a citizens advisory committee on the new election.

Because of the June 3 failure, the board was compelled last night to adopt a preliminary 1970 fiscal budget of $822,218, about $85,000 lower than the current budget and some $146,000 less than one the board had hoped to adopt for 1969-70.

Bus transportation and field trips for students are eliminated under the new preliminary budget, Hammond said. The district tax rate—now totaling $3,015, including overrides — probably will not be changed, he added.

The Fairfax School District board also:

SALARIES — Approved a resolution enabling a change in employee salaries during the school year. The board has promised teachers an additional raise if more funds are provided from state sources or a tax election.

TEACHERS — Hired Mrs. Erika Zettl to teach seventh and eighth grade at White Hill School at $10,700 a year.

CONFERENCE — Nominated Thomas J. Kelly, principal of White Hill School, and Theresa Scheppleman, a student at the school, as delegates to the State House Conference on Children and Youth, to be held in Sacramento Nov. 10-11.

Tijerina Seeking $1.5 Million For Credit Damage

Charles Tijerina of Belvedere on the past two years operation former chairman and president of Tiburon National Bank, yesterday filed a $1.5 million libel suit against a San Francisco credit information service charging that false information has damaged his credit rating.

Tijerina is asking at least $1 million in general damages and $500,000 in punitive damages from the Retail Credit Co., which he said provided credit reports on him to three persons.

The reports alleged that his mismanagement of the bank caused it to be sold to Sierra National Bank, according to the suit.

Tijerina claims this is not true.

Tiburon National Bank was purchased by Sierra National Bank in 1967 after Tijerian had resigned as chairman.

Liquidation of the Tiburon bank is still continuing, according to William O. Weissich, president and chairman, who is also Tijerina's attorney. Weissich said that so far stockholders have received $5 a share.

District Engineer J. Warren Nute said the sale will provide some of the needed leveling of the district's land for future expansion of its Trestle Glen plant.

Planners Hear Open Space Report

The Petaluma Planning Commission last night heard a review of the general plan and the various means of developing open space.

William C. McGivern, city planner, said the city can apply open space concepts in three manners, each complementary to the others.

He said one concept would be to increase the size of lots in selected sections of the city, while maintaining regular lot sizes in others and incorporating the neighborhood park plan.

McGivern said small parks, possibly four acres in size, could be used as "green belts" in subdivision areas and provide play equipment areas for youngsters.

In the open space concept of large areas of greenery, McGivern suggested that the plan for rural development in the area northeast of the Sky Ranch Airport should be retained. He said the development of farms should be encouraged to provide an atmosphere of an open expanse of land adjacent to the fully developed residential areas.

Discussion on updating the general plan will continue at the July 1 commission meeting.

The Petaluma Planning Commission also:

WAREHOUSE — Denied the request of Robert E. Smartt to operate a distribution warehouse and office in a highway commercial zone at the intersection of Petaluma Boulevard North with Old Redwood Highway and Stony Point Road. The commission said it needed more information about the proposed operation and what opinion the Sonoma County Flood Control District would have on development along a tributary of the Petaluma River.

VARIANCE — Granted the request of Commissioner Robert L. Koenitzer to allow a reduction in setback for reconstruction of a garage at 311 Keller Street.

REZONING — Considered the possible rezoning of the area between Schuman Lane and Cherry Street to the city limits to redesign larger lots.

AUTO WRECKING — Reviewed conditions of auto wrecking businesses on Lakeville Highway and gave operators 30 days in which to begin bringing their operations up to city standards. Complaints had been received that operators are burning cars, stacking autos over the fence tops and creating a public nuisance.

Trustees In Fairfax Plan New Tax Vote

The Fairfax School District board decided last night to hold another election to increase the district's general operating tax rate.

No date for the vote was set, according to Dist. Supt. H. Reginald Hammond, although the board indicated it might be held in late January or early February.

Voters on June 3 rejected a proposed 95-cent increase in the general purpose rate to $3 per $100 of assessed valuation.

Hammond said the board expressed interest in forming a citizens advisory committee on the new election.

Because of the June 3 failure, the board was compelled last night to adopt a preliminary 1970 fiscal budget of $822,218, about $85,000 lower than the current budget and some $146,000 less than one the board had hoped to adopt for 1969-70.

Bus transportation and field trips for students are eliminated under the new preliminary budget, Hammond said. The district tax rate—now totaling $3,015, including overrides — probably will not be changed, he added.

The Fairfax School District board also:

SALARIES — Approved a resolution enabling a change in employee salaries during the school year. The board has promised teachers an additional raise if more funds are provided from state sources or a tax election.

TEACHERS — Hired Mrs. Erika Zettl to teach seventh and eighth grade at White Hill School at $10,700 a year.

CONFERENCE — Nominated Thomas J. Kelly, principal of White Hill School, and Theresa Scheppleman, a student at the school, as delegates to the State House Conference on Children and Youth, to be held in Sacramento Nov. 10-11.

Trio To Be Honored For Saving A Youth

Three Marin youths tomorrow will receive certificates of recognition for "extraordinary personal action" in saving the life of an 18-year-old Corte Maderian youth on May 1.

The Marin County Chapter of the American National Red Cross will award the certificates at a meeting of directors at 10 a.m. at the First Presbyterian Church in San Rafael.

Certificates will go to Kerry Kelly, 17, of 515 Tamalpais Avenue, Corte Madera; James Robinette, 18, of 5 Greenfield Court, San Anselmo; and Gary Semrau, 20, of 67 Ross Avenue, for saving the life of Donald Rodriquez, 18, of 73 Golden Hinde Passage.

On May 1 Rodriguez slipped near the top of the Kent Lake spillway and slid down the length of the spillway to the rocks below and into the water.

Robinette and Semrau, who were at the base of the spillway, pulled the unconscious Rodriguez ashore while Kelly, who had been walking with Rodriguez, ran to a store in Lagunitas and called for an ambulance.

Robinette and Semrau tended the victim until the arrival of the ambulance.

Hearing Set

A preliminary hearing was set yesterday in Marin Municipal Court for Monday for Richard T. Kaemmer, 29, of Boyes Springs, who was arrested by the California Highway Patrol Saturday. He is accused of possessing marijuana.

Weed Control In Novato Lots

A program to control weeds in vacant lots should be worked out between the city of Novato and the Novato Fire Protection District, it was suggested Monday night by the Novato Beautification Committee.

The committee's proposal was that the city staff work out the program with the fire district, said secretary Frances Miller.

Chairman William J. Olsen suggested that the city staff investigate the possibility of getting approval from the state Division of Highways to landscape more islands on Highway 101. This would include filling in the ditch between the north and southbound lanes of the highway so that these islands could be planted, Mrs. Miller said.

Both proposals must go to the city council before any definite action could be taken on them.

Aquatint is a variety of etching.

Youth Pleads Guilty To Hitting A Deputy

A College of Marin student arrested during a protest of flood control work at Tamalpais Creek on April 28 pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to hitting a sheriff's deputy who was attempting to arrest him.

Judge Peter Allen Smith fined Gary Stark, 21, of San Anselmo, $50.

He also warned the youth, who said he was an art student, that "if you are ever brought before the court again charged with a similar offense you will be looking at a long jail sentence."

Judge Smith also told Stark "there is a vast difference between dissent and violence" and that "this kind of behavior wlll not be tolerated."

Stark was the only one of the 38 persons arrested during the demonstration who was charged with battery.

Trials for the others are due to be set soon in Marin Municipal Court.

City Pair Plead Innocent

Delbert C. Clark, 29, and Richard L. Givens, 28, both of San Francisco pleaded innocent yesterday to various felony charges stemming from their arrest Sunday by the California Highway Patrol. A preliminary hearing was set for Monday.

Clark is charged with possession of methamphetamine and another persons' credit card as well as a misdemeanor count of possessing a hypodermic needle.

Givens is accused of auto theft.

Open Space Law To Be Discussed

Is the law establishing agricultural preserves actually saving open space from development or is it just a tax dodge for land speculators?

The effectiveness of the Williams Act of 1966 — which permits landowners to put their property in an agricultural preserve without possiblity of development for 10 years in return for a lower tax rate — will be discussed at 8 p.m. today when the Alliance for Conservation meets at the Marin Rod and Gun Club.

Dealing with the question — conservation, or tax dodge? — will be Asst. County Counsel Richard V. Godino and John Chambers, chief appraiser in the Marin County assessor's office.

China is thought to be the native home of the apricot.

Youth Pleads Guilty To Hitting A Deputy

A College of Marin student arrested during a protest of flood control work at Tamalpais Creek on April 28 pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to hitting a sheriff's deputy who was attempting to arrest him.

Judge Peter Allen Smith fined Gary Stark, 21, of San Anselmo, $50.

He also warned the youth, who said he was an art student, that "if you are ever brought before the court again charged with a similar offense you will be looking at a long jail sentence."

Judge Smith also told Stark "there is a vast difference between dissent and violence" and that "this kind of behavior wlll not be tolerated."

Stark was the only one of the 38 persons arrested during the demonstration who was charged with battery.

Trials for the others are due to be set soon in Marin Municipal Court.

City Pair Plead Innocent

Delbert C. Clark, 29, and Richard L. Givens, 28, both of San Francisco pleaded innocent yesterday to various felony charges stemming from their arrest Sunday by the California Highway Patrol. A preliminary hearing was set for Monday.

Clark is charged with possession of methamphetamine and another persons' credit card as well as a misdemeanor count of possessing a hypodermic needle.

Givens is accused of auto theft.

Open Space Law To Be Discussed

Is the law establishing agricultural preserves actually saving open space from development or is it just a tax dodge for land speculators?

The effectiveness of the Williams Act of 1966 — which permits landowners to put their property in an agricultural preserve without possiblity of development for 10 years in return for a lower tax rate — will be discussed at 8 p.m. today when the Alliance for Conservation meets at the Marin Rod and Gun Club.

Dealing with the question — conservation, or tax dodge? — will be Asst. County Counsel Richard V. Godino and John Chambers, chief appraiser in the Marin County assessor's office.

China is thought to be the native home of the apricot.

$30,000 Cut From School Bus Program

About 1,000 more students in San Rafael City Schools are going to have to hike to school during the next school year as the result of an economy move last night by the San Rafael Board of Education.

Board members voted to cus bus service, extending the pickup limit for middle school and junior high school pupils and revamping bus schedules.

Eight buses would be eliminated at a saving of about $30,000, under the reduced program, trustees reported.

Board members increased the pickup limit for junior high and middle school pupils from a mile-and-a-half to two miles, and said the high school limit, temporarily at two miles, be enforced at the three-mile limit.

Supt. John F. Plank said the moves are expected to reduce the number of students being bused from 2,700 to 1,700.

He felt the $30,000 cutback in transportation would "impress upon all of us the financial crisis" faced by the two districts.

Under the revised schedule Terra Linda High School and Davidson School will operate from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. and San Rafael High School from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

At San Pedro School grades one through three will be in session from 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. and grades four through six from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

At all other schools in the elementary district, grades one through three will be in session from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. and grades four through six, 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Board members also approved use of one of the surplus buses as a mobile classroom for Terra Linda High School field trips on an experimental basis for six months. Other surplus buses are slated to be sold.

The San Rafael Board Of Education Also:

McCarthy Asks Recreation In Flood Planning

I-J Special Repgt

SACRAMENTO — A resolution appealing to the federal government to include recreation and beautification in planning for flood control projects has been introduced by Sen. John F. McCarthy, R-San Rafael.

Streams and channels "should be considered in relation to their multipurpose uses and not simply as flood discharge conduits," his resolution (SJR 30) said.

Recreational uses could include walkways, pathways, access points, view areas and areas for boating, fishing, swimming and other outdoor activities, it said.

McCarthy also has a bill (SB 426) that would authorize the state to participate financially in recreational features of federal flood control projects. It has passed the Senate, and is awaiting hearing in the Assembly. Gov. Ronald Reagan vetoed a similar measure last year by McCarthy.

Jersey City Reelects Whelan As Mayor

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP) — Mayor Thomas J. Whelan, running on a "law and order" plank, won reelection as mayor of New Jersey's second largest city yesterday.

He defeated former Mayor Thomas Gangemi in a runoff election with what Whelan called "an overwhelming mandate." The final unofficial tally gave Whelan 50,234 votes to 33,831 for Gangemi.

Radio Talk On Regional Police

Law enforcement officials will discuss whether a regional police force should be formed on radio station KTIM's Sounding Board program at 9 a.m. tomorrow.

Speakers will be Oakland Police Chief Charles R. Gain, a member of the Criminal Justice Advisory Board of the Association of Bay Area Governments, Novato Police Chief Robert Di-Grazia, Marin County Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos, Lt. Lincoln M. Borba of the San Rafael Police Department, and Robert Mullen, coordinator of ABAG's Criminal Justice Advisory Board.

Listeners can telephone in questions, and the program will be repeated by tape recording at 10:05 a.m. Sunday.

Budgets Carry Possible Hike In Tax Rates

San Rafael Board of Education last night approved tentative budgets for the coming school year, expected to carry hikes in tax rates.

Approved were the tentative elementary district budget of $4,590,135 and a tentative high school district budget of $4,879,092.

The tentative high school district budget is $241,048 higher than the past year and the tentative elementary budget $143,264 lower.

Supt. John F. Plank claimed there are too many variables, including state aid, not settled to predict tax rates.

The budgets are based on levying the maximum general operating tax rates, $1.75 per $100 assessed valuation in the high school district and $2.25 in the elementary district, he said.

The total tax rates for the past school year, including overrides and bond redemption, were $3.06 in the elementary district and $2.265 in the high school district.

There will be a seventh-eighth grade override tax possibly up to 22 cents per $100 assessed valuation that wasn't levied during the past year.

Plank noted there probably would be override tax increases in both districts to cover increased health insurance payments.

There was no discussion of the budgets as such, since previous discussion covered salaries, the major part of each budget, and board president Herman L. Childress pointed out that the tentative budget is subject to changes.

Plank explained after the meeting that major capital outlay projects have been eliminated from each budget, and there have been some staff reductions.

There will be double kindergarten sessions rather than single sessions and the outdoor education program has been eliminated, he said.

'Youth-O-Rama' Carnival Set

A four-day "Youth-O-Rama" carnival will be sponsored tomorrow through Sunday in Mill Valley by the Mill Valley Optimists Club.

Senator Lauds Medical Students

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Gaylord Nelson praised today medical students at several universities who have rejected free equipment and doctors' bags offered by drug manufacturers.

In remarks prepared for a hearing of his Senate small business monopoly subcommittee, the Wisconsin Democrat said the rejections were "a symbolic protest against what they termed an 'unhealthy relationship' between the drug industry and the medical profession."

The senator said, "there is growing concern . . . that the increasingly close financial relationship between the drug industry and the medical profession may be contrary to the best interests of the profession and public."

Sex Education Included In Proposed Health Program

A wide-ranging family health education program including sex education for San Rafael City Schools from kindergarten through high school was recommended to the San Rafael Board of Education last night.

The program, about two years in the making, was presented by the family health education committee, a group of parents, teachers, social service workers.

James Nelson, assistant superintendent, instructional services, described the recommendations "as the beginning of a program, not the final product."

He said the final program should reflect the wishes of parents, and that teachers must be prepared to undertake the program, and materials must be reviewed continuously.

"The Time of Your Life," a film with controversial portions on sex education is listed as a "suggested film" for grades four and five. Virgil M. Birdsall, principal at John MacPhail School, said that children can be excluded from viewing it if parents object.

Marilyn Juncker, a school nurse, said the schools "need a more complete" health program. Many of the pupils questions go unanswered and "there is a great deal of misinformation," she said.

The schools are aware of the importance of sharing the responsibility "of this phase of education with the family," he said. Nelson pointed out that the responsibility of sex education should be shared with the home, church and community.

Israeli Planes Hit Guerrilla Posts

TIBERIAS, Israel (AP) — Two Israeli war planes skimmed low across the Jordan River today to blast suspected Arab guerrilla positions inside Jordan.

Witnesses said the planes strafed and bombed targets facing Tirat Zvi in the Beisan Valley, 12 miles south of the Sea of Galilee. They said the air attack came after Arabs fired at an Israeli army patrol on the Jordan River cease-fire line.

San Rafael Teachers Due 6 Pct. Increase In Pay

San Rafael Board of Education last night approved a 6 per cent hike in the teachers' salary schedule and a 5 per cent pay raise for nonteaching employees for 1969-70.

Under the new schedule teachers' salaries will range from $6,678 to $13,356.

Board members also agreed that if additional state funds are forthcoming they would consider additional pay hikes if there were at least $100,000 in undistributed reserve in each district. Any further increase would be retroactive to July 1.

Teacher salary costs for the coming year, including the salary schedule increase and the annual step increment, are slated to increase $161,123 in the elementary district and $217,683 in the high school district.

The pay schedule hike is in addition to the annual step increases.

Board members also voted to grant all employees full health insurance for dependents, now only partially covered. Business Mgr. Charles L. Condrotte reported that new health benefits plus an increase in the insurance rates would cost an additional $94,000 in 1969-70.

The health insurance vote was 3-1 with board member John C. Pfeiffer dissenting. Board member Lawrence I. Kramer Jr. was absent.

Pfeiffer favored the plan agreed upon in negotiations with the teachers negotiating council that would have given single employees the option to have income protection instead since they didn't need health insurance for dependents.

Pfeiffer moved that the income protection option be offered, but there was no second.

Plank reported the income protection plan would cost an additional $20,000, and through a quirk wouldn't cut health plan costs but increase them.

Alan Hopkins, a member of the teachers negotiating council, protested saying the income protection option was part of the package agreed upon in negotiations.

He said he had received "reams of letters" from single teachers who were strong for having a benefit equal to the medical coverage for dependents. The matter should be left open for further negotiation, he contended.

There was no salary proposal for administrators since they were covered under a two-year pay program last year, but Plank urged that their salaries be reconsidered if additional funds are available.

The procedure used in granting the increases was challenged by John E. Cascone of 9 Elkin Court.

Pfeiffer, the board's representative to negotiating sessions with teachers, explained he was instructed by fellow board members in closed sessions, and "didn't make the decision on his own."

"The board isn't trying to hide anything or put anything over," Pfeiffer said.

Board president Herman L. Childress said the 6 per cent figure resulted from conferences and Supt. John. F. Plank noted that teachers originally had requested a 19 per cent increase.

Cascone contended there still wasn't enough information available at the board's last session to enable a citizen to discuss the proposal at the board's open session.

Pfeiffer pointed out that last week the board postponed the matter for one week after Cascone's objections.

"I think I echo the feeling of many people who think it's a waste of time to come here," Cascone said.

Hopkins said the proposal was accepted by the negotiating council. "The board made an offer and we accepted it," he reported.

Bus, Boating Strike Front Still Bleak

No improvement was reported yesterday in Marin's troubled transportation outlook.

The Marine Engineers and Beneficial Association, representing ferry, sightseeing and tub boat captains on San Francisco Bay remained on strike, while officials representing striking Greyhound machinists claimed they have halted operations at the bus company garages in Northern California, Reno and Los Angeles.

Federal mediator Jerry Finley met yesterday with tug boat representatives and the MBEA, but recessed the talks without setting a date for another session.

The MBEA is also on strike against Harbor Tours, which operates sightseeing boats on the bay and the Tiburon to San Francisco ferry.

Meanwhile, Fred Martin, chief spokesman for the International Association of Machinists, said Greyhound buses are "beginning to break down and they won't be able to operate much longer."

Greyhound officials denied the claims, saying the garages "are not shut down" and that "service is continuing."

Ankles Sprained In Auto Accident

Ronald E. Krudop, 16, of 1629 San Anselmo Avenue, San Anselmo, was treated for sprained ankles yesterday at Marin General Hospital after a car driven by Edward Weller Schulz, 20, of San Rafael, hit the motorcycle on which Krudop was riding at 1124 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard at about 5:50 p.m., police reported.

Schulz, who lives at 19 Eucalyptus Lane, was cited for following another vehicle too closely, police said.

San Anselmo Council Hears Call For A New $60,000 City Plan

The San Anselmo City Council last night considered a planning commission proposal that the city put up $20,000 — one-third of the cost — toward a new general plan aimed at solving many of the city's problems.

Council members made no decision at a budget session but several of the members seemed favorably inclined.

City Engineer and Public Works Director Charles R. Leitzell and Planning Commission Chairman John F. West spoke of the need for the plan, saying that the 1960 plan was not only outdated and impractical but had not dealt with many problems.

The commission asked that the city put up one-third of the cost of a new plan with the remaining money — $140,000 — to come from federal funds if approved.

An additional $1,000 was asked to put together a "reconnaissance report" done by citizen volunteers which dealt with numerous conditions and problems in the city such as transportation, social conditions, public buildings, storm drains, parks and fire protection.

This extensive report, Leitzell said, could be used as background information for planners and is required for the federal funds.

Leitzell went on to say that the plan idea evolved from his initial move toward updating the city's nonfunctioning and nonexistent storm drains.

"In order to plan for storm drains, one must know how many houses — how many roofs, patios and street are going to be built, necessitating more drains," he explained.

Further, Leitzell thought that the 1960 plan did not relate land use to other problems and provided for a heavier density than is now anticipated.

The downtown section of the plan was not "economically feasible" Leitzell said, since it would have cost $1 million in public funds, and the town's creek was not even considered in the earlier plan.

Judy Emis, representing the Irate Taxpayers, asked how much the 1960 plan had cost. No one could answer her question without looking it up.

West mentioned that city problems were building up as more houses are built on hills where the streets are inadequate. He added that the city has no plannign staff to deal with such problems and that the planning commission wants professional help.

Leitzell said $5,000 from this year's budget which was not spent by the planning commission would be used toward the $20,000 cost of the plan.

Mrs. Emis said she was not against planning but felt that long range expensive plans were a waste of taxpayers' money.

Mayor Woodrow V. Capurro suggested spending only $5,000 a year for such a plan, adding the city had been wanting to buy a new fire engine for a long time.

Leitzell said it is not possible to buy a plan piecemeal.

Councilmen James F. Reed and Kenneth L. Anderson indicated they view favorably such a plan.

In other discussion last night, the council learned from an insurance man, Joseph Sher, that rates for the current health plan for employees will rise prohibitively next year.

He advised councilmen to offer employees a choice of three plans under the state retirement system, all of which are cheaper than the present plan and offer more benefits.

With the money saved the city could offer a dental plan, Sher said.

Councilmen did not commit themselves on this suggestion but suggested Sher meet with city employees before the next budget session, June 26.

Fairfax Council's Budget Mood: Avoid A Tax Raise

Item by item, the Fairfax City Council picked its way last night through the 1969-70 preliminary budget, speaking in penny-pinching tones most of the way.

No action was taken but at 11:30 p.m. Councilman Frank J. Egger put a nightcap on the talks saying, "I have no intention of voting for a tax increase."

He supported this by saying the city has had a 7½ per cent increase in assessed valuation and has no major capital improvements other than on Forrest Avenue.

There was no comment from other councilmen, perhaps because of the late hour, and the council adjourned to Monday at which time it plans to discuss the police and fire budgets. A meeting set for Friday was canceled due to illness of Councilman Cornelis Van Vliet who could not attend last night.

A 6-cent tax increase was proposed June 9 to the council by City Administrator Frances R. Lestanguet. The 1969-70 budget of $539,403 is up $77,491 from the current year's $461,912 and would require increasing the tax rate from $1.74 to $1.80 per $100 valuation.

Total operating revenues for 1969-70 are estimated at $517,939 as compared with 1968-69 estimated revenues of $459,611. Total city expenditures for 1969-70 are $539,403 compared to $454,379 for 1968-69.

Mrs. Lestanguet said she does not recommend any change in the business license ordinance until financial reports come in January, from all licensees paying on a gross basis. Revenues from licenses and permits for 1969-70 are estimated at $22,790 as compared with $22,710 for 1968-69.

Sales tax is estimated in the new budget to increase from $59,000 to $60,000 and cigarette tax from $18,300 to $20,800.

The proposed budget shows $40,000 for restoration of a portion of Forrest Avenue which was damaged in a slide during winter rains.

It also has $16,400 earmarked for resurfacing of San Gabriel Drive, San Gabriel Court, Vista Way, Olema Drive from Sir Francis Drake Boulevard to the city limits and a portion of Cypress Drive.

Councilmen said they plan to set aside $1,100 in the budget as its share of the cities of Marin increase in county-wide animal control, although Councilman Egger commented: "If we do this, we're asking for more double taxation."

Egger said that, of the moneys the county is paying toward animal control, 67 per cent is city money.

The council voted 4-0 to return $130 to the Congress for Community Progress from its current budget on a plea from Joseph Walla in the audience who said the Congress treasurer, who had returned it to the city, had no right to do so.

Councilman Adelaide P. Wilson urged that the two part-time employees who have worked for more than a year be considered for two weeks vacation pay, and Mayor Frank J. O'Connell directed Mrs. Lestanguet to bring back cost estimates on this.

A sum of $960 is in the budget for a secretary for the planning commission and design review board to be paid $20 per meeting and $2,500 for an office secretary for 21 hours per week at $2.25 per hour. The latter would be an added half-time employee.

The budget includes $1,000 for city office floor tile, $403 for police riot control equipment and $1,000 for a city map book. A $100 fan for the Women's Club, where the council meets, was omitted when the council was told the present wiring systems couldn't handle it.

The senior citizen director is to receive $75 per month, a hike of $15 monthly.

North Bay Campus Endorsed

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A resolution urging the University of California to make development of a North Bay campus "an immediate subject of inquiry" won unanimous endorsement yesterday by the Assembly Ways and Means Committee and went to the lower house floor for a vote to send it to the Senate.

The measure (ACR 122), by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, previously was endorsed by the Assembly Education Committee.

Similar measures have been defeated in past years because of opposition by the university, but it is supporting the proposal this year. In previous years, the university reportedly feared such legislation could upset its negotiations for land in southern Sonoma County, but these negotiations apparently were unsuccessful.

Under Bagley's resolution, the campus could go either in Marin, Sonoma, Napa or Solano County. Marin, however, generally is not regarded as a likely location because of the lack of a large parcel of land at a price the university would accept.

Young Cyclist Suffers Fracture

Timothy E. Elliott, 19, of 277 Arias Street, San Rafael, was treated at Marin General Hospital yesterday for a broken ankle and cuts on both hands cuffered when his motorcycle skidded while dodging a car in Terra Linda, the California Highway Patrol said.

Officers said Slliott was on the Terra Linda off-ramp from Highway 101 at 7 p.m. when a car driven by Patricia M. Conway, 34, of 20 Sierra Vista, Novato, pulled into his path from a crossroad.

FAIRFAX PLANS TO SOCK PESTS IN DEER PARK

Yellow jackets in Fairfax's Deer Park area may have a taste of Hawaiian punch this summer.

Fairfax City Councilmen last night approved installation of six yellow jacket bait dispensers in the residential area of Bolinas Road by the Marin County Mosquito Abatement District.

The bait will contain concentrated Hawaiian punch, City Administrator Frances R. Lestanguet reported in addition to other ingredients, "not as strong as DDT."

Fairfax is being used as an experimental city in this trial control, the council was informed.

Officials Get Four Demands In Sacramento

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—City officials today reviewed four demands made by black leaders in the aftermath of violence which hit the city's mostly Negro Oak Park area.

The area continued peaceful last night and early today. Violence Sunday night left a score of persons injured and wounded by gunshots, including 13 police officers.

Demands included:

Changing the name of McClatchy Park, a center of the violence, to Brotherhood Park.

Reducing bail for some of the 37 persons arrested Sunday night and dropping charges for some others.

Replacement by the city of food which Black Panthers said police destroyed in a raid on Panther headquarters.

Policing of Oak Park on an equal basis with other parts of the city.

Collegian Links SDS Officials To Red Line

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A federal Subversive Activities Control Board hearing into the alleged Communist Party connections of two Southern California members of the Students for a Democratic Society entered its second day today as the SDS opened its 1969 party convention in Chicago.

William Tulio Divale, 27, a University of California at Los Angeles anthropology student, told the board yesterday he infiltrated the Communist Party for the FBI and identified the two, Clifford Fried, 26, and David Mares, 22, as elected officials of the Southern California District Communist Party.

The U.S. attorney general has charged Fried, a graduate student at San Fernando Valley State College, was youth chairman of the party in 1968 and that Mares, a student at East Los Angeles Junior College, was active in the party's youth division in 1967 and 1968.

Attorney John Abt of New York, representing Fried and Mares, charged the issue was not whether the two belonged to the Communist Party.

"The important thing is that these people are branded publicly as persons who have renounced allegiance, who are disloyal and subversive, who are seeking the violent overthrow of the government—all of this without any searching inquiry whatsoever," he said.

Abt said the two have engaged in acts "designed to make American democracy work for all people."

He sought unsuccessfully to have the hearing postponed until a Washington, D.C., court case decided the constitutionality of the board.

Divale testified the two held the posts as charged by the attorney general and that Fried was elected a delegate to the party's national convention last April. He said Mares was elected as an alternate delegate.

Divale admitted getting $14,596 from the FBI for his four years as a Communist Party member.

Another witness, Valley State student body president Lawrence B. Labovitz, 22, said he accused Fried of being sent "as a Communist agent to cause violence on the campus" shortly after reading that Fried was being called before the board.

Fried has told newsmen he was a party member but said he would refuse to "tell that damn board up there" that he was.

Mares, who at first said he would boycott the hearing, said he would refuse to tell whether he was a Communist on grounds the board doesn't have the right to ask the question. He said any answer he gave would aid the government in "its campaign to repress the Chicano movement throughout the Southwest."

"No matter what I say, I will be automatically labeled," he said.

An unprecedented number of security officers, some 150 men from six agencies, patroled the federal building where the hearings were being held.

About 300 persons held an orderly demonstration outside the building to protest the hearings. There were no disturbances.

Fairfax Council's Budget Mood: Avoid A Tax Raise

Item by item, the Fairfax City Council picked its way last night through the 1969-70 preliminary budget, speaking in penny-pinching tones most of the way.

No action was taken but at 11:30 p.m. Councilman Frank J. Egger put a nightcap on the talks saying, "I have no intention of voting for a tax increase."

He supported this by saying the city has had a 7½ per cent increase in assessed valuation and has no major capital improvements other than on Forrest Avenue.

There was no comment from other councilmen, perhaps because of the late hour, and the council adjourned to Monday at which time it plans to discuss the police and fire budgets. A meeting set for Friday was canceled due to illness of Councilman Cornelis Van Vliet who could not attend last night.

A 6-cent tax increase was proposed June 9 to the council by City Administrator Frances R. Lestanguet. The 1969-70 budget of $539,403 is up $77,491 from the current year's $461,912 and would require increasing the tax rate from $1.74 to $1.80 per $100 valuation.

Total operating revenues for 1969-70 are estimated at $517,939 as compared with 1968-69 estimated revenues of $459,611. Total city expenditures for 1969-70 are $539,403 compared to $454,379 for 1968-69.

Mrs. Lestanguet said she does not recommend any change in the business license ordinance until financial reports come in January, from all licensees paying on a gross basis. Revenues from licenses and permits for 1969-70 are estimated at $22,790 as compared with $22,710 for 1968-69.

Sales tax is estimated in the new budget to increase from $59,000 to $60,000 and cigarette tax from $18,300 to $20,800.

The proposed budget shows $40,000 for restoration of a portion of Forrest Avenue which was damaged in a slide during winter rains.

It also has $16,400 earmarked for resurfacing of San Gabriel Drive, San Gabriel Court, Vista Way, Olema Drive from Sir Francis Drake Boulevard to the city limits and a portion of Cypress Drive.

Councilmen said they plan to set aside $1,100 in the budget as its share of the cities of Marin increase in county-wide animal control, although Councilman Egger commented: "If we do this, we're asking for more double taxation."

Egger said that, of the moneys the county is paying toward animal control, 67 per cent is city money.

The council voted 4-0 to return $130 to the Congress for Community Progress from its current budget on a plea from Joseph Walla in the audience who said the Congress treasurer, who had returned it to the city, had no right to do so.

Councilman Adelaide P. Wilson urged that the two part-time employees who have worked for more than a year be considered for two weeks vacation pay, and Mayor Frank J. O'Connell directed Mrs. Lestanguet to bring back cost estimates on this.

A sum of $960 is in the budget for a secretary for the planning commission and design review board to be paid $20 per meeting and $2,500 for an office secretary for 21 hours per week at $2.25 per hour. The latter would be an added half-time employee.

The budget includes $1,000 for city office floor tile, $403 for police riot control equipment and $1,000 for a city map book. A $100 fan for the Women's Club, where the council meets, was omitted when the council was told the present wiring systems couldn't handle it.

The senior citizen director is to receive $75 per month, a hike of $15 monthly.

Operation Of Middle School Told

A report on the starting of a middle school was given Monday night to Tomales Bay Union School District trustees by Supt. Ralph E. Nixon.

It was the last meeting of the elementary school district board as it will become a part of the new Shoreline Unified School District on July 1.

Nixon reported that the middle school had English, social studies, mathematics, science, health and Spanish taught to the seventh and eighth grades. Those students also received band, French, art, ceramics, music and journalism at Tomales High School through the cooperation of the high school, he reported.

Next school year, the middle school will be housed in the usable buildings at the present Tomales High School he said. (The Tomales High School will occupy its new building due for completion in July).

The school also started an initial reading research program in kindergarten this year, Nixon reported. This will give the children a head start in reading, he said.

The district, which paid the county counsel $100 for legal work to recover the Bloomfield School bell, has billed the Bloomfield Community Club for its expenses, Nixon said.

A balance of approximately $18,500 will be turned over to the Shoreline District, Nixon said.

HOUSING STUDY

Many Marinites Are Living In City Named Elsewhere

"Teachers city employees, and other workers" in Marin County's 11 cities "live in 'a city named elsewhere' somewhere in Marin County."

This is one of the findings of a county-wide housing study by the Leagues of Women Voters of Central and Southern Marin. From it was drawn the seemingly fanciful name, "A City Named 'Elsewhere'," which the leagues gave to a report of the study delivered this week to city councils.

Most of the report consists of a digest of what has been done on federal, state and local levels toward providing housing for those least able to buy or rent in a steadily inflating home market. This is supplemented by a small section drawn from replies to a questionnaire used in interviewing city government members. It is from the latter that the "City Named Elsewhere" conclusion is drawn.

The league notes that, except in San Rafael, which recently had a special housing census, most city officials and employees know little about the housing problems in their own communities.

"Most cities look at themselves as consisting primarily of single family homes," the leagues report. "Each city sees itself as a stable family community . . .

"The cities recognize that the needs of the elderly and youth are often overlooked. They express great concern for old-time residents who bought when land was cheap and who are in danger of being forced out by high taxes."

Despite this concern, the report shows nothing the cities have done toward alleviating this distress of the "old-time residents."

The only program attacking the need for housing for the elderly has been that undertaken by the Marin County Housing Authority, which has built 36 units in Santa Venetia, 28 units in Homestead Valley, is building 40 in Northgate, and has plan for 40 more just outside Novato. Both the Santa Venetia and Homestead Valley projects have waiting lists, the report notes.

It mentions that San Rafael voters in 1964 approved in a referendum construction of 100 units for the elderly on city-owned land as a strictly city project, but—his was never carried through. The city still owns the land.

Some relief for the elderly is being offered by the leased housing program, also run by the Marin County Housing Authority but with cities cooperating, the report notes. Forty-one elderly couples and 79 other families were housed in such leased units in February of this year.

Housing for minority groups has been dependent principally on Marin City redevelopment, the report shows. It comments that this redevelopment has not gone forward as planned.

Other low-income families have found little help from any program to date except the recently inaugurated leased housing, the study indicates.

Summarizing the housing situation in Marin, the leagues' report says:

"1. There is an imbalance between housing supply and demand.

"2. Whites are moving into Marin County and nonwhites are not.

"3. Costs of housing and land are high and increasing.

"4. Lower income people must commute into Marin to work.

"5. Poverty exists in Marin but it is not obvious."

Library Board Considers Pay

The Petaluma Library Board of Directors last night discussed the possibility of increasing the salary of the head librarian to attract a larger number of applicants.

The board is seeking a replacement for Edna Bovett who retires this month. John W. Cavanagh Jr., a board member, said that in seeking applicants for the position, the board found the salary range of $600 to $831 to be below the Bay Area average.

He asid the board may ask the city council to increase the library budget for next year to accomodate the salary increase.

Operation Of Middle School Told

A report on the starting of a middle school was given Monday night to Tomales Bay Union School District trustees by Supt. Ralph E. Nixon.

It was the last meeting of the elementary school district board as it will become a part of the new Shoreline Unified School District on July 1.

Nixon reported that the middle school had English, social studies, mathematics, science, health and Spanish taught to the seventh and eighth grades. Those students also received band, French, art, ceramics, music and journalism at Tomales High School through the cooperation of the high school, he reported.

Next school year, the middle school will be housed in the usable buildings at the present Tomales High School he said. (The Tomales High School will occupy its new building due for completion in July).

The school also started an initial reading research program in kindergarten this year, Nixon reported. This will give the children a head start in reading, he said.

The district, which paid the county counsel $100 for legal work to recover the Bloomfield School bell, has billed the Bloomfield Community Club for its expenses, Nixon said.

A balance of approximately $18,500 will be turned over to the Shoreline District, Nixon said.

HOUSING STUDY

Many Marinites Are Living In City Named Elsewhere

"Teachers city employees, and other workers" in Marin County's 11 cities "live in 'a city named elsewhere' somewhere in Marin County."

This is one of the findings of a county-wide housing study by the Leagues of Women Voters of Central and Southern Marin. From it was drawn the seemingly fanciful name, "A City Named 'Elsewhere'," which the leagues gave to a report of the study delivered this week to city councils.

Most of the report consists of a digest of what has been done on federal, state and local levels toward providing housing for those least able to buy or rent in a steadily inflating home market. This is supplemented by a small section drawn from replies to a questionnaire used in interviewing city government members. It is from the latter that the "City Named Elsewhere" conclusion is drawn.

The league notes that, except in San Rafael, which recently had a special housing census, most city officials and employees know little about the housing problems in their own communities.

"Most cities look at themselves as consisting primarily of single family homes," the leagues report. "Each city sees itself as a stable family community . . .

"The cities recognize that the needs of the elderly and youth are often overlooked. They express great concern for old-time residents who bought when land was cheap and who are in danger of being forced out by high taxes."

Despite this concern, the report shows nothing the cities have done toward alleviating this distress of the "old-time residents."

The only program attacking the need for housing for the elderly has been that undertaken by the Marin County Housing Authority, which has built 36 units in Santa Venetia, 28 units in Homestead Valley, is building 40 in Northgate, and has plan for 40 more just outside Novato. Both the Santa Venetia and Homestead Valley projects have waiting lists, the report notes.

It mentions that San Rafael voters in 1964 approved in a referendum construction of 100 units for the elderly on city-owned land as a strictly city project, but—his was never carried through. The city still owns the land.

Some relief for the elderly is being offered by the leased housing program, also run by the Marin County Housing Authority but with cities cooperating, the report notes. Forty-one elderly couples and 79 other families were housed in such leased units in February of this year.

Housing for minority groups has been dependent principally on Marin City redevelopment, the report shows. It comments that this redevelopment has not gone forward as planned.

Other low-income families have found little help from any program to date except the recently inaugurated leased housing, the study indicates.

Summarizing the housing situation in Marin, the leagues' report says:

"1. There is an imbalance between housing supply and demand.

"2. Whites are moving into Marin County and nonwhites are not.

"3. Costs of housing and land are high and increasing.

"4. Lower income people must commute into Marin to work.

"5. Poverty exists in Marin but it is not obvious."

Library Board Considers Pay

The Petaluma Library Board of Directors last night discussed the possibility of increasing the salary of the head librarian to attract a larger number of applicants.

The board is seeking a replacement for Edna Bovett who retires this month. John W. Cavanagh Jr., a board member, said that in seeking applicants for the position, the board found the salary range of $600 to $831 to be below the Bay Area average.

He asid the board may ask the city council to increase the library budget for next year to accomodate the salary increase.

Reed Trustees Eye Increase In Budget

The Reed Union School District board last night approved a tentative 1969-70 budget totaling $1,960,797, up $143,000 from this year's budget.

Supt. Robert B. Gaw said no increase in the district's $3.53 per $100 assessed valuation tax rate is anticipated in the proposed budget which was sent to the county schools office for review.

The increase, according to Gaw, reflects salary increases and revenues to pay for the added expenditures will come from increased assessments in the district.

The board also received a report from its year-old citizens committee which recommended that the board appoint standing citizens advisory committees on school programs and finances.

The committee, headed by John McChesney and Robert Imel, also recommended a management survey of district operations by an outside firm and called for the district to continue its educational research.

Gaw said the board will schedule a special session to study the report.

Gaw and his staff gave the board a lengthy detailed report onhthe past two years operation of the middle school pilot project and the board set its July 15 meeting for discussion of plans for the middle school next year.

The Reed School District Board Also:

SALARIES Referred to Gaw for further study a classified salary schedule calling for an across-the-board pay increase of 8 per cent for most employees.

JOINT POWERS — Approved a joint powers agreement with the city of Tiburon and authorized advertising of the agreement.

DATE — Affirmed July 2 as the date for opening bids for reconstruction at Reed School.

LOAN — Approved a $510,790 loan request to the county of meet the district's operating costs until tax revenues are available in December.

HIRING — Authorized Gaw to seek an additional science teacher for Del Mar School and hired Stephen Cederborg as an intern counselor at Bel Aire-Reed School at an annual salary of $7,200.

Water Budget Is Adopted; $775,014 In Income Sought

A budget calling for $775,014 income for fiscal 1969-70 was adopted last night by the North Marin County Water District board, according to Eugene Churchill, manager.

The board voted 3-2 to keep the current tax rate of 15 cents per $100 assessed valuation with Commissioners Frank Baccaglio and Franklin Gustafson voting against. They wanted to lower the rate by two or three cents, Churchill said.

The board deleted a $1,300 item for a water tank from capital expenditures cutting that item from $13,607 to $12,307. It also deleted $16,000 for an additional warehouse building from the capital improvements, cutting that budget from $545,930 to $529,930.

The North Marin Water Board Also:

PIONEER PARK—Received a request from David Price Jones, president of the Novato Civic Foundation, that the district donate labor to install the 1,800 feet of water pipes in Pioneer Memorial Park. Frederick Bold Jr., the district attorney, told the board that he thought it was illegal for the district to spend its labor funds on anything that was not district owned. The board asked the staff to study the problem to see if there was any way the district could legally help the Novato Civic Foundation install the pipe in the park.

EXTENSIONS — Approved extensions to the Seventh-day Adventist Church for the north end of Simmons Lane and for Marrett Boissevain for two lots on Laurie Drive.

WATER USE — Heard a report that water consumption was up from 165 to 183 million gallons in May of this year over May of last year, an increase of 11.1 per cent and that water users had increased from 8,308 last year to 8,704 this year, a hike of 4.8 per cent.

WATER — Received a report that aeration recently put into Stafford Lake has shown a better quality of water and lower use of chlorine to purify it.

Reading Of Viet Dead Completed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Antiwar protesters completed this morning the reading of the list of military dead in Vietnam after spending most of the night on the lawn in front of the Pentagon.

Working in two shifts, the group sponsored by Clergy and Laymen Concerned About Vietnam read off the last of more than 35,000 names without incident.

Police guards stood on the Pentagon steps and kept an eye on the proceedings but left the group, varying in size from six to a dozen, to its own activities.

The "read-out" started at 2 p.m. yesterday inside the Pentagon concourse, an area largely occupied by shops, banks, bus terminals and other facilities for the benefit of Pentagon employees.

150 Scientists Urge Ban On DDT Pesticide

STANFORD (AP) — A group of 150 physicians and biologists from six schools is urging that use of the pesticide DDT be banned.

Five other scientists are defending the pesticide, but agree that its use should be minimized because of possible damage to fish and wildlife.

A statement by the larger group of scientists was released yesterday by Dr. Norman Kretchmer, chairman of Stanford University's department of pediatrics, and Dr. Robert Schimke, a Stanford pharmacologist.

It was signed by scientists at Stanford, the Salk Institute in San Diego, the UC Medical School, UCLA, UC San Diego and San Francisco State College.

At the University of California in Berkeley, the DDT defenders urged against banning the pesticide, saying it is vital to food production, essential in the fight against insect-borne diseases, and a must for California cotton crops.

State's Consumer Counsel Says She's Content With Small Office

California's consumer counsel, operating with a skeleton staff and budget, insisted yesterday she was content with the way her office is run under the Reagan administration.

Mrs. Kay Valory, Lafayette mother of six, said she and Gov. Ronald Reagan were in complete agreement in the role government should play in solving consumers' problems. (During his 1966 campaign, Reagan indicated he doubted the necessity of the office of consumer counsel.)

Mrs. Valory noted that she operated with one assistant and an annual budget of $33,000, compared with a staff of 13 and a $120,000 budget during the Brown administration.

She was appointed in January 1967, replacing the state's first consumer counsel, Mrs. Helen Nelson, formerly of Mill Valley.

Mrs. Valory, in a press conference at the Novato home of her brother, Keith C. Craig, an investigator in the county coroner's office, spent most of her time defending her failure to take a position on an Assembly bill to increase interest rates.

She said she was on top of all legislation affecting consumers, but that AB 1850 was "sneaked through."

The bill by Assemblyman Walter W. Powers, D-Sacramento, would hike the maximum interest rate on purchases under $1,000 from 10 to 12 per cent a year. Last Tuesday, however, Powers shelved his bill because of strong opposition by voters throughout the state.

Mrs. Valory, claiming she had not been able to obtain any additional information about the bill, which was introduced on April 7, said "it would be ludicrous" to testify against it without first discussing it with the governor's office.

The 50-year-old Republican noted she commutes to her Sacramento job from her home in Contra Costa Country, but often works at home. She is paid $18,000 a year.

Mrs. Valory said she is working on a film to teach ninth grade pupils about "buying on time," and is considering creating of a bureau to regulate repair of all electric appliances.

Asked her advice to housewives on high beef prices, she said, "Don't buy it for a while." Consumers should not buy poor quality or high-priced food, she said.

King Tap Had RFK Nod—FBI

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A top FBI official said today that a government wiretap put on telephone calls of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., in 1964 had the specific approval of Robert F. Kennedy, who then was attorney general.

Clyde A. Tolson, associate director of the FBI, made the statement in a letter to syndicated columnist Carl T. Rowan and the Washington Star, objecting to a column by Rowan which appeared Sunday in the Star.

Rowan's column was titled "It is Time for J. Edgar Hoover to Go." In it, he cited the wiretapping of King as an example of why Hoover should resign.

Four Youths Arrested In Burglary Case

Four Mill Valley youths have been arrested as suspects in the burglary Sunday of the home of Raymond F. Douglas at 125 Stanford Avenue, Mill Valley, sheriff's deupties said today.

Booked into Marin County jail on suspicion of burglary were Gary Phillip Walter, 19, of 206 Chapman Drive and James Robert Underhill, 21, of 110 Evergreen Avenue.

Eric Brian Saterlie, 17, of 312 Starling Road and Steven John Roll, 16, of 107 California Avenue were turned over to juvenile authorities.

Deupties said neighbors saw the youths near the house, heard a window break and saw two of the young men leaving the house. Armed with baseball bats, two neighbors looked for the youths, who were arrested the next day by deputies after their truck was seen in Mill Valley.

Missing from the Douglas home were liquor, a clock radio and cash.

Walter and Underhill were released from jail on their own recognizance to appear in Marin Municipal Court today.

150 Scientists Urge Ban On DDT Pesticide

STANFORD (AP) — A group of 150 physicians and biologists from six schools is urging that use of the pesticide DDT be banned.

Five other scientists are defending the pesticide, but agree that its use should be minimized because of possible damage to fish and wildlife.

A statement by the larger group of scientists was released yesterday by Dr. Norman Kretchmer, chairman of Stanford University's department of pediatrics, and Dr. Robert Schimke, a Stanford pharmacologist.

It was signed by scientists at Stanford, the Salk Institute in San Diego, the UC Medical School, UCLA, UC San Diego and San Francisco State College.

At the University of California in Berkeley, the DDT defenders urged against banning the pesticide, saying it is vital to food production, essential in the fight against insect-borne diseases, and a must for California cotton crops.

State's Consumer Counsel Says She's Content With Small Office

California's consumer counsel, operating with a skeleton staff and budget, insisted yesterday she was content with the way her office is run under the Reagan administration.

Mrs. Kay Valory, Lafayette mother of six, said she and Gov. Ronald Reagan were in complete agreement in the role government should play in solving consumers' problems. (During his 1966 campaign, Reagan indicated he doubted the necessity of the office of consumer counsel.)

Mrs. Valory noted that she operated with one assistant and an annual budget of $33,000, compared with a staff of 13 and a $120,000 budget during the Brown administration.

She was appointed in January 1967, replacing the state's first consumer counsel, Mrs. Helen Nelson, formerly of Mill Valley.

Mrs. Valory, in a press conference at the Novato home of her brother, Keith C. Craig, an investigator in the county coroner's office, spent most of her time defending her failure to take a position on an Assembly bill to increase interest rates.

She said she was on top of all legislation affecting consumers, but that AB 1850 was "sneaked through."

The bill by Assemblyman Walter W. Powers, D-Sacramento, would hike the maximum interest rate on purchases under $1,000 from 10 to 12 per cent a year. Last Tuesday, however, Powers shelved his bill because of strong opposition by voters throughout the state.

Mrs. Valory, claiming she had not been able to obtain any additional information about the bill, which was introduced on April 7, said "it would be ludicrous" to testify against it without first discussing it with the governor's office.

The 50-year-old Republican noted she commutes to her Sacramento job from her home in Contra Costa Country, but often works at home. She is paid $18,000 a year.

Mrs. Valory said she is working on a film to teach ninth grade pupils about "buying on time," and is considering creating of a bureau to regulate repair of all electric appliances.

Asked her advice to housewives on high beef prices, she said, "Don't buy it for a while." Consumers should not buy poor quality or high-priced food, she said.

King Tap Had RFK Nod–FBI

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A top FBI official said today that a government wiretap put on telephone calls of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., in 1964 had the specific approval of Robert F. Kennedy, who then was attorney general.

Clyde A. Tolson, associate director of the FBI, made the statement in a letter to syndicated columnist Carl T. Rowan and the Washington Star, objecting to a column by Rowan which appeared Sunday in the Star.

Rowan's column was titled "It is Time for J. Edgar Hoover to Go." In it, he cited the wiretapping of King as an example of why Hoover should resign.

Four Youths Arrested In Burglary Case

Four Mill Valley youths have been arrested as suspects in the burglary Sunday of the home of Raymond F. Douglas at 125 Stanford Avenue, Mill Valley, sheriff's deupties said today.

Booked into Marin County jail on suspicion of burglary were Gary Phillip Walter, 19, of 206 Chapman Drive and James Robert Underhill, 21, of 110 Evergreen Avenue.

Eric Brian Saterlie, 17, of 312 Starling Road and Steven John Roll, 16, of 107 California Avenue were turned over to juvenile authorities.

Deupties said neighbors saw the youths near the house, heard a window break and saw two of the young men leaving the house. Armed with baseball bats, two neighbors looked for the youths, who were arrested the next day by deputies after their truck was seen in Mill Valley.

Missing from the Douglas home were liquor, a clock radio and cash.

Walter and Underhill were released from jail on their own recognizance to appear in Marin Municipal Court today.

Former Music Chest Artist Found Dead

The body of Brian Sullivan, an operatic tenor from Oakland who had appeared several times at the Marin Music Chest summer series, was found by police in Lake Geneva, Switzerland, according to the American embassy in Bern, which did not specify a date of death.

Sullivan, 49, had gone to Geneva to sing the role of Siegfried in Wagner's "Gotterdammerung"; however another singer received the part.

Sullivan performed 16 years with the New York Metropolitan Opera. He sang in 1959, 1960 and 1966 in concerts at the summer series at Forest Meadows.

His musical career ranged from Wagnerian opera to the Broadway musical "Show Boat" and "Street Scene." He also appeared in the early 1940s in two movies, "Courage of Lassie" and "This Man's Navy."

Having studied voice at the University of Southern California, he sang in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer chorus.

Thought It Was Just A Hard Sell

REDDITCH, England (AP) — Housewife Maureen Leopard, 21, thought it was a stunt when Anthony Reynolds, 26, a fire extinguisher salesman, grabbed one of his samples, knocked on the door and told her the roof was on fire. Reynolds finally convinced her to let him in to put out the blaze he had spotted from his car.

"I hadn't seen any flames," Mrs. Leopold said.

When the British advanced upon Washington in 1814, and burned the capitol, Mrs. Dolly Madison, wife of President James Madison, did not leave the White House until she had removed a portrait of George Washington and the Declaration of Independence.

Impasse In Talks On Teacher Pay

The Novato Teacher Association has announced salary scale negotiation with the Novato Unified School District board has reached an impasse. The association has not decided on a course of action, Donald White, president, said today.

Whate said he could not outline a course of action for the teachers until he had conferred with John A. Townsley, representative of the California Teachers Association with which the NTA is affiliated.

The teachers might ask that arbitrators be appointed to settle the differences between the strikes but in sanctions, he said.

The CTA does not believe in strikes but in sactions, he said.

Lost Boy, 6, Found Alive In Snow Patch

SAN BERNARDINO (AP) A 6-year-old boy missing in mountains since Saturday was found today lying in a snow patch. Authorities said he stopped breathing while being taken by helicopter to a hospital and was given mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

Upon arrival, a team of doctors worked over Matthew Joseph Zimmerman. They said he was in serious condition suffering from exposure.

Two youths, volunteer searchers from San Bernardino, found the boy about 9 a.m. at an altitude of more than a mile high near Barton Flats, where snow still lingers in patches from a record winter fall.

At first the lad's condition was reported as good, and tears came to the eyes of men at a base camp for a four-day search. Later, however, came unofficial word his condition was "not good."

Sheriff's Sgt. Ollie Gray, traveling in the copter with the boy, gave the mouth-to-mouth resuscitation in the copter and continued until he was taken to a clinic at Norton Air Force Base.

The boy wandered away Saturday from a campground where his family was on an outing.

GIFTS FOR THE VICE PRESIDENT

And what did the nation's No. 2 office holder do yesterday? Well he traveled to Tarpon Springs, Fla., a city founded by immigrant Greek sponge divers. There he received some gifts and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew is holding one of them — a giant sponge. Agnew, of Greek-American lineage, also was given a model sponge boat, which he said would go on display in his Washington office. (AP Wirephoto)

'42's Bearded Rebel Is 1969's Proud, Conformist Executive

By LEO SOROKA

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—What a difference 27 years make.

In 1942, William Farrelly was a rebel on the campus of St. Louis University. Today he is a 46-year-old executive in a St. Louis sportswear firm, father of four children and a proud social conformist.

The fact is that what made him a "rebel" in 1942 would have him simply a conformist in 1969.

Farrelly's revolt against the Establishment was that he grew a beard.

Assistant Dean Wilfrid Mallon told the youth to get rid of the beard or get out of the university.

It stirred quite a storm.

The then first lady, Eleanor Roosevelt, and Bernard Baruch, the noted adviser to presidents, wrote letters of encouragement to Farrelly. The St. Louis Post-Dispatch championed his case. "Growing a beard," the newspaper said, "is not a minor freedom but a major masculine prerogative, like chewing tobacco."

"When I was in school," he says, "there were certain guidelines which were not unreasonable to students to follow. If one goes outside those guidelines and they ask you to conform . . . why, then it's incumbent upon students to do so; otherwise, to go somewhere else."

Yet back in 1942, Farrelly remembers, "it was springtime." In the spring of earlier years, some young men swallowed gold fish. Farrelly just felt like growing a beard.

While Dean Mallon frowned upon the bearded Farrelly, the Post-Dispatch was editorially eloquent in his defense.

"If smooth-shaven cheeks were made an entrance requirement" at the Jesuit institution, the Post-Dispatch said, "a varied but great company would be excluded."

It listed George Bernard Shaw, several of the apostles, Buffalo Bill, Michelangelo, U. S. Grant and the late King George of England as undesirables who "would have had to turn regretfully from its gates."

"And research reveals that, on the dean's terms, Ignatius Loyola himself, distinguished founder of the Jesuit order, would have to enroll elsewhere," the Post-Dispatch's editorialist wrote.

The writer was not to be deterred by Mallon's claim that the Farrelly beard was "scraggly."

"A beard, like grass in springtime, often comes out 'scraggly,'" he wrote. "Careful cultivation and currying, however, make all the difference in the world. In time, it becomes soft, as luxuriant, as glossy as beaver fur or a blue grass lawn."

It was the assistant dean, nonetheless, who won the argument, and these days Farrelly feels no kinship with campus rebels, bearded or otherwise.

"I hope to teach my children to respect the rules and regulations they voluntarily subscribe to in going to school," he says.

"Every unit of families has its rules and regulations, the same with communities and businesss corporations, and we learn to live with a set of rules all our lives.

"To try to change these rules by force is not the proper way. There has to be a rapport between students and the administration to assure any change in orderly fashion."

Still, the bearded rebel of 1942 has words of comfort for the fathers of the rebels of 1969:

"Every generation of students will have some sort of fad that will be decried by the public at large as frivolous or even seditious. The nonconformist today will be the corporate executive of tomorrow, looking askance at his youngsters."

Dong Kingman Stands Tall As U.S. Artist

NEW YORK (UPI)—In Hong Kong they consider artist Dong Kingman a native son. San Franciscans believe he lives in Chinatown and spends his time just painting the city's million views.

In New York, where he does live, his watercolors are sold out before every exhibition.

He turns up in Buenos Aires, Madrid, Lima, Paris, Acapulco, Tokyo, New Delhi. He stands behind the cameras when movies are shot on location, sketchbook busy and tongue firmly in cheek. His art graces major art museums and the covers of top magazines. His prices are four figures and up.

Kingman is a quiet, five-foot-one-inch dynamo who combines talent with a sly sense of humor and an ability not to take the term "art" too seriously. The results are a highly mobile life style that includes talking a film company out of $80,000 for rent of a 90-foot-long Times Square billboard with the name Dong Kingman 10 feet high, and that of the movie company a good deal smaller.

His various financially fattening activities—including that of technical advisor to movies—get a quick explanation: "I only work for people who pay me a lot of money."

At 58, Dong appears in his early 40s. During a recent interview he listened intently to questions while his eyes swept the crowded restaurant. He quickly sketched an animated type at the bar, marking the coat sleeve "brown."

"Maybe I'll use this later," he said. "Then I can remember the color."

In his paintings Dong combines his knowledge of Western cities and tempo with his natural talent for Oriental detail and lavish color. The results are impressions of city life, often filled with a subtle whimsy some persons find hard to understand when it comes from someone who can be inscrutably Oriental at times.

His first one-man show in 1935 in San Francisco was praised by the art ctitics, but it didn't put bread on the table in the depths of the depression.

"The WPA helped me get established as a painter," he explained. "With one wife you were entitled to $88.75 a month, with a child, $90, or something like that. All you had to do was report to the federal project, pick up paper and paints and go home, them come back the next day and say, I painted for eight hours."

After World War II, Kingman paintings became collectors' items.

"The first painting I sold—of three apples—went for $1.50. Later I sold a painting with 11 apples for $500—that's inflation," he said with a smile. "It's also good advice—buy paintings when the artist is unknown."

GIFTS FOR THE VICE PRESIDENT

And what did the nation's No. 2 office holder do yesterday? Well he traveled to Tarpon Springs, Fla., a city founded by immigrant Greek sponge divers. There he received some gifts and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew is holding one of them — a giant sponge. Agnew, of Greek-American lineage, also was given a model sponge boat, which he said would go on display in his Washington office. (AP Wirephoto)

Dong Kingman Stands Tall As U.S. Artist

NEW YORK (UPI)—In Hong Kong they consider artist Dong Kingman a native son. San Franciscans believe he lives in Chinatown and spends his time just painting the city's million views.

In New York, where he does live, his watercolors are sold out before every exhibition.

He turns up in Buenos Aires, Madrid, Lima, Paris, Acapulco, Tokyo, New Delhi. He stands behind the cameras when movies are shot on location, sketchbook busy and tongue firmly in cheek. His art graces major art museums and the covers of top magazines. His prices are four figures and up.

Kingman is a quiet, five-foot-one-inch dynamo who combines talent with a sly sense of humor and an ability not to take the term "art" too seriously. The results are a highly mobile life style that includes talking a film company out of $80,000 for rent of a 90-foot-long Times Square billboard with the name Dong Kingman 10 feet high, and that of the movie company a good deal smaller.

His various financially fattening activities—including that of technical advisor to movies—get a quick explanation: "I only work for people who pay me a lot of money."

At 58, Dong appears in his early 40s. During a recent interview he listened intently to questions while his eyes swept the crowded restaurant. He quickly sketched an animated type at the bar, marking the coat sleeve "brown."

"Maybe I'll use this later," he said. "Then I can remember the color."

In his paintings Dong combines his knowledge of Western cities and tempo with his natural talent for Oriental detail and lavish color. The results are impressions of city life, often filled with a subtle whimsy some persons find hard to understand when it comes from someone who can be inscrutably Oriental at times.

His first one-man show in 1935 in San Francisco was praised by the art ctitics, but it didn't put bread on the table in the depths of the depression.

"The WPA helped me get established as a painter," he explained. "With one wife you were entitled to $88.75 a month, with a child, $90, or something like that. All you had to do was report to the federal project, pick up paper and paints and go home, them come back the next day and say, I painted for eight hours."

After World War II, Kingman paintings became collectors' items.

"The first painting I sold—of three apples—went for $1.50. Later I sold a painting with 11 apples for $500—that's inflation," he said with a smile. "It's also good advice—buy paintings when the artist is unknown."

'42's Bearded Rebel Is 1969's Proud, Conformist Executive

By LEO SOROKA

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—What a difference 27 years make.

In 1942, William Farrelly was a rebel on the campus of St. Louis University. Today he is a 46-year-old executive in a St. Louis sportswear firm, father of four children and a proud social conformist.

The fact is that what made him a "rebel" in 1942 would have him simply a conformist in 1969.

Farrelly's revolt against the Establishment was that he grew a beard.

Assistant Dean Wilfrid Mallon told the youth to get rid of the beard or get out of the university.

It stirred quite a storm.

The then first lady, Eleanor Roosevelt, and Bernard Baruch, the noted adviser to presidents, wrote letters of encouragement to Farrelly. The St. Louis Post-Dispatch championed his case. "Growing a beard," the newspaper said, "is not a minor freedom but a major masculine prerogative, like chewing tobacco."

"When I was in school," he says, "there were certain guidelines which were not unreasonable to students to follow. If one goes outside those guidelines and they ask you to conform . . . why, then it's incumbent upon students to do so; otherwise, to go somewhere else."

Yet back in 1942, Farrelly remembers, "it was springtime." In the spring of earlier years, some young men swallowed gold fish. Farrelly just felt like growing a beard.

While Dean Mallon frowned upon the bearded Farrelly, the Post-Dispatch was editorially eloquent in his defense.

"If smooth-shaven cheeks were made an entrance requirement" at the Jesuit institution, the Post-Dispatch said, "a varied but great company would be excluded."

It listed George Bernard Shaw, several of the apostles, Buffalo Bill, Michelangelo, U. S. Grant and the late King George of England as undesirables who "would have had to turn regretfully from its gates."

"And research reveals that, on the dean's terms, Ignatius Loyola himself, distinguished founder of the Jesuit order, would have to enroll elsewhere," the Post-Dispatch's editorialist wrote.

The writer was not to be deterred by Mallon's claim that the Farrelly beard was "scraggly."

"A beard, like grass in springtime, often comes out 'scraggly,'" he wrote. "Careful cultivation and currying, however, make all the difference in the world. In time, it becomes soft, as luxuriant, as glossy as beaver fur or a blue grass lawn."

It was the assistant dean, nonetheless, who won the argument, and these days Farrelly feels no kinship with campus rebels, bearded or otherwise.

"I hope to teach my children to respect the rules and regulations they voluntarily subscribe to in going to school," he says.

"Every unit of families has its rules and regulations, the same with communities and businesss corporations, and we learn to live with a set of rules all our lives.

"To try to change these rules by force is not the proper way. There has to be a rapport between students and the administration to assure any change in orderly fashion."

Still, the bearded rebel of 1942 has words of comfort for the fathers of the rebels of 1969:

"Every generation of students will have some sort of fad that will be decried by the public at large as frivolous or even seditious. The nonconformist today will be the corporate executive of tomorrow, looking askance at his youngsters."

Would-Be German Heart Donor Much Alive Today

BERLIN (GF) — Werner Ullrich, a 36-year-old postal official here, nearly became Germany's first heart transplant donor last Dec. 20. But now, nearly six months later, Ullrich is very much alive, his condition improving.

Much of the credit belongs to Prof. E. S. Buecherl, the heart surgeon who was preparing to transfer Ullrich's heart to a recipient at West Berlin's Neukoelln Hospital. Buecherl is the director of West Berlin University's Surgical and Outpatients' Clinic.

Ullrich was delivered to Neukoelln after being struck by a car in the city. He was tossed 65 feet through the air in the accident and had already been pronounced clinically dead before arrival at the hsopital.

Had Buecherl have operated he would have become the first German doctor to have performed a heart transplant. But he and his team of assistants decided to hold off just a while longer after noting Ullrich still showed very slight, irregular and nearly indetectible brain activity. For Ullrich, whose death was all but 100 per cent certain even with such minimal brain registrations, the decision was to prove crucial.

Heart massage and a heart-lung machine were applied to the post office official while the prospective recipient was given an injection of antibody serum preparatory to the heart exchange. Soon Ullrich began to show stronger signs of life and two weeks later Buecherl and his team were able to report a decided improvement in the man's condition. At that point Ullrich lost all qualification for becoming a heart donor.

And Buecherl had lost a chance of becoming the first German surgeon to follow in Dr. Christiaan Barnard's footsteps. A few weeks later a team of surgeons at Munich University became the country's first to perform the feat.

Still, Buecherl now has two famous patients to his credit: a potential heart donor who's on the road to recovery and a potential heart recipient — who incidentally has also shown improvement more recently.

The Mill Valley Human Rights Commission will discuss jobs for minority groups and the "open campus" issue at Tamalpais High School when it meets at 8 p.m. today at the city council chamber.

Trustees Get Budget For Schools

A tentative budget of $9,286,543 for fiscal 1969-70 was submitted Monday night to the Novato Unified School District trustees by Supt. James G. Bunker.

This budget is $59,626 more than the $9,226,917 preliminary budget submitted on May 26.

It adds approximately $225,000 for increased salaries and cuts other items in the budget to compensate for part of this increase, Bunker said.

The board received the budget for study but took no action on it, Bunker said.

The Novato Unified School District board also:

AUDIOVISUAL — Approved the annual contract for audio visual service at $1.75 per average daily attendance with the Marin County schools office.

SUBSTITUTES' PAY — Received a request from the Marin County Substitute Teachers Association that they receive the equivalent of a beginning teacher's salary. The substitutes are now paid $25 per day.

GIFT — Accepted a gift of racks for records and paper back books for the Marion School library from the Marion School Parent-Teacher Association.

YEARBOOKS — Received copies of the first yearbook from San Marin High School from teacher John F. Yardas.

Tuner, Amplifier Stolen From Home

Police said thieves gained entry by forcing open a window sometime between 7:30 a.m. and 5:45 p.m.

Would-Be German Heart Donor Much Alive Today

BERLIN (GF) — Werner Ullrich, a 36-year-old postal official here, nearly became Germany's first heart transplant donor last Dec. 20. But now, nearly six months later, Ullrich is very much alive, his condition improving.

Much of the credit belongs to Prof. E. S. Buecherl, the heart surgeon who was preparing to transfer Ullrich's heart to a recipient at West Berlin's Neukoelln Hospital. Buecherl is the director of West Berlin University's Surgical and Outpatients' Clinic.

Ullrich was delivered to Neukoelln after being struck by a car in the city. He was tossed 65 feet through the air in the accident and had already been pronounced clinically dead before arrival at the hsopital.

Had Buecherl have operated he would have become the first German doctor to have performed a heart transplant. But he and his team of assistants decided to hold off just a while longer after noting Ullrich still showed very slight, irregular and nearly indetectible brain activity. For Ullrich, whose death was all but 100 per cent certain even with such minimal brain registrations, the decision was to prove crucial.

Heart massage and a heart-lung machine were applied to the post office official while the prospective recipient was given an injection of antibody serum preparatory to the heart exchange. Soon Ullrich began to show stronger signs of life and two weeks later Buecherl and his team were able to report a decided improvement in the man's condition. At that point Ullrich lost all qualification for becoming a heart donor.

And Buecherl had lost a chance of becoming the first German surgeon to follow in Dr. Christiaan Barnard's footsteps. A few weeks later a team of surgeons at Munich University became the country's first to perform the feat.

Still, Buecherl now has two famous patients to his credit: a potential heart donor who's on the road to recovery and a potential heart recipient — who incidentally has also shown improvement more recently.

Minority Issues

The Mill Valley Human Rights Commission will discuss jobs for minority groups and the "open campus" issue at Tamalpais High School when it meets at 8 p.m. today at the city council chamber.

Trustees Get Budget For Schools

A tentative budget of $9,286,543 for fiscal 1969-70 was submitted Monday night to the Novato Unified School District trustees by Supt. James G. Bunker.

This budget is $59,626 more than the $9,226,917 preliminary budget submitted on May 26.

It adds approximately $225,000 for increased salaries and cuts other items in the budget to compensate for part of this increase, Bunker said.

The board received the budget for study but took no action on it, Bunker said.

The Novato Unified School District board also:

AUDIOVISUAL — Approved the annual contract for audio visual service at $1.75 per average daily attendance with the Marin County schools office.

SUBSTITUTES' PAY — Received a request from the Marin County Substitute Teachers Association that they receive the equivalent of a beginning teacher's salary. The substitutes are now paid $25 per day.

GIFT — Accepted a gift of racks for records and paper back books for the Marion School library from the Marion School Parent-Teacher Association.

YEARBOOKS — Received copies of the first yearbook from San Marin High School from teacher John F. Yardas.

Tuner, Amplifier Stolen From Home

A $140 stereo tuner and amplifier was taken from the home of Greda Ammann of 278 Maynard Drive, Mill Valley, yesterday, police said today.

Police said thieves gained entry by forcing open a window sometime between 7:30 a.m. and 5:45 p.m.

NEED SCHOOL FUNDS

Tiny Elk Grove, Los Angeles Facing Same Problem—Money

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Whether you use new math or old math, there's only one answer to the basic arithmetic facing California's local school districts: more money. But the taxpayer is balking. Here is a report.)

By JAMES BOW

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Sprawling Los Angeles and tiny Elk Grove share the same problem this year: they can't find enough money to run their schools.

Paying for public schools in California is becoming a problem so grave, so persistent that leading educators and some legislators say state financing is the only hope.

"The real answer to the problems of Los Angeles schools—indeed to the problems of education in all of California—can be found only in Sacramento," says Supt. Jack Crowther of Los Angeles city schools.

Raising local taxes or selling school bonds isn't the answer this year in Los Angeles or in the Sacramento County town of Elk Grove, or in many cities where voters also have rejected spending more on education.

Since mid-April, 28 school finance ballot proposals have been rejected in the state's seven largest counties. Twenty were approved.

Back in 1967-68, the California Teachers Association reports, there were many failures at the polls, but the total score was better: 160 tax increases or bond issues approved, compared to 138 failures.

For school bonds alone, however, failures have outnumbered successes for some time. The local bond issues require approval by two-thirds of the voters, while tax increases over the routine legal maximum require a simple majority.

Why does the rate of unsuccessful school tax or school bond elections seem to be increasing?

"I think it's high taxes, if you ask me," says Paul Hoyenga, a school construction finance specialist who is doing a study of the problem for the state Education Department.

Despite state support expected to rise above $1.6 billion next year, local property taxpayers still bear the biggest burden for school costs—more than $2 billion.

Hoyenga and some educators complain that school finance elections are the only chance taxpayers have to take a direct stand against the high cost of government.

"The kids are getting the brunt of that attitude," says Supt. Glenn R. Houde of Elk Grove.

Some taxpayers won't admit they oppose school construction bonds, but vote against them at the polls. Some complain priorities for school spending are wrong: some want better buildings and less busing to achieve integration; others want more busing and fewer frills on buildings; some gripe about the salaries paid administrators.

And, in Los Angeles, some opponents to school spending cited recent public school student demonstrations and said the city should learn to run its existing schools before building new ones.

Some men who operate California schools say the problem would be solved if the state would return to its former tradition of paying half the cost of local education. The state foots less than half the bill now — $1.6 billion of a total $4.2 billion.

Others want more sweeping changes, revising the whole system of collecting and distributing school money.

Most agree the pressures are mounting.

"It is our unpleasant task to confront parents unhappy with the quality of their children's education, militant students disillusioned with the educational system, distressed taxpayers opposed to the level of their property taxes and well-organized employees determined to whiplash us into the best possible set of salary and fringe benefits," says Brooks Lockhart, a Monterey school board member and president of the California School Boards Association.

School pressures, and school finance problems, aren't new in California, or in the nation since a so-called "taxpayers' revolt" began four or five years ago.

But this year, for the first time in state history a school board has voted for deficit financing. Los Angeles schools will go $5 million into the red next year, unless they get more money from the state.

After a series of unsuccessful school finance elections, Los Angeles schools also face $22.1 million in budget cuts. Even with spending beyond the budget, Los Angeles expects to cut 150 to 175 teachers from the payroll next year.

Sacramento voters last winter rejected spending more money on schools. Several younger teachers are expected to be fired to keep the district within next year's budget.

In Elk Grove, voters last week rejected a 75-cent tax rate increase by 1,989 to 1,813. The new money would have provided $600,000 to meet an expected $200,000 deficit next year and carry out improvements recommended by a citizens' group.

The new Elk Grove tax rate would have been $2.95 per $100 of assessed valuation — about average for the state. This means that if a family owns a $25,000 home and it is assessed at $6,250 — one fourth of market value — the school tax would be $182.58.

Houde says that a special problem for his district was the opposition by owners of highly-taxed agricultural land.

Each failure offers variations of the "taxpayers' revolt:"

Opponents of replacing old school buildings which don't meet earthquake safety standards set by the Legislature say state government should pay the cost.

Opponents in Sacramento questioned the priorities for spending new tax money as much as the tax increase itself. Should the city have a new educational park, a complex of schools in one location? Should teachers' salaries keep going up?

But in San Diego, Hoyenga reports, "We couldn't find anybody who would admit to voting no" on school bonds, although the measure was defeated.

Hoyenga's figures show $470 million in school bond proposals defeated so far this year, including elections in San Diego, Los Angeles, Pasadena, Alhambra, Salinas, San Jose, Oroville and Marysville-Yuba City.

The school money crisis doesn't mean an imminent deluge of illiterate, totally unprepared graduates in 1970. It does mean that some schools can't plan ahead, can't keep the best teachers, can't give the best education possible in a wealthy state and can't meet the pressures and demands of parents, students, ghetto leaders and teachers.

To some, the problem isn't so grave. State Finance Department forecasts have predicted for some years a leveling off of the annual school population increase. Migration to the state is slowing down and the generation of the wartime and postwar baby boom is finishing its schooling.

Max Rafferty, state school superintendent, reports that these trends may lead to a surplus of teachers in the next few years.

The real problem, according to Republican Sen. John G. Schmitz of Tustin, is "the education lobby ... By constant pressure, it has persuaded many legislators that every year there must be a special extra spending bill, over and above the budget bill, to give tens of hundreds of millions more dollars to the schools, and to set up new programs providing more lucrative school jobs."

Both Sacramento and Los Angeles school boards have included teacher pay increases in their budgets, despite cuts in music, art or athletics. In Sacramento, top pay for a tiny percentage of teachers would be $15,000—closing in on a journeyman plumber's wages.

Gov. Ronald Reagan proposes to spend $105.5 million in extra school aid next year. Rafferty and the CTA want to spend an extra $378 million.

Other school aid proposals in the Legislature call for a statewide property tax to take money from rich school districts and distribute it among poorer districts — and reduce local property taxes.

The school boards association backs a bill providing a statewide property tax for schools plus $360 million in direct state aid.

Supporters of most innovations for paying school costs admit they don't have much hope of immediate success. In the meantime, school boards will have to cut and balance budgets and count on more resentment at the polls.

Resentment by voters questions higher teacher salaries at the expense of programs in music or language; new auditoriums rather than new classrooms, or higher administrators' pay at the expense of teacher pay.

The circle of resentment never quite straightens out. The priorities can't satisfy most of the voters, much less all of them.

Attempts at school busing to achieve racial integration occasionally anger Negro parents, whose own children must travel to other neighborhoods while white pupils continue to go to school near home.

Busing and other integration plans anger some white parents — prejudiced or not — who want money for their own schools.

"I don't think the public really realizes what it's asking through the schools," says Republican Assemblyman Victor V. Veysey of Brawley in the Imperial Valley.

"We used to educate only one-half of our young people through high school," he adds. "Now we demand a no-reject type of education."

And the demands are much more: integration; no integration at the expense of neighborhood schools; job training to keep young persons off the welfare rolls; no job training if it interferes with quality education; sex education; no sex education without strict moral guidelines.

"I'm on the problem," Hoyenga says of school construction costs. "I don't have the solutions yet."

Dodd's New Gun Measure

WASHINGTON AP) — Sen. Thomas J. Dodd today introduced firearms legislation that would require certifying all the owners of an estimated 200 million guns in the United States.

The intent of his Gun Certification Act of 1968, the Connecticut Democrat said, is to prevent gun ownership by known felons, addicts, mental defectives and would-be assassins.

Dodd's bill would require every gun owner to apply for a "Certificate of Eligibility to Possess a Firearm," to be issued by the Secretary of the Treasury. The certificate would cost $1 and be good for life.

AN ELITE WARD

'Idiot Savants' Remain Mystery To Psychologists

POMONA (AP) — Think you're a good checker player? Take on Willy.

He plays two or three games a day—and hasn't lost in nine years. He has an IQ of 60.

Pretty good at dates and calculations? So is Paul, who has an IQ of 28.

He'll tell you instantly on what day of the week your birth day fell as far back as a decade ago—and on what day it will fall as far forward as 1979.

Play a musical instrument? Clement, with an IQ of 30, has to listen but once to any song and he can play it on his guitar. He can fix small radios, too.

These three middle-aged men are patients in Ward 18 of Pacific State Hospital here, one of the largest mental institutions in the state.

They belong to an elite class of psychological contradictions known as "idiot savants"—mentally retarded genuises.

There have been scattered reports of idiot savants since the 18th Century. Not technically "idiots," these mental defectives are usually imbeciles, the medium grade of intelligence deficiency. Idiots are lowest on the ladder.

Pacific State, psychologists say, is the first institution to have three idiot savants at one time.

Incapable of living in the outside world, they have some phenomenal talent or aptitude comparable to some of the brightest members of society.

This talent may be in calendar calculating, mathematics, drawing, music, mechanics, or memorization.

How do they do it?

Doctors and psychologists chalk it up to a computer-like capacity for memorization and repetition, but they don't know how this ability develops.

They say, though, that an idiot savant's talent — whatever it is and however it originates — owes much of its development to constant exercise.

"Some retarded people have the ability to channel all their mental capacity into one function," said Pacific State psychologist Hiromu Nakamura.

"Free from distractions, they become better at that one function than those who have much higher intelligence."

Nakamura added that a special talent must be discovered, encouraged, and exercised — or it will fall by the wayside.

Checker-whiz Willy, 53, has a simpler explanation for his abilities — "It's in my head."

This reason is echoed by Clement and Paul

Five feet tall, hard of hearing, blind in one eye, Willy snaps his suspenders and giggles when you challenge him at checkers.

"Ahhhhhhh . .wanna get beat, huh?" he asks in a cocky tone. "I beat you. I beat you real good in less than 25 moves."

He quickly arranges the checkers, takes the reds, and moves first. He doesn't stop talking:

"A woman taught me to play. I was 2 years old, 4 feet.

"Ahhhhh . . . wanna get beat, a lot of money playing checkers ... $5 million! But what's the use. The women all take it!

"All women want is money. Money. Money. Money. Money... ahhhhhhh!"

He jumps one of the reporter's blacks.

"Ahhhhh, you have one of mine, I have four of yours," he chuckles. "Nobody beats me. They come here, but nobody beats me."

He makes moves clumsily, like a robot, but without hesitation. He doesn't concentrate. In fact, he doesn't seem to be paying attention. His chattering goes on:

"You look worried. Are you worried? Ahhhhh, look at the swings outside.

"See what swing over there? That's mine. I help in the laundry. I don't smoke, I don't drink, and I don't chase women..."

It takes him 21 moves to end the game. He has seven checkers left.

Another game. He again chatters incessantly, now and then slapping his khaki work clothes as he jumps one of your checkers.

This time he wins with only 20 moves. The wrinkles at the corners of his eyes squeeze back in glee like little accordions.

Willy plays the doctors, psychologists, visitors, psychiatric technicians, and other patients. He asks for 25 cents when he wins and treats himself to chocolate donuts at the hospital snackbar.

"The amount of people who come to play Willy!" exclaims Mrs. Lola Garcia, one of the ward's psychiatric technicians. "But nobody ever wins."

Clement is a tall, quiet, ever-grinning man of 47. Mrs. Garcia discovered his talent when she passed his room last September and heard him plucking out "Winchester Cathedral" on a toy guitar. (He now has a full-size guitar, donated by a local family.)

"He knows scores of songs," she says. "He's learned them from the radio and from records.

"All he has to do is hear a song once and he'll remember it— the tune, the melody, and the words, too.

Clement is a fastidious dresser. "He always likes to have on a clean white shirt, pressed pants, and a tie," says Mrs. Garcia.

But he has a vice. He steals transistor radios from fellow patients and tinkers with them.

"He hides them under his mattress, in the cupboards," sighs Mrs. Garcia. "If they don't work, he fixes them with his hands. I don't really know how he does it—he just does.

"Unfortunately, if a radio does work, he'll break it just so he can fool around with it. He loves to tinker."

Paul, the calendar calculator, came shuffling toward the TV room of the ward. He is 55, heavy-set and dressed in coveralls. He's an addict for afternoon soap operas.

He was about to sit down when Mrs. Garcia called to him from her office.

"Paul," she asked, "could you tell me the day of the week that June 19, 1958, fell on?"

"Huh, huh," he grunts, "Thursday."

"This man's birthday is October 24. What day will that fall on in 1975?"

"Huh, Friday."

"What day did my birthday fall on in 1963?"

Paul picked at a small scab on his forearm. "Wednesday."

A check of a perpetual calendar proved him right on all dates. But when Mrs. Garcia asked, "Paul, how much is two and two," he was silent.

NEED SCHOOL FUNDS

Tiny Elk Grove, Los Angeles Facing Same Problem—Money

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Whether you use new math or old math, there's only one answer to the basic arithmetic facing California's local school districts: more money. But the taxpayer is balking. Here is a report.)

By JAMES BOW

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Sprawling Los Angeles and tiny Elk Grove share the same problem this year: they can't find enough money to run their schools.

Paying for public schools in California is becoming a problem so grave, so persistent that leading educators and some legislators say state financing is the only hope.

"The real answer to the problems of Los Angeles schools—indeed to the problems of education in all of California—can be found only in Sacramento," says Supt. Jack Crowther of Los Angeles city schools.

Raising local taxes or selling school bonds isn't the answer this year in Los Angeles or in the Sacramento County town of Elk Grove, or in many cities where voters also have rejected spending more on education.

Since mid-April, 28 school finance ballot proposals have been rejected in the state's seven largest counties. Twenty were approved.

Back in 1967-68, the California Teachers Association reports, there were many failures at the polls, but the total score was better: 160 tax increases or bond issues approved, compared to 138 failures.

For school bonds alone, however, failures have outnumbered successes for some time. The local bond issues require approval by two-thirds of the voters, while tax increases over the routine legal maximum require a simple majority.

Why does the rate of unsuccessful school tax or school bond elections seem to be increasing?

"I think it's high taxes, if you ask me," says Paul Hoyenga, a school construction finance specialist who is doing a study of the problem for the state Education Department.

Despite state support expected to rise above $1.6 billion next year, local property taxpayers still bear the biggest burden for school costs—more than $2 billion.

Hoyenga and some educators complain that school finance elections are the only chance taxpayers have to take a direct stand against the high cost of government.

"The kids are getting the brunt of that attitude," says Supt. Glenn R. Houde of Elk Grove.

Some taxpayers won't admit they oppose school construction bonds, but vote against them at the polls. Some complain priorities for school spending are wrong: some want better buildings and less busing to achieve integration; others want more busing and fewer frills on buildings; some gripe about the salaries paid administrators.

And, in Los Angeles, some opponents to school spending cited recent public school student demonstrations and said the city should learn to run its existing schools before building new ones.

Some men who operate California schools say the problem would be solved if the state would return to its former tradition of paying half the cost of local education. The state foots less than half the bill now — $1.6 billion of a total $4.2 billion.

Others want more sweeping changes, revising the whole system of collecting and distributing school money.

Most agree the pressures are mounting.

"It is our unpleasant task to confront parents unhappy with the quality of their children's education, militant students disillusioned with the educational system, distressed taxpayers opposed to the level of their property taxes and well-organized employees determined to whiplash us into the best possible set of salary and fringe benefits," says Brooks Lockhart, a Monterey school board member and president of the California School Boards Association.

School pressures, and school finance problems, aren't new in California, or in the nation since a so-called "taxpayers' revolt" began four or five years ago.

But this year, for the first time in state history a school board has voted for deficit financing. Los Angeles schools will go $5 million into the red next year, unless they get more money from the state.

After a series of unsuccessful school finance elections, Los Angeles schools also face $22.1 million in budget cuts. Even with spending beyond the budget, Los Angeles expects to cut 150 to 175 teachers from the payroll next year.

Sacramento voters last winter rejected spending more money on schools. Several younger teachers are expected to be fired to keep the district within next year's budget.

In Elk Grove, voters last week rejected a 75-cent tax rate increase by 1,989 to 1,813. The new money would have provided $600,000 to meet an expected $200,000 deficit next year and carry out improvements recommended by a citizens' group.

The new Elk Grove tax rate would have been $2.95 per $100 of assessed valuation — about average for the state. This means that if a family owns a $25,000 home and it is assessed at $6,250 — one fourth of market value — the school tax would be $182.58.

Houde says that a special problem for his district was the opposition by owners of highly-taxed agricultural land.

Each failure offers variations of the "taxpayers' revolt:"

Opponents of replacing old school buildings which don't meet earthquake safety standards set by the Legislature say state government should pay the cost.

Opponents in Sacramento questioned the priorities for spending new tax money as much as the tax increase itself. Should the city have a new educational park, a complex of schools in one location? Should teachers' salaries keep going up?

But in San Diego, Hoyenga reports, "We couldn't find anybody who would admit to voting no" on school bonds, although the measure was defeated.

Hoyenga's figures show $470 million in school bond proposals defeated so far this year, including elections in San Diego, Los Angeles, Pasadena, Alhambra, Salinas, San Jose, Oroville and Marysville-Yuba City.

The school money crisis doesn't mean an imminent deluge of illiterate, totally unprepared graduates in 1970. It does mean that some schools can't plan ahead, can't keep the best teachers, can't give the best education possible in a wealthy state and can't meet the pressures and demands of parents, students, ghetto leaders and teachers.

To some, the problem isn't so grave. State Finance Department forecasts have predicted for some years a leveling off of the annual school population increase. Migration to the state is slowing down and the generation of the wartime and postwar baby boom is finishing its schooling.

Max Rafferty, state school superintendent, reports that these trends may lead to a surplus of teachers in the next few years.

The real problem, according to Republican Sen. John G. Schmitz of Tustin, is "the education lobby ... By constant pressure, it has persuaded many legislators that every year there must be a special extra spending bill, over and above the budget bill, to give tens of hundreds of millions more dollars to the schools, and to set up new programs providing more lucrative school jobs."

Both Sacramento and Los Angeles school boards have included teacher pay increases in their budgets, despite cuts in music, art or athletics. In Sacramento, top pay for a tiny percentage of teachers would be $15,000—closing in on a journeyman plumber's wages.

Gov. Ronald Reagan proposes to spend $105.5 million in extra school aid next year. Rafferty and the CTA want to spend an extra $378 million.

Other school aid proposals in the Legislature call for a statewide property tax to take money from rich school districts and distribute it among poorer districts — and reduce local property taxes.

The school boards association backs a bill providing a statewide property tax for schools plus $360 million in direct state aid.

Supporters of most innovations for paying school costs admit they don't have much hope of immediate success. In the meantime, school boards will have to cut and balance budgets and count on more resentment at the polls.

Resentment by voters questions higher teacher salaries at the expense of programs in music or language; new auditoriums rather than new classrooms, or higher administrators' pay at the expense of teacher pay.

The circle of resentment never quite straightens out. The priorities can't satisfy most of the voters, much less all of them.

Attempts at school busing to achieve racial integration occasionally anger Negro parents, whose own children must travel to other neighborhoods while white pupils continue to go to school near home.

Busing and other integration plans anger some white parents — prejudiced or not — who want money for their own schools.

"I don't think the public really realizes what it's asking through the schools," says Republican Assemblyman Victor V. Veysey of Brawley in the Imperial Valley.

"We used to educate only one-half of our young people through high school," he adds. "Now we demand a no-reject type of education."

And the demands are much more: integration; no integration at the expense of neighborhood schools; job training to keep young persons off the welfare rolls; no job training if it interferes with quality education; sex education; no sex education without strict moral guidelines.

"I'm on the problem," Hoyenga says of school construction costs. "I don't have the solutions yet."

Dodd's New Gun Measure

WASHINGTON AP) — Sen. Thomas J. Dodd today introduced firearms legislation that would require certifying all the owners of an estimated 200 million guns in the United States.

The intent of his Gun Certification Act of 1968, the Connecticut Democrat said, is to prevent gun ownership by known felons, addicts, mental defectives and would-be assassins.

Dodd's bill would require every gun owner to apply for a "Certificate of Eligibility to Possess a Firearm," to be issued by the Secretary of the Treasury. The certificate would cost $1 and be good for life.

AN ELITE WARD

'Idiot Savants' Remain Mystery To Psychologists

POMONA (AP) — Think you're a good checker player?

Take on Willy.

He plays two or three games a day—and hasn't lost in nine years. He has an IQ of 60.

Pretty good at dates and calculations? So is Paul, who has an IQ of 28.

He'll tell you instantly on what day of the week your birth day fell as far back as a decade ago—and on what day it will fall as far forward as 1979.

Play a musical instrument? Clement, with an IQ of 30, has to listen but once to any song and he can play it on his guitar. He can fix small radios, too.

These three middle-aged men are patients in Ward 18 of Pacific State Hospital here, one of the largest mental institutions in the state.

They belong to an elite class of psychological contradictions known as "idiot savants"—mentally retarded genuises.

There have been scattered reports of idiot savants since the 18th Century. Not technically "idiots," these mental defectives are usually imbeciles, the medium grade of intelligence deficiency. Idiots are lowest on the ladder.

Pacific State, psychologists say, is the first institution to have three idiot savants at one time.

Incapable of living in the outside world, they have some phenomenal talent or aptitude comparable to some of the brightest members of society.

This talent may be in calendar calculating, mathematics, drawing, music, mechanics, or memorization.

How do they do it?

Doctors and psychologists chalk it up to a computer-like capacity for memorization and repetition, but they don't know how this ability develops.

They say, though, that an idiot savant's talent — whatever it is and however it originates — owes much of its development to constant exercise.

"Some retarded people have the ability to channel all their mental capacity into one function," said Pacific State psychologist Hiromu Nakamura.

"Free from distractions, they become better at that one function than those who have much higher intelligence."

Nakamura added that a special talent must be discovered, encouraged, and exercised — or it will fall by the wayside.

Checker-whiz Willy, 53, has a simpler explanation for his abilities — "It's in my head." This reason is echoed by Clement and Paul

Five feet tall, hard of hearing, blind in one eye, Willy snaps his suspenders and giggles when you challenge him at checkers.

"Ahhhhhhh . .wanna get beat, huh?" he asks in a cocky tone. "I beat you. I beat you real good in less than 25 moves."

He quickly arranges the checkers, takes the reds, and moves first. He doesn't stop talk ing:

"A woman taught me to play. I was 2 years old, 4 feet.

"Ahhhhh . . . wanna get beat, a lot of money playing checkers ... $5 million! But what's the use. The women all take it!

"All women want is money. Money. Money. Money. Money... ahhhhhhh!"

He jumps one of the reporter's blacks.

"Ahhhhh, you have one of mine, I have four of yours," he chuckles. "Nobody beats me. They come here, but nobody beats me."

He makes moves clumsily, like a robot, but without hesitation. He doesn't concentrate. In fact, he doesn't seem to be paying attention. His chattering goes on:

"You look worried. Are you worried? Ahhhhh, look at the swings outside.

"See what swing over there? That's mine. I help in the laundry. I don't smoke, I don't drink, and I don't chase women..."

It takes him 21 moves to end the game. He has seven checkers left.

Another game. He again chatters incessantly, now and then slapping his khaki work clothes as he jumps one of your checkers.

This time he wins with only 20 moves. The wrinkles at the corners of his eyes squeeze back in glee like little accordions.

Willy plays the doctors, psychologists, visitors, psychiatric technicians, and other patients. He asks for 25 cents when he wins and treats himself to chocolate donuts at the hospital snackbar.

"The amount of people who come to play Willy!" exclaims Mrs. Lola Garcia, one of the ward's psychiatric technicians. "But nobody ever wins."

Clement is a tall, quiet, ever-grinning man of 47. Mrs. Garcia discovered his talent when she passed his room last September and heard him plucking out "Winchester Cathedral" on a toy guitar. (He now has a full-size guitar, donated by a local family.)

"He knows scores of songs," she says. "He's learned them from the radio and from records.

"All he has to do is hear a song once and he'll remember it— the tune, the melody, and the words, too.

Clement is a fastidious dresser. "He always likes to have on a clean white shirt, pressed pants, and a tie," says Mrs. Garcia.

But he has a vice. He steals transistor radios from fellow patients and tinkers with them.

"He hides them under his mattress, in the cupboards," sighs Mrs. Garcia. "If they don't work, he fixes them with his hands. I don't really know how he does it—he just does.

"Unfortunately, if a radio does work, he'll break it just so he can fool around with it. He loves to tinker."

Paul, the calendar calculator, came shuffling toward the TV room of the ward. He is 55, heavy-set and dressed in coveralls. He's an addict for afternoon soap operas.

He was about to sit down when Mrs. Garcia called to him from her office.

"Paul," she asked, "could you tell me the day of the week that June 19, 1958, fell on?"

"Huh, huh," he grunts, "Thursday."

"This man's birthday is October 24. What day will that fall on in 1975?"

"Huh, Friday."

"What day did my birthday fall on in 1963?"

Paul picked at a small scab on his forearm. "Wednesday."

A check of a perpetual calendar proved him right on all dates. But when Mrs. Garcia asked, "Paul, how much is two and two," he was silent.

MRS. EDWARD Schulman prepares some of the Polynesian sweet and sour beef balls she will serve at the Mai Tai party to be held Saturday. It is sponsored by the Oleander chapter of the Marin Foundation and Mrs. Schulman is food chairman for the party. (Independent-Journal photos by Bob Hax)

Members Share Recipes For Patio Party Hors D'Oeuvres

Looking for some hors d'oeuvres ideas that are great for a patio party this summer?

Polynesian hors d'oeuvres will be served at the mai tai party planned for Saturday evening by the Oleander Chapter, Marin Foundation, at the Oakview Club in Terra Linda, and the North Marin chapter members have shared some of the recipes they'll be using.

Mrs. James Dodd will serve a Tahitian fish recipe in which lime juice acts as the cooking agent:

Cut in bite size pieces 2 lbs. of boned and skinned halibut, and mix with one tablespoon of salt and ⅔ cup lime juice. Chill in the refrigerator three hours or overnight. Drain and add 4 green onions, chopped, ½ green pepper chopped, one large tomato peeled and chopped and 2 tablespoons parsley. Mix all well and cover with ¾ cup coconut milk or a dressing made with ⅔ cup oil, ⅓ cup vinegar and 1 and ½ teaspoons dry mustard.

Chill for an hour, garnish with one grated hard boiled egg and serve on lettuce. This finger-food serves eight, says Mrs. Dodd.

MRS. EDWARD SCHULMAN will serve Polynesian sweet and sour beef balls. Mix 10 oz. jar of Concord grape jelly, 14 oz. bottle of chili sauce and the juice of ½ lemon and place in pan and cook for 15 minutes. Season two pounds of ground chuck with salt and form meat balls (about 20 to the pound.) Drop in pan and simmer in the sauce for 45 minutes.

These can be cooked and frozen ahead of time and then reheated when desired, Mrs. Schulman says.

TAKING A LITTLE more time to prepare are the fillshells that Mrs. James Sullivan will take to the party.

(A special patty shell iron number 81 can be purchased from Bonley Products Co., 111 West Armitage Avenue, Chicago.)

Mix together slowly 1 cup milk, 1 tsp. sugar, ½ teaspoon salt and 2 unbeaten eggs into 1 cup sifted flour. Air bubbles will make holes in the shells, so let set until all bubbles have vanished. Heat irons by dipping into hot oil (365 degrees). When heated remove from oil and dip into batter so that batter is absolutely level with top or irons. Return to oil, cook until a delicate brown. Drain on paper towel.

Store in airtight container. The shells freeze well and can be stored up to six months. The recipe makes approximately 75 shells.

Following is the filling for the shells. Mix together 1 cup fresh or canned crab meat, 1 cup shrimp, fresh or canned, 1 cup good grade white tuna, 1 small can diced pineapple, 1 cup diced celery, 2 T. pickel relish or chutney, ½ cup chopped cashew nuts, ½ cup diced onions or chives, ¼ cup sliced stuffed olives or green ripe olives and 1 cup diced tart apple.

Add a dressing of 1¼ cup mayonnaise, ½ cup sour cream and 1 to 2 tsp. curry powder, according to one's taste. Fill the shells just before serving.

MRS. RICHARD SCHLOBOHM, decorations chairman for the Mai Tai party, and Mrs. James Dodd, co-chairman, sample the filled shells that Mrs. James Sullivan will be serving. A variety of Polynesian hors d'oeuvres will be prepared and served by members of the Oleander chapter.

An Apple Salad With Zippy Taste

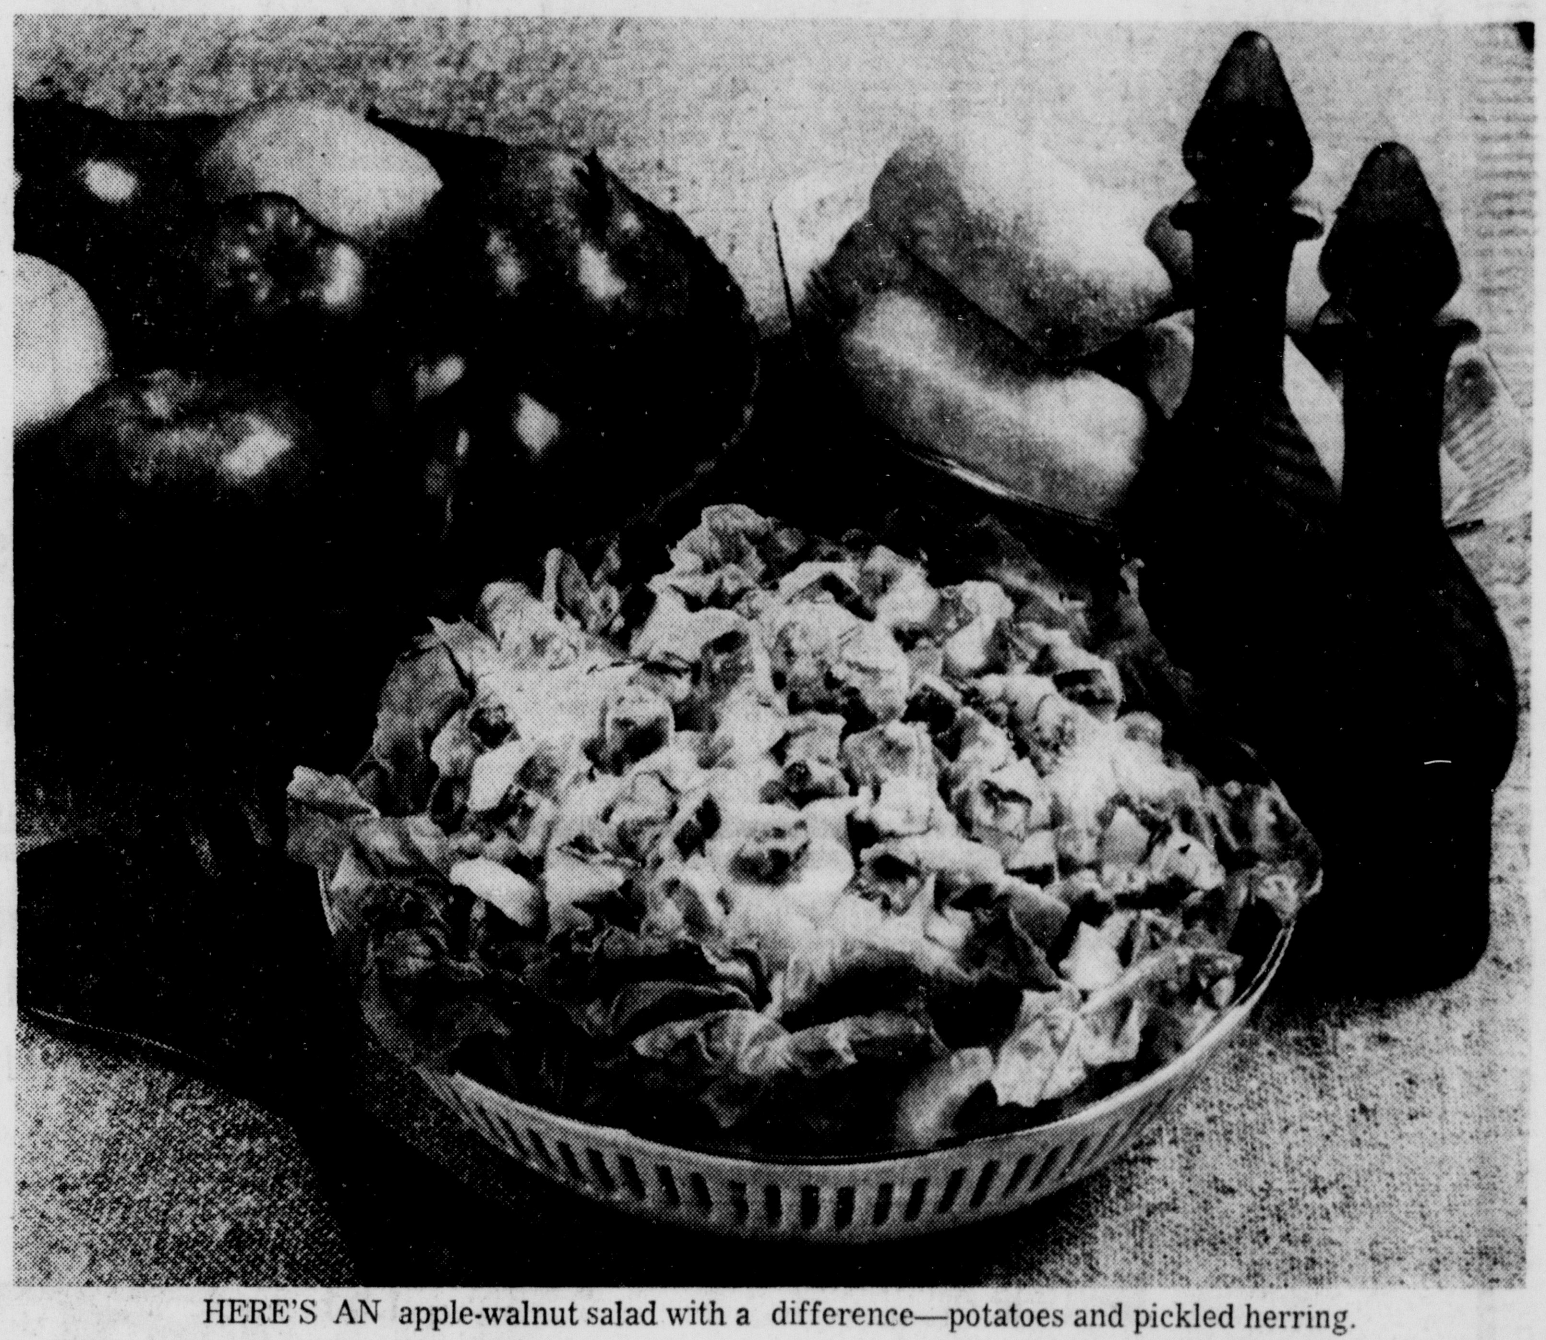
Have you ever tried a good hearty salad, with soup served alongside in a big cup, to be sipped like a beverage? With a hot roll, well buttered, this makes a perfect luncheon or supper menus for the family or even for an informal occasion when guests are present.

This piquant salad is packed with flavor and contrasts in texture. The sweet-sour tang of herring pickled in wine sauce, the crunchiness of walnuts, the flavor of dill and, the mellow tartness and visual beauty of red-skinned apples add up to something special.

DILLY APPLE-WALNUT SALAD

1½ cups cubed cooked potatoes
1 cup drained diced pickled herring packed in wine sauce (6 oz. jar)
2 cups diced unpeeled red apples
¾ cup coarsely broken walnuts
½ cup mayonnaise
2 tablespoons Italian dressing
1 tablespoon fresh dill or ½ teaspoon dried dill

Combine first four ingredients. Combine remaining ingredients and pour over salad. Toss gently to mix. Serve on salad greens. Makes 4 servings.



HERE'S AN apple-walnut salad with a difference—potatoes and pickled herring.

Juice Sparks

Use a bit of canned grapefruit juice to spark salad dressings. Stir it into cream cheese, mayonnaise, yogurt or sour cream.

Ideas For a Bridal Shower Menu To Please Parents And Young Set

There are two schools of thought about desserts, one inhabited by mothers of the bride and groom, aunts, and their friends; the other by the bride, bridesmaids, and their contemporaries.

The first school believes the perfect party menu is always climaxed with a rich dessert and after-dinner coffee, while the young people prefer a fancy coffee beverage for dessert.

To please both groups at a bridal shower buffet, offer perfectly brewed coffee — hot or cold, plain or fancy; and a choice of two elegant fruit and wine desserts. A fruit compote of pear halves and frozen strawberries generously laced with white wine and their own syrup is a delicious middle-of-the-road compromise. Appealing to the young and young-at-heart are these "Lake Country Jewels" of cherry flavor gelatin accented with red dinner wine of a delicate and fruity flavor and bouquet.

The coffee is rich, creamy and frothy in Coffee Alexander, a dessert in a glass that quite handily becomes an after-dinner drink with the addition of brandy.

Start with extra-strength coffee, freshly brewed. Then pour it into a blender. Whip up the concoction with hot coffee, cracked ice, coffee ice cream, and if you please, a splash of brandy. Pour into a carafe and serve in punch cups or stemmed glasses.

PEAR AND BERRY WINE COMPOTE

1 can (1 lb. 13 oz.) Bartlett-pear halves
1 cup white dinner wine
2 pouches (10 oz. each) frozen strawberry halves

Drain pears, arrange in shallow serving dish. Pour wine over pears, chill at least 1 hour. Just before serving, thaw berries as directed on package; add to pears. Serve at once. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

LAKE COUNTY JEWELS

2 packages (3 oz. each) cherry flavor gelatin
2 cups hot water
½ cup cold water
1½ cups red dinner wine
½ lb. white seedless grapes
1 egg white, unbeaten
Granulated sugar

Dissolve gelatin in hot water. Add cold water and wine. Pour into crystal wine glasses. Chill until firm. Garnish with clusters of sugared grapes.

Sugared Grapes: Wash grapes, snip into small clusters. Dip each cluster of grapes first into egg whites and then into sugar, turning to coat evenly. Dry on waxed paper.

COFFEE ALEXANDER

3 cups freshly brewed coffee, extra-strength
4-6 ice cubes
1 pint coffee ice cream
¼ cup brandy

Place coffee and ice cubes into blender and blend at medium speed. Add ice cream and brandy; then blend at maximum speed. Pour into an attractive carafe and serve in punch cups.

To make extra-strength coffee: Use only 4 oz. water to each coffee measure of coffee.

Lamb Chops And Zucchini Combine For A Barbecue

An early cookout requires a hearty dish and what could be better than thick, meaty lamb shoulder chops. Light the fire and depend upon briquets for hot, even heat.

You'll want to allow enough time for them to come to the ashen-gray stage for the best heat. Then brown the chops and continue on with the seasonings. Tomatoes and thinly sliced zucchini make this a one-dish meal.

LAMB CHOPS AND ZUCCHINI
(Makes 4 servings)

4 shoulder lamb chops, 1-inch thick
2 tablespoons salad oil
1 large onion, sliced
1 clove garlic, minced
Salt
½ teaspoon marjoram leaves
¼ teaspoon celery seed
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 can (1 pound) tomatoes in puree
1 pound zucchini, thinly sliced

In large skillet, brown chops on both sides in oil over glowing coals. Remove chops; drain off drippings. Cook onion and garlic in skillet 1 minute. Return chops; sprinkle with 1 teaspoon salt and other seasonings. Add tomatoes and simmer, covered, 30 minutes, or until meat is tender.

Add zucchini; cook 10 minutes longer, or until zucchini is tender. Place chops in serving dish. Add salt to taste to zucchini sauce and pour over lamb chops. Serve with French bread, rice or potatoes, as desired.

Salad Slimmer

A cottage cheese and egg mixture makes a nourishing, low-calorie salad slimmer. Combine 2 cups of cottage cheese with 1 hard-cooked egg, finely chopped; 2 tablespoons of chopped canned pimiento and 1 tablespoon of chopped chives. Spoon into 4 cooked cold artichokes and serve with fresh lemon juice or low-calorie french dressing.

Fruit Salads

Subtly sweet maple cheese dressing is a natural for fruit salads. Soften a 3 ounce package of cream cheese in a bowl. Add 1 tablespoon of orange juice and ¼ cup of maple-blended syrup, beating until smooth. Makes about ¾ cup.

MRS. EDWARD Schulman prepares some of the Polynesian sweet and sour beef balls she will serve at the Mai Tai party to be held Saturday. It is sponsored by the Oleander chapter of the Marin Foundation and Mrs. Schulman is food chairman for the party. (Independent-Journal photos by Bob Hax)

Members Share Recipes For Patio Party Hors D'Oeuvres

Looking for some hors d'oeuvres ideas that are great for a patio party this summer?

Polynesian hors d'oeuvres will be served at the mai tai party planned for Saturday evening by the Oleander Chapter, Marin Foundation, at the Oakview Club in Terra Linda, and the North Marin chapter members have shared some of the recipes they'll be using.

Mrs. James Dodd will serve a Tahitian fish recipe in which lime juice acts as the cooking agent:

Cut in bite size pieces 2 lbs. of boned and skinned halibut, and mix with one tablespoon of salt and ⅔ cup lime juice. Chill in the refrigerator three hours or overnight. Drain and add 4 green onions, chopped, ½ green pepper chopped, one large tomato peeled and chopped and 2 tablespoons parsley. Mix all well and cover with ¾ cup coconut milk or a dressing made with ⅔ cup oil, ⅓ cup vinegar and 1 and ½ teaspoons dry mustard.

Chill for an hour, garnish with one grated hard boiled egg and serve on lettuce. This finger-food serves eight, says Mrs. Dodd.

MRS. EDWARD SCHULMAN will serve Polynesian sweet and sour beef balls. Mix 10 oz. jar of Concord grape jelly, 14 oz. bottle of chili sauce and the juice of ½ lemon and place in pan and cook for 15 minutes. Season two pounds of ground chuck with salt and form meat balls (about 20 to the pound.) Drop in pan and simmer in the sauce for 45 minutes.

These can be cooked and frozen ahead of time and then reheated when desired, Mrs. Schulman says.

TAKING A LITTLE more time to prepare are the fillshells that Mrs. James Sullivan will take to the party.

(A special patty shell iron number 81 can be purchased from Bonley Products Co., 111 West Armitage Avenue, Chicago.)

Mix together slowly 1 cup milk, 1 tsp. sugar, ½ teaspoon salt and 2 unbeaten eggs into 1 cup sifted flour. Air bubbles will make holes in the shells, so let set until all bubbles have vanished. Heat irons by dipping into hot oil (365 degrees). When heated remove from oil and dip into batter so that batter is absolutely level with top or irons. Return to oil, cook until a delicate brown. Drain on paper towel.

Store in airtight container. The shells freeze well and can be stored up to six months. The recipe makes approximately 75 shells.

Following is the filling for the shells. Mix together 1 cup fresh or canned crab meat, 1 cup shrimp, fresh or canned, 1 cup good grade white tuna, 1 small can diced pineapple, 1 cup diced celery, 2 T. pickel relish or chutney, ½ cup chopped cashew nuts, ½ cup diced onions or chives, ¼ cup sliced stuffed olives or green ripe olives and 1 cup diced tart apple.

Add a dressing of 1¼ cup mayonnaise, ½ cup sour cream and 1 to 2 tsp. curry powder, according to one's taste. Fill the shells just before serving.

MRS. RICHARD SCHLOBOHM, decorations chairman for the Mai Tai party, and Mrs. James Dodd, co-chairman, sample the filled shells that Mrs. James Sullivan will be serving. A variety of Polynesian hors d'oeuvres will be prepared and served by members of the Oleander chapter.

An Apple Salad With Zippy Taste

Have you ever tried a good hearty salad, with soup served alongside in a big cup, to be sipped like a beverage? With a hot roll, well buttered, this makes a perfect luncheon or supper menus for the family or even for an informal occasion when guests are present.

This piquant salad is packed with flavor and contrasts in texture. The sweet-sour tang of herring pickled in wine sauce, the crunchiness of walnuts, the flavor of dill and, the mellow tartness and visual beauty of red-skinned apples add up to something special.

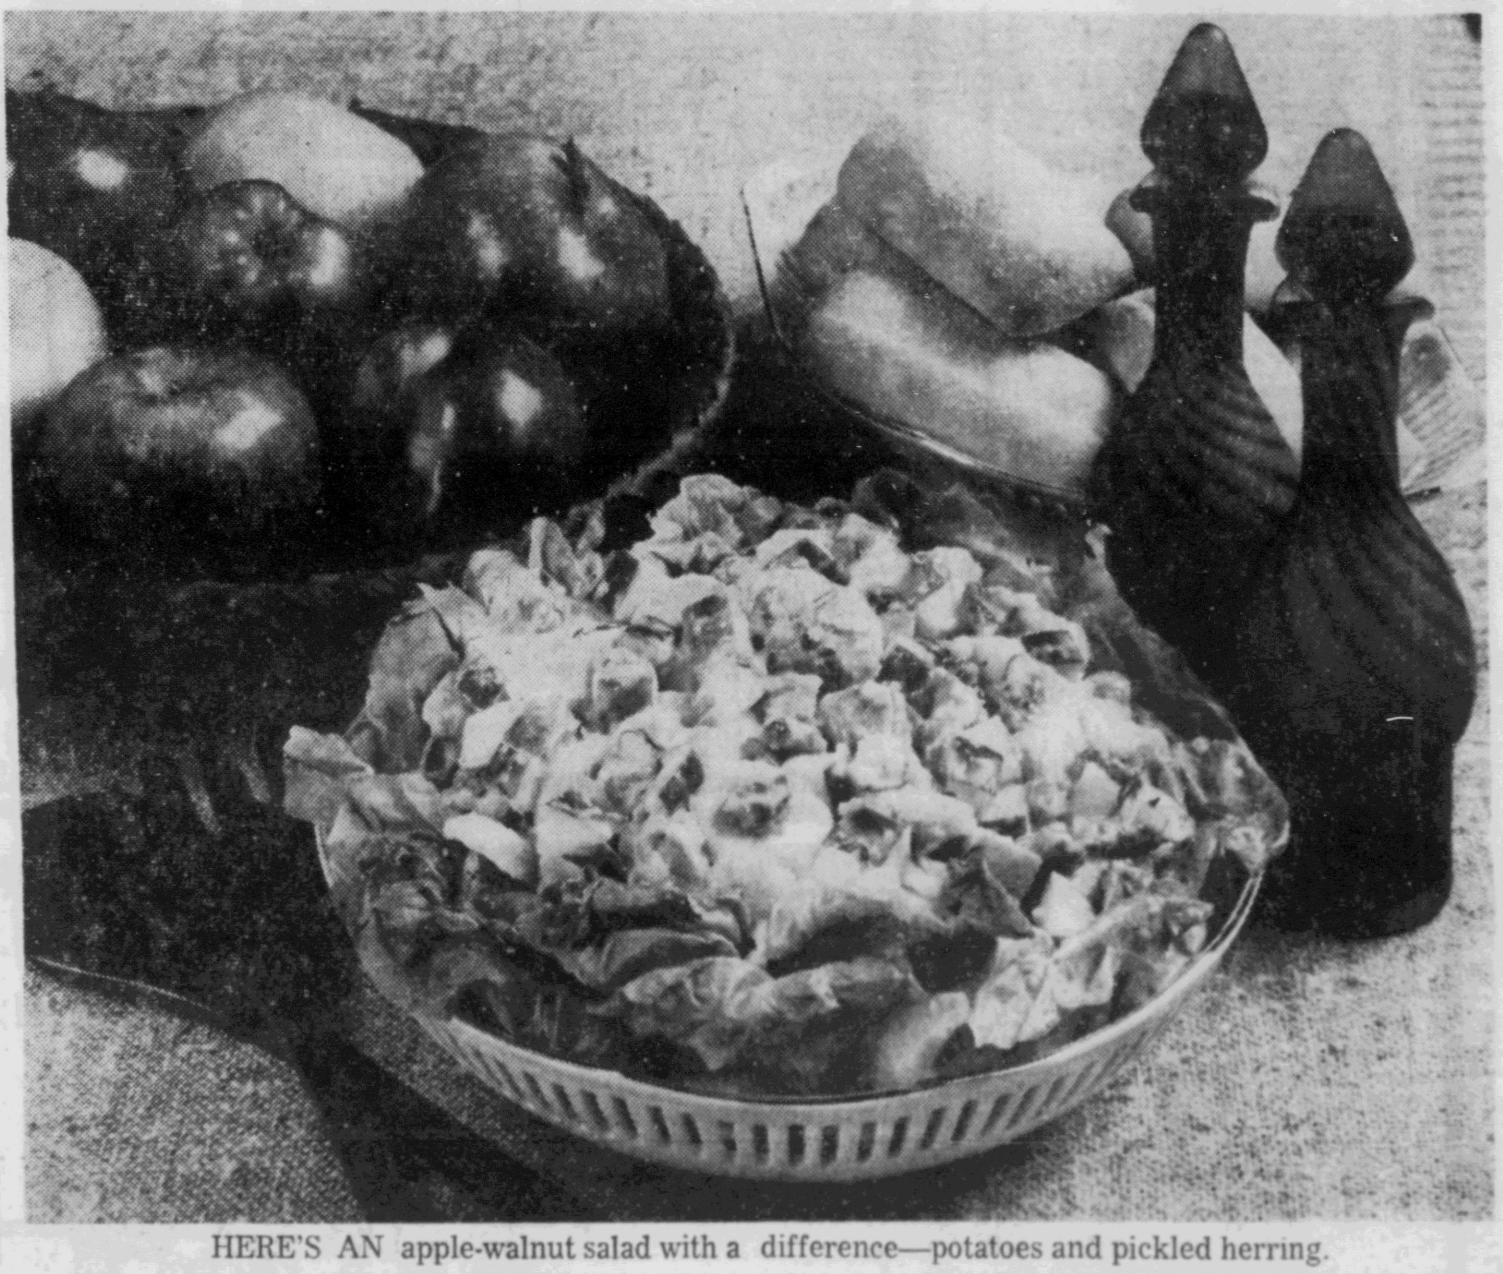
DILLY APPLE-WALNUT SALAD

1½ cups cubed cooked potatoes
1 cup drained diced pickled herring packed in wine sauce (6 oz. jar)
2 cups diced unpeeled red apples
¾ cup coarsely broken walnuts
½ cup mayonnaise
2 tablespoons Italian dressing
1 tablespoon fresh dill or ½ teaspoon dried dill

Combine first four ingredients. Combine remaining ingredients and pour over salad. Toss gently to mix. Serve on salad greens. Makes 4 servings.

Juice Sparks

Use a bit of canned grapefruit juice to spark salad dressings. Stir it into cream cheese, mayonnaise, yogurt or sour cream.



HERE'S AN apple-walnut salad with a difference—potatoes and pickled herring.

Ideas For a Bridal Shower Menu To Please Parents And Young Set

There are two schools of thought about desserts, one inhabited by mothers of the bride and groom, aunts, and their friends; the other by the bride, bridesmaids, and their contemporaries.

The first school believes the perfect party menu is always climaxed with a rich dessert and after-dinner coffee, while the young people prefer a fancy coffee beverage for dessert.

To please both groups at a bridal shower buffet, offer perfectly brewed coffee — hot or cold, plain or fancy; and a choice of two elegant fruit and wine desserts. A fruit compote of pear halves and frozen strawberries generously laced with white wine and their own syrup is a delicious middle-of-the-road compromise. Appealing to the young and young-at-heart are these "Lake Country Jewels" of cherry flavor gelatin accented with red dinner wine of a delicate and fruity flavor and bouquet.

The coffee is rich, creamy and frothy in Coffee Alexander, a dessert in a glass that quite handily becomes an after-dinner drink with the addition of brandy.

Start with extra-strength coffee, freshly brewed. Then pour it into a blender. Whip up the concoction with hot coffee, cracked ice, coffee ice cream, and if you please, a splash of brandy. Pour into a carafe and serve in punch cups or stemmed glasses.

PEAR AND BERRY WINE COMPOTE

1 can (1 lb. 13 oz.) Bartlett-pear halves
1 cup white dinner wine
2 pouches (10 oz. each) frozen strawberry halves

Drain pears, arrange in shallow serving dish. Pour wine over pears, chill at least 1 hour. Just before serving, thaw berries as directed on package; add to pears. Serve at once. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

LAKE COUNTY JEWELS

2 packages (3 oz. each) cherry flavor gelatin
2 cups hot water
½ cup cold water
1½ cups red dinner wine
½ lb. white seedless grapes
1 egg white, unbeaten
Granulated sugar

Dissolve gelatin in hot water. Add cold water and wine. Pour into crystal wine glasses. Chill until firm. Garnish with clusters of sugared grapes.

Sugared Grapes: Wash grapes, snip into small clusters. Dip each cluster of grapes first into egg whites and then into sugar, turning to coat evenly. Dry on waxed paper.

COFFEE ALEXANDER

3 cups freshly brewed coffee, extra-strength
4-6 ice cubes
1 pint coffee ice cream
¼ cup brandy

Place coffee and ice cubes into blender and blend at medium speed. Add ice cream and brandy; then blend at maximum speed. Pour into an attractive carafe and serve in punch cups.

To make extra-strength coffee: Use only 4 oz. water to each coffee measure of coffee.

Lamb Chops And Zucchini Combine For A Barbecue

An early cookout requires a hearty dish and what could be better than thick, meaty lamb shoulder chops. Light the fire and depend upon briquets for hot, even heat.

You'll want to allow enough time for them to come to the ashen-gray stage for the best heat. Then brown the chops and continue on with the seasonings. Tomatoes and thinly sliced zucchini make this a one-dish meal.

LAMB CHOPS AND ZUCCHINI
(Makes 4 servings)

4 shoulder lamb chops, 1-inch thick
2 tablespoons salad oil
1 large onion, sliced
1 clove garlic, minced
Salt
½ teaspoon marjoram leaves
¼ teaspoon celery seed
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 can (1 pound) tomatoes in puree
1 pound zucchini, thinly sliced

In large skillet, brown chops on both sides in oil over glowing coals. Remove chops; drain off drippings. Cook onion and garlic in skillet 1 minute. Return chops; sprinkle with 1 teaspoon salt and other seasonings. Add tomatoes and simmer, covered, 30 minutes, or until meat is tender.

Add zucchini; cook 10 minutes longer, or until zucchini is tender. Place chops in serving dish. Add salt to taste to zucchini sauce and pour over lamb chops. Serve with French bread, rice or potatoes, as desired.

Salad Slimmer

A cottage cheese and egg mixture makes a nourishing, low-calorie salad slimmer. Combine 2 cups of cottage cheese with 1 hard-cooked egg, finely chopped; 2 tablespoons of chopped canned pimiento and 1 tablespoon of chopped chives. Spoon into 4 cooked cold artichokes and serve with fresh lemon juice or low-calorie french dressing.

Fruit Salads

Subtly sweet maple cheese dressing is a natural for fruit salads. Soften a 3 ounce package of cream cheese in a bowl. Add 1 tablespoon of orange juice and ¼ cup of maple-blended syrup, beating until smooth. Makes about ¾ cup.

COAT, SUIT AND PANTS

The little coat is still big news for fall, according to New York Couture Business Council, and there is lots of shaping in the brown double button coat, left, from Originala, who adds a regency collar and slanted patch pockets. Davidow shows the bronze tweedy check, center. The hip-riding jacket is shaped and trimmed with gold buttons and four flap pockets, matched to a stem of a skirt. From Nat Kaplan's collection, right, a white silk shirt tunic over gray pants can be worn together—or the dress alone—a new direction for the pants concept.

Bridegroom Chooses Appropriate Clothing

So, you're going to get married. You have set the date, made all the arrangements, invited the guests and now — the bridegroom wants to know, "What am I supposed to wear?"

He'll get a wide variety of supposedly authoritative answers to that question. Unfortunately, much of the advice is either all wrong or only partially correct.

There's a right outfit for the rites, and it is determined by the bride's gown and by the time of day of the ceremony.

OBVIOUSLY, THERE is no law that says a wedding isn't legal if the bridegroom isn't outfitted correctly.

However, the bridegroom can save a lot of embarrassment for all concerned by paying his bride the courtesy of wearing the proper outfit. He may be an innovator as far as business and sports clothes are concerned, but his wedding kit should follow the rules.

There are three types of wedding ceremonies: formal, semi-formal and informal. The degree of formality is determined by the bride's gown. Likewise, the degree of formality determines the type of outfit worn by the bridegroom. Another influencing factor is the time of day. If the ceremony takes place after six, evening attire is the obvious choice.

The ushers, the father of the bride and any other men who are members of the wedding party, dress the same as the groom. The only difference — and this applies to daytime outfits only — is that the bridegroom's tie or ascot may vary slightly in design from the others. That and his boutonniere, which is a sprig of lily-of-the-valley, supposedly taken from the bride's bouquet, are the only distinguishing marks of the bridegroom. He never wears a black tie with a tailcoat or a white tie with a tuxedo. Neither does he do anything else that is original or distinguishing without fracturing the rules.

After all, the bride is the star of the show.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Woman Waits Too Long, Regrets Not Making Decision Earlier

DEAR HELEN:

I was one of those who waited until the children were grown before making the break. My marriage was miserable. Three months after the wedding my husband had made it plain I didn't count, that he'd do as he pleased. By that time I was pregnant and hoped he'd change.

He did — for the worse.

During the next 20 years I went from hurt to hate and finally to indifference. He had his girl friends, I had our two children and a roof over our heads. Later on I got a good job, which made life bearable.

But when our daughters actually begged me to get a divorce because they couldn't stand their father's meanness, I quietly went to see a lawyer. My husband was away on one of his many "business trips," and I planned to tell him I was filing for divorce as soon as he returned home.

All three of us were so relieved, we had a celebration dinner — such was the extent of our disgust with this man who had never really been a husband or father.

Our relief was premature.

He was in an accident that night. The woman with him wasn't hurt badly, but my husband will live the rest of his life in a wheelchair, a complete cripple with partial brain damage.

I can't leave, of course. My conscience would never quit. I only hope that I won't show by my actions how much I regret having waited too long. Had I divorced him years ago, perhaps he wouldn't have needed liquor quite so much. He might have found a woman who could handle him. And I wouldn't be weighted down with debts, caring for — and pretending I care for — a man I despise.

You can't help me, Helen. I know what I must do. But perhaps some of your readers have had experiences similar to mine. Could you ask them to tell you how they lived through them? — TRAPPED

DEAR TRAPPED:

You have already received my personal letter offering encouragement and hope. I'm sure you'll hear from others who have also learned that God seldom closes one door without opening another.

Note to readers: Please send each of your letters to me inside a blank stamped envelope, and I'll forward them to TRAPPED. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Cy, this man I'm dating, says he likes me very much but I think he lives with another woman. When he gets his divorce, I'm afraid he'll marry her, although he says he doesn't want to get married right away. I hope this is true as I am separated from my husband but can't afford a divorce presently. He deserted me four years ago so there's no chance of a reconciliation, and I don't want one.

Cy and I see each other every day at work and eat lunch together, but he doesn't take me out much. He isn't on the make — after all he has a girl — but he says he likes me better than her and is trying to find a way of breaking up without hurting her. Should I hang on and hope? — C. D

DEAR C:

Unless you have a divorce, you can't hope for anything more than Cy's present girl has — which is nothing to hang your life on. See a lawyer, even if you must borrow the money — or dun your deserted-husband for it. When you're legally free, you'll at least have a fighting chance for that ring — should you still want it. — H.

Cherry Sauce

Pork loin roast or fresh ham is more delightful than ever with a hot cherry sauce, easily made: combine one can (16 ounces) cherry pie filling with one-fourth cup of orange juice, one teaspoon grated lemon rind and one fourth teaspoon allspice. Cook, stirring constantly, until heated through. Yield: two and one-third cups.

COAT, SUIT AND PANTS

The little coat is still big news for fall, according to New York Couture Business Council, and there is lots of shaping in the brown double button coat, left, from Originala, who adds a regency collar and slanted patch pockets. Davidow shows the bronze tweedy check, center. The hip-riding jacket is shaped and trimmed with gold buttons and four flap pockets, matched to a stem of a skirt. From Nat Kaplan's collection, right, a white silk shirt tunic over gray pants can be worn together—or the dress alone—a new direction for the pants concept.

The new president is a past president of Reed Guild of Sunny Hills, a former vice president and present board member of the Marin Association for Mental Health. Bridegroom Chooses Appropriate Clothing

So, you're going to get married. You have set the date, made all the arrangements, invited the guests and now — the bridegroom wants to know, "What am I supposed to wear?"

He'll get a wide variety of supposedly authoritative answers to that question. Unfortunately, much of the advice is either all wrong or only partially correct.

There's a right outfit for the rites, and it is determined by the bride's gown and by the time of day of the ceremony.

OBVIOUSLY, THERE is no law that says a wedding isn't legal if the bridegroom isn't outfitted correctly.

However, the bridegroom can save a lot of embarrassment for all concerned by paying his bride the courtesy of wearing the proper outfit. He may be an innovator as far as business and sports clothes are concerned, but his wedding kit should follow the rules.

There are three types of wedding ceremonies: formal, semi-formal and informal. The degree of formality is determined by the bride's gown. Likewise, the degree of formality determines the type of outfit worn by the bridegroom. Another influencing factor is the time of day. If the ceremony takes place after six, evening attire is the obvious choice.

The ushers, the father of the bride and any other men who are members of the wedding party, dress the same as the groom. The only difference — and this applies to daytime outfits only — is that the bridegroom's tie or ascot may vary slightly in design from the others. That and his boutonniere, which is a sprig of lily-of-the-valley, supposedly taken from the bride's bouquet, are the only distinguishing marks of the bridegroom.

He never wears a black tie with a tailcoat or a white tie with a tuxedo. Neither does he do anything else that is original or distinguishing without fracturing the rules.

After all, the bride is the star of the show.

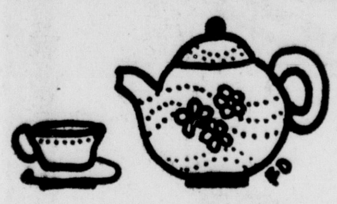
Community Group Promotes Friendship Among Neighbors

An experiment in promoting friendship among Homestead Valley neighbors was off to a good start last week when a drop-in coffee was held Wednesday at the Homestead Valley Community Association clubhouse in Mill Valley. All members of the community regardless of age were invited to attend.

The idea originated with Mrs. Kenyon Spalding, a former vice president of the association, as a get-acquainted plan for persons in the new Homestead Terrace area, especially young mothers who might like a change of scene.



At the first meeting plans were made to continue the get-togethers each month on the second Wednesday with the next one set for July 9 at 11:30 a.m. when games will be featured. There are no dues or admission charges, and coffee and cookies are provided through small donations.

For later meetings there may be programs consisting of lectures and travelogues by community members.

Mrs. Spalding emphasized that anyone interested is invited to drop in.

AT THEIR final meeting of the club year members of the Volunteer League of Kaiser Foundation Hospital will present certificates of appreciation to John A. Rauschkolb and Juanita Bond.

Gene Ackerman, hospital administrator, will present the awards at the gathering at Kaiser Foundation Hospital Monday at 1 p.m.

A BLUE ribbon certificate of achievement has been awarded the Novato Garden Club, Inc. by the California Garden Clubs, Inc. in recognition of outstanding work done in the promotion of Garden Club objectives, according to Mrs. Keith Cowan, president.

The certificate was signed by Mrs. Milton R. Bell, state president, and Mrs. F. E. Gillette, awards chairman for the state club.

BROOKSIDE Parent-Teacher Association has awarded honorary life memberships to Mrs. Walter Busse and Mrs. John Holm. The Marin women were honored at a founders day meeting held at the home of Mrs. Charles Methany.

Mrs. Busse, a past president and member of the P-TA board of directors, is a trustee of the San Anselmo School District. She is a graduate of the University of California and serves on the board of the American Red Cross, a post she has held the past 10 years. She helped to establish the Volunteer Bureau of Marin and is especially interested in developing volunteer programs for the public schools. She is the mother of four children.

Mrs. Holm was a president of P-TA and served on the board for seven years. She was instrumental in establishing the Educationally Handicapped program in the school district and works as a volunteer aide. She is an elder in the San Anselmo Presbyterian Church and a member of the League of Women Voters. Mr. and Mrs. Holm serve on the Citizen's Advisory Committee to the school board and are the parents of two children.

THE VOLUNTEER BUREAU of Marin is conducting a program to place young people in volunteer jobs this summer. Among the jobs available are: aides to handicapped children in summer school, art aides in Southern Marin schools, office assistants in poverty programs and health and welfare agencies, assistants for city-sponsored recreation, child care, day camp aides, theater work and many more.

Interested young people may obtain a brochure from the Bureau with a complete listing of jobs. Interview appointments may be made any day of the week between nine and five. The Volunteer Bureau is located at 725 A Street in San Rafael.

RECENTLY ELECTED to membership in the Outdoor Art Club in Mill Valley were Mmes. Ralph Livingston, Dean Meyer, Meta Spirz, Albert Connelly, Susan Tanner, John Collins, Joseph Tobin, Robert Mountjoy, M. Steven Green, Thomas Smiley, Edward Bassett, Richard Sloan, William Hogan, Carl Waldeck and Miss T. Diane Heaney. Mrs. William Perka was reinstated.

Engagement Announced

Mrs. Charles F. Whitehead of Novato is announcing the engagement of her daughter, Sandra Lee, to Sheldon S. Frisella of San Carlos.

Sandra is the daughter of the late Captain Whitehead and the sister of Barbara, her twin, Joanne and Chip Whitehead. She was graduated from Novato High School and plans to attend the College of San Mateo this fall.

The future bridegroom is employed by the Federal Fire Department at Hunters Point. He attended the College of San Mateo, realtor school, and is a member of the Marine Corps Reserves.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Frisella are the parents of Sheldon, and he is the brother of Frank and Evelyn Frisella, all of San Carlos.

Try Ring First

Superstitions that have gone out the window—that it is bad luck to try on or wear briefly the wedding ring before the actual ceremony. More sensible is for each party to try on the rings, slipping them on and off to make sure this can be done quickly and easily at the wedding.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Woman Waits Too Long, Regrets Not Making Decision Earlier

DEAR HELEN:

I was one of those who waited until the children were grown before making the break. My marriage was miserable. Three months after the wedding my husband had made it plain I didn't count, that he'd do as he pleased. By that time I was pregnant and hoped he'd change.

He did — for the worse.

During the next 20 years I went from hurt to hate and finally to indifference. He had his girl friends, I had our two children and a roof over our heads. Later on I got a good job, which made life bearable.

But when our daughters actually begged me to get a divorce because they couldn't stand their father's meanness, I quietly went to see a lawyer. My husband was away on one of his many "business trips," and I planned to tell him I was filing for divorce as soon as he returned home.

All three of us were so relieved, we had a celebration dinner — such was the extent of our disgust with this man who had never really been a husband or father.

Our relief was premature.

He was in an accident that night. The woman with him wasn't hurt badly, but my husband will live the rest of his life in a wheelchair, a complete cripple with partial brain damage.

I can't leave, of course. My conscience would never quit. I only hope that I won't show by my actions how much I regret having waited too long. Had I divorced him years ago, perhaps he wouldn't have needed liquor quite so much. He might have found a woman who could handle him. And I wouldn't be weighted down with debts, caring for — and pretending I care for — a man I despise.

You can't help me, Helen. I know what I must do. But perhaps some of your readers have had experiences similar to mine. Could you ask them to tell you how they lived through them? — TRAPPED

DEAR TRAPPED:

You have already received my personal letter offering encouragement and hope. I'm sure you'll hear from others who have also learned that God seldom closes one door without opening another.

Note to readers: Please send each of your letters to me inside a blank stamped envelope, and I'll forward them to TRAPPED. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Cy, this man I'm dating, says he likes me very much but I think he lives with another woman. When he gets his divorce, I'm afraid he'll marry her, although he says he doesn't want to get married right away. I hope this is true as I am separated from my husband but can't afford a divorce presently. He deserted me four years ago so there's no chance of a reconciliation, and I don't want one.

Cy and I see each other every day at work and eat lunch together, but he doesn't take me out much. He isn't on the make — after all he has a girl — but he says he likes me better than her and is trying to find a way of breaking up without hurting her. Should I hang on and hope? — C. D

DEAR C:

Unless you have a divorce, you can't hope for anything more than Cy's present girl has — which is nothing to hang your life on. See a lawyer, even if you must borrow the money — or dun your deserted-husband for it. When you're legally free, you'll at least have a fighting chance for that ring — should you still want it. — H.

Cherry Sauce

Pork loin roast or fresh ham is more delightful than ever with a hot cherry sauce, easily made: combine one can (16 ounces) cherry pie filling with one-fourth cup of orange juice, one teaspoon grated lemon rind and one fourth teaspoon allspice. Cook, stirring constantly, until heated through. Yield: two and one-third cups.

Stuart Heard of Mill Valley served as the best man, and escorting guests to seats were John Yalon, the bridegroom's brother, and Kenneth Englund, both of San Francisco.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Couderc of Mill Valley, Alberta was graduated from Marin Catholic High School and is a junior nursing student at the University of San Francisco. She is the sister of Mrs. Lloyd Rutherford of Mill Valley and Edward Couderc of Sausalito.

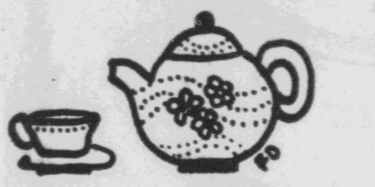
Community Group Promotes Friendship Among Neighbors

An experiment in promoting friendship among Homestead Valley neighbors was off to a good start last week when a drop-in coffee was held Wednesday at the Homestead Valley Community Association clubhouse in Mill Valley. All members of the community regardless of age were invited to attend.

The idea originated with Mrs. Kenyon Spalding, a former vice president of the association, as a get-acquainted plan for persons in the new Homestead Terrace area, especially young mothers who might like a change of scene.



At the first meeting plans were made to continue the get-togethers each month on the second Wednesday with the next one set for July 9 at 11:30 a.m. when games will be featured. There are no dues or admission charges, and coffee and cookies are provided through small donations.

For later meetings there may be programs consisting of lectures and travelogues by community members.

Mrs. Spalding emphasized that anyone interested is invited to drop in.

AT THEIR final meeting of the club year members of the Volunteer League of Kaiser Foundation Hospital will present certificates of appreciation to John A. Rauschkolb and Juanita Bond.

Gene Ackerman, hospital administrator, will present the awards at the gathering at Kaiser Foundation Hospital Monday at 1 p.m.

A BLUE ribbon certificate of achievement has been awarded the Novato Garden Club, Inc. by the California Garden Clubs, Inc. in recognition of outstanding work done in the promotion of Garden Club objectives, according to Mrs. Keith Cowan, president.

The certificate was signed by Mrs. Milton R. Bell, state president, and Mrs. F. E. Gillette, awards chairman for the state club.

BROOKSIDE PARENT-Teacher Association has awarded honorary life memberships to Mrs. Walter Busse and Mrs. John Holm. The Marin women were honored at a founders day meeting held at the home of Mrs. Charles Methany.

Mrs. Busse, a past president and member of the P-TA board of directors, is a trustee of the San Anselmo School District. She is a graduate of the University of California and serves on the board of the American Red Cross, a post she has held the past 10 years. She helped to establish the Volunteer Bureau of Marin and is especially interested in developing volunteer programs for the public schools. She is the mother of four children.

Mrs. Holm was a president of P-TA and served on the board for seven years. She was instrumental in establishing the Educationally Handicapped program in the school district and works as a volunteer aide. She is an elder in the San Anselmo Presbyterian Church and a member of the League of Women Voters. Mr. and Mrs. Holm serve on the Citizen's Advisory Committee to the school board and are the parents of two children.

THE VOLUNTEER BUREAU of Marin is conducting a program to place young people in volunteer jobs this summer. Among the jobs available are: aides to handicapped children in summer school, art aides in Southern Marin schools, office assistants in poverty programs and health and welfare agencies, assistants for city-sponsored recreation, child care, day camp aides, theater work and many more.

Interested young people may obtain a brochure from the Bureau with a complete listing of jobs. Interview appointments may be made any day of the week between nine and five. The Volunteer Bureau is located at 725 A Street in San Rafael.

RECENTLY ELECTED to membership in the Outdoor Art Club in Mill Valley were Mmes. Ralph Livingston, Dean Meyer, Meta Spirz, Albert Connelly, Susan Tanner, John Collins, Joseph Tobin, Robert Mountjoy, M. Steven Green, Thomas Smiley, Edward Bassett, Richard Sloan, William Hogan, Carl Waldeck and Miss T. Diane Heaney. Mrs. William Perka was reinstated.

Try Ring First

Superstitions that have gone out the window—that it is bad luck to try on or wear briefly the wedding ring before the actual ceremony. More sensible is for each party to try on the rings, slipping them on and off to make sure this can be done quickly and easily at the wedding.

Marichal Heads For Doctor's Office

Juan Complains Of Cold, But Reds Think He's Hot

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—One way to muffle the awesome Cincinnati Reds' batting attack is to throw Juan Marichal against it—even when the San Francisco Giants' ace is ailing.

Marichal, suffering from a severe cold he caught in Montreal two weeks ago, shackled the Reds, 4-0, on five hits last night, notched his 40th career shutout and improved his record to 8-2.

SADECKI

The Giants sent Ray Sadecki, 3-5, against the Reds' Jim Merritt, 6-3, today.

Reds' Manager Dave Bristol sat on his clubhouse step stool in disbelief after the game. The Reds have yet to defeat Marichal since he took over as skipper in 1966. The great righthander has won nine straight over the Reds since Sept. 22, 1965.

"I should be in the hospital," declared Marichal. "I think I had a temperature today, so I'm going to the doctor for a checkup."

Marichal's third shutout of the season lowered his earned run average to 2.08.

SLUGGERS

Cincinnati entered the game with a .287 team batting average and four batters above .332. They hadn't been effectively smothered since the Phillies' Rick Wise hurled a five-hit shutout May 15 winning 7-0.

"This shutout should make Marichal feel a lot better," offered defending National League batting champion Pete Rose, who entered the game batting .308.

"My screwball was working real well," added Marichal, who struck out eight.

"I don't know how he throws that pitch — I couldn't follow the spin," said Rose, who struck out twice.

'MASTER'

"Marichal is just a great control pitcher who's a master of every pitch," explained Bristol. "That screwball seems to just fall off his fingers—as if he's pulling a yo-yo."

Ron Hunt and Dick Dietz each had two runs batted in for the Giants. Dietz walked with the bases loaded off loser George Culver, 4-5, in the first and belted a run-scoring double off reliever Pedro Ramos in the seventh.

Hunt, on a tear since returning to the lineup, cracked a two-run double in the fourth. The scrappy second baseman also doubled in the eighth. In the seven games since his return, Hunt has reached base 19 times and scored eight runs.

'YOU BET'

"You bet I'm happy to be back," he said. "I'm trying real hard to keep the job. For awhile I felt I might be traded, but things worked out.

"I think my problem earlier this year was having too good a spring—I probably got overconfident when the season started," Hunt added.

Profitable Day Off For A's

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Oakland Athletics took over the American League Western Division lead and got a much-needed day of rest yesterday.

They took over the lead because Minnesota lost to the division's cellar team, California, and fell a half-game off the pace.

RAINED OUT

The A's got an unscheduled day of rest because their game with Kansas City was rained out. It will be played this evening as part of a twi-night double header.

A day of rest was what the Athletics and Royals needed too after a Monday doubleheader that totaled 25 innings.

The A's won the first game of the marathon 7-5 in 13 innings. The Royals came back in the second with a 3-2, 12-inning victory.

Chuck Dobson, 6-5, and John Odom, 8-3, are slated for Oakland mound chores today. Kansas City will use Jim Rooker, 0-3, and Dick Drago, 3-5.

While nothing was happening on the playing field yesterday, there was some business office activity for the Athletics.

Carl Finley, cousin of owner Charles O. Finely, confirmed he has resigned as A's business manager.

He said he submitted his resignation in mid-April and will open his own public relations, advertising and marketing firm in Oakland.

NOT UNHAPPY

"My decision was not reached out of any unhappiness with Charlie," he said. "My experience with Charlie has always been very congenial, and I can only praise his efforts to acquire first-quality players and to produce a winning baseball team."

He has been with the Athletics front office longer than any — 6½ years.

Formula A Cars To Provide Action

They'll be playing follow the liter in Sonoma County this weekend with some of America's foremost sports car drivers gunning for gold and glory in the Continental 49er Championship at Sears Point.

Headlining the two-day program will be some of the hottest machinery ever to set rubber on Northern California asphalt, the Formula A cars whose relatively new Continental Championship Series is rapidly capturing the fancy of America's motorsports buffs.

Developed by Sports Car Club of America in answer to the astronomical costs of Indianapolis championship cars and Canadian-American series cars, the Continental series of 13 races started in Riverside in April and will wind up in Sebring, Fla., in December. Sears Point is fourth stop on the agenda.

Cost Is Somewhat Lower

While the Indy cars cost anywhere between $60,000 and $100,000 and the Can-Ams from 75 to 100 Gs, you can pick up one of these Formula A jobs for a piddling $25,000 (driven only on Sundays by a little old leadfoot).

But don't think the bargain rate means 50 to 75 per cent less action. At Riverside, for example, winner John Cannon's Eagle-Chevy averaged 112.988 mph and posted a record lap speed of 121.6 mph, beating the Indy car lap mark of 118.556 by Dan Gurney and the 119.683 Trans-Am record by Bruce McLaren.

The Formula A's also provide for exciting races as the first three cars at Riverside finished within 56 seconds of each other.

While the Formula A's weight about the same as the Indy and Can-Am cars, the difference is in horsepower. Indy cars are limited to three-liter (255 cubic inch engines) while the Can-Am'ers (seven liter) have unlimited horsepower. Formula A cars have five liter engines (305 cubic inches).

Airfoils Are Allowed

The sleek, single seat, open cockpit, open wheel, rear engine Formula A's look similar to Indy cars except, of course, for the airfoils which are allowed by the SCCA but banned by the United States Auto Club. (A malfunctioning airfoil can be quite hazardous.)

If you have young'uns with you at the races and they are puzzled by the "spoilers," as airfoils are sometimes called, you can explain that their downward angle pushes down on the car to increase its traction, making for surer handling in turns and increasing lap speeds. Were the foil slanted upwards it would lift the car and the race that began at Sears Point could very well finish at Penngrove — as the Eagle-Chevy flies.

Domination By Chevy

Chevy-powered cars thus far have completely dominated the Continental Series, led by Sam Posey's Eagle Chevy with a first at Laguna Seca and second in Colorado, George Wintersteen's Lola T142 Chevy second in point standings, John Cannon's Eagle-Chevy and Rich Simons' Lola Chevy tied for third. Cannon won at Riverside and Simons at Colorado.

Sears officials expect between 30 and 35 Formula A's and a like number of Formula B and C cars that will race Saturday and Sunday. Saturday's feature attraction, in addition to Formula A practice and qualifying runs, will be the 100-mile Formula B/C championship race at 2:30 p.m. Sunday's 49-lap, 123-mile main event will begin at 1:15 p.m.

All told, there will be $24,000 in prize money. And that, my friends, is a lot of Sears Road Bucks.

Posey's Second Time Around

Incidentally, the boyish-looking, 24-year-old Posey will be the only Continental driver seeing Sears Point's tricky, 12-turn, 2.5-mile road circuit for the second time.

A few days after his Laguna Seca victory last month Sudden Sam tested the Sonoma County track and set a lap record of 1 minute, 42.8 seconds, or 89 miles per hour.

The track since then has been slightly altered to increase speed, so the Formula A's could average close to 100 mph on Sunday, according to Sears publicist Steve Castoldi. Far short of the Riverside records, but Sears is a much "tighter" circuit that will give the pros all they can handle.

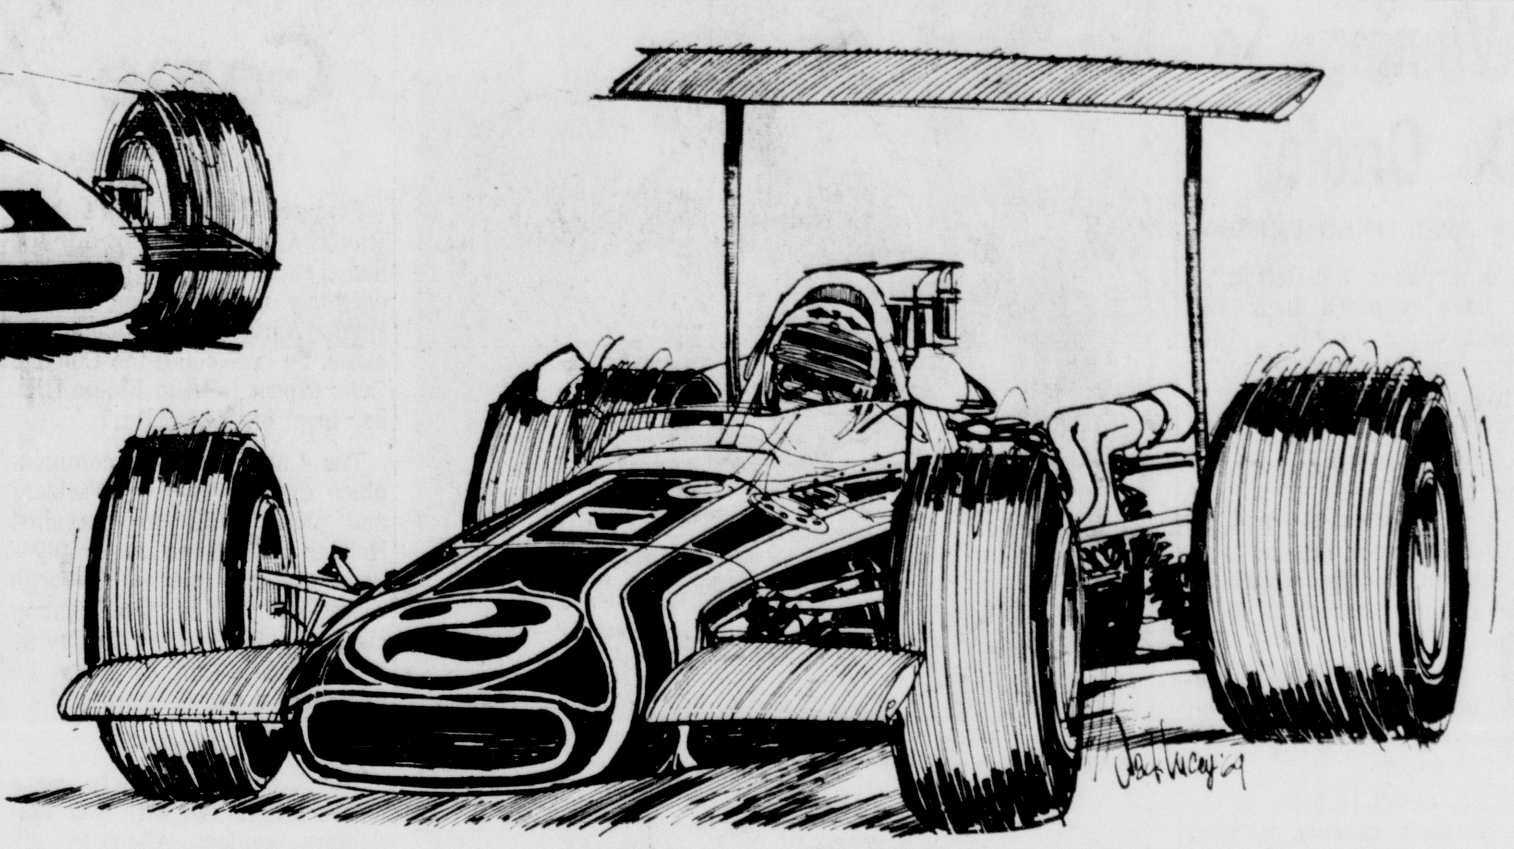
Champ Skaters In Pro Ranks

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—U.S. pairs champion iceskaters Ron and Cindy Kauffman have turned pro and are under a three-year contract to Shipstads & Johnson Ice Follies, it was announced yesterday.

Financial arrangements were not disclosed.

The brother-sister team placed first this year in the national senior pairs, first in the North American competition and fourth in world competition. They have been skating together for 13 years.

Ron, 22, and Cindy, 20, will make their professional debut July 16 at San Francisco's Winterland, joining Olympic gold medalist Peggy Fleming on the show roster.



SCREAMING EAGLES — John Cannon in his No. 2 Chevy-Eagle and Sam Posey in his No. 1 Classic Wax Special Chevy Eagle will be among the Formula A drivers gunning for top prize in this weekend's Continental 49er headliner at Sears Point International Raceway. ROZELLE OUT OF TOWN

Namath Wants To Meet

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Namath, the controversial New York Jets quarterback, has agreed to meet with pro football Commissioner Pete Rozelle but whether there'll be a meeting of the minds remains to be seen.

The meeting will probably be next week. Rozelle is fishing off the coast of lower California and Namath will be out of town until next week, too.

Namath and Jets President Phil Iselin had their first face-to-face meeting yesterday since June 6 when Namath tearfully announced he was quitting football rather than follow Rozelle's orders to give up his third-interest in a Manhattan restaurant allegedly frequented by undesirable characters.

News of an imminent Rozelle-Namath confrontation was the only item to emerge from the one-hour meeting between Namath and Iselin. There was no word on who's calling the plays.

Rozelle has said Namath must sit down with him before he will be allowed to play again even if he sells his interest in the restaurant, Bachelors III.

In Toronto, meantime, Jake Gauduar, commissioner of the Canadian Football League, dismissed a report that Namath might play in Canada.

Gaudaur told the Toronto Telegram that there was no way a CFL team could deal with Namath since he is under contract to an American team.

The Telegram quoted an unnamed personal friend of Namath as saying in a telephone interview from New York that a CFL team had invited Namath to play in Canada "but he's not saying which one."

NCAA 'WORLD SERIES'

Dolinsek Gets A Key Blow

COMBINED AP & UPI

OMAHA, Neb. — Three triples, one of them by former Novato High School star John Dolinsek, started a four-run explosion in the fifth inning to carry Arizona State to a 4-2 victory over Massachusetts and keep the Sun Devils alive in the NCAA double-elimination baseball championships yesterday.

Dolinsek, who was drafted by the Houston Astros last week, joined teammate Roger Detter and John Ray Powell in the triple barrage, an outburst that was abetted by a double by Lenny Randle and a single by Ralph Dick.

The Sun Dvils thus face the dubious situation of facing Tulsa, the only unbeaten team in the tournament, at 8 o'clock tonight.

Tulsa blanked New York University, 2-0, to give the Golden Hurricane a series record of 3-0. In the day's other game, Texas blasted Mississippi, 14-1, to eliminate the Rebels. Texas and NYU were to clash today.

EARLY LEAD

Arizona State overcame an early 1-0 Massachusetts lead with its big inning and hung on to win behind hurler Craig Swan, who got his ninth win of the season without a loss.

Reserve pitchers Reg Rowe and Jay Weinheimer combined for the Tulsa victory.

Texas pounded out three doubles, two triples and homers by Pat Brown and David Hall to crush Mississippi. The Longhorns totaled 13 hits.

Longhorn freshman righthander Bert Hooton won it for his second verdict in the series. He had an opening day shutout to his credit and now has a 12-0 season record.

San Jose Remains In Meet

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The NCAA charged yesterday that nine schools violated track rules by allowing athletes to participate in uncertified meets. But San Jose State and Louisiana State — two of the schools involved — said they plan to compete in the NCAA track and field championships anyway.

FAVORED

San Jose State, triggered by controversial sprinter John Carlos and Olympic champion Lee Evans, is one of the favorites for the team title in the NCAA meet that starts tomorrow on the Tennessee track. Louisiana State has entered Al Coffey, who has the nation's fastest time in the 440 this spring with a 45.6 clocking.

"I have every confidence that we will compete," said Robert Bronzan, athletic director of San Jose State.

"Coffey will run as scheduled," Carl Maddox, athletic director of Louisiana, said from Baton Rouge.

UCLA

Officials at UCLA, another team listed among the violators by the NCAA, were not available for comment but meet officials expect the Los Angeles school to compete.

Other schools that had athletes in uncertified meets last Saturday, the NCAA said, were Southern Methodist, Baylor, Prairie View, A&M, University of California at Santa Barbara, Northeast Louisiana and Texas Southern.

Laver Is Wimbledon Top Seed

LONDON (UPI)—The Wimbledon Seeding Committee agrees with tennis fans the world over. Rod Laver is the man to beat.

The red haired Australian has been top-seeded for the Wimbledon event June 23-July 5, in which he will be the defending champion.

Laver will be seeking his fourth Wimbledon crown, and also striving to keep alive his hopes for a second "grand slam," a feat never accomplished.

Tony Roche, of Australia, who bowed to Laver in Wimbledon's inaugural open in 1968, is second seeded and Tom Okker of Holland third. Ken Rosewall, who lost to Laver in the final of the French open, is placed fourth.

U.S. Open champion Arthur Ashe is slotted fifth. Ashe, who whipped Okker in the U.S. final, has been having his troubles on the European circuit, but is dangerous on grass.

The honor of the top spot among the women did not go to the defending champion, Mrs. Billie Jean King of Long Beach. Mrs. King, who will be seeking her fourth consecutive Wimbledon title, has been placed a notch below Mrs. Margaret Smith Court of Australia.

Mrs. Court, too, is seeking a grand slam. Like Laver, she won the championships of Australia and France. Prior to her marriage, she won at Wimbledon in 1963, defeating Billie Jean in the final and again in 1956 over Maria Bueno.

Only three Americans other than Billie Jean and Ashe are in the top 10 seeds. Davis Cup star Clark Graebner of New York was placed seventh, and Nancy Richey of San Angelo, Tex.and Julie Heldman of New York are fifth and seventh, respectively, in women's listing.

Two Rec Softball Teams Triumph

The Hurricanes and Marin Supply were winners in a pair of C-II division games in San Rafael Recreation Department softball play at Albert Field yesterday.

The Hurricanes stopped the Refectory, 8-4 and Marin Supply trounced the Post Office, 16-5.

Can 'Moo Cow' Spark Oakland To Pennant?

OAKLAND—We journalistic geniuses who watch the A's with regularity had doped it out to our sophisticated satisfaction. All that remained to happen was for Mister Finley to corroborate our wisdom.

There were these two very, very young outfielders, two Joes name of Rudi and Keough. The former was seemingly awkward, embarrassingly green afield. At the plate there loomed a potential for power but a halting swing. Keough, on the other hand, stroked smoothly at the dish and handled himself with grace and aplomb out there in the pasture.

BOTH WERE sort of local boys — Rudi from Modesto, both as a resident and California Leaguer, and Keough from Lafayette, just over the hills from the Oakland Coliseum. So there was a press box hope back there in late 1968 that these local kids would make good the following season. Alas, we knew it could never be. Keough yes, but Rudi not for a long time. In our hearts, we knew we were right.

Thus there was massive amazement on our part when Finley let Keough slip away to K.C. in the expansion draft — and kept Rudi. Oh well, France had given Jefferson the Louisiana Territory and the world survived.

OUR JUDGMENT was temporarily upheld when Keough led the Royals in batting in spring training and Rudi was sent down by the A's to Iowa. Humph, we humphed; and continued to snicker with pompous self-satisfaction as Keough slammed at a near .400 pace for the first three weeks of the season.

But suddenly the Great Commissioner in The Sky ordered the air let out of our balloons. Humble them, the thunder demanded. And in the sealed orders that followed, Keough was reduced to futility — and farmed to Omaha — while Rudi demolished the American Assn.

IN JUST over a month, Rudi hit .395 and drove in 56 runs. Had he stayed in Des Moines the entire season, Joe could have become the most potent minor leaguer since Steve Bilko, or even Rocky Nelson. Not to mention Lou Novikoff.

The Oakland brain trust had Rudi playing at first in Iowa, the thought being he might eventually serve the big club as a backup man to Danny Cater — and suffer less fielding embarrassment at the initial ottoman than in left. Also, the A's seemed secure — sort of — in leftfielders with Tommy Reynolds and Mike Hershberger. And the way Cater was hitting, it was unlikely there'd be a need to call up Joe at all in 1969.

BUT REASON IS not the way of baseball. Reynolds was hot and cold; Hershy, who's probably the highest-paid player on the A's, never did hit satisfactorily, and Cater lost 40 points on his batting average in three weeks.

Enter Joe Rudi, whom his teammates call "Moo Cow." Why. "Because he looks like a cow," says Rick Monday.

JOE STARTED in left in Washington during the current road trip and tripled home a run his first time at bat. Three nights later in Boston he made a couple of marvelous defensive plays—yes, in left—that saved an Oakland win. And Rudi was hitting the ball well, although not for average. Best of all, the A's were winning and, for a while, back in first place.

Can this 22-year-old lad with the large ears and bovine eyes be a harbinger of a pennant year? Well . . .

WHEN HE was called up for a brief time last season, Joe was instantly inserted in left field. And on that very night in his first A's game in '68, Rudi watched Jim Hunter throw a perfect game.

Joe Keough wasn't even here for that.

Tigers Keep Winning; So Do Orioles

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

All of a sudden, the Detroit Tigers have regained their 1968 championship form. Only there's one little hitch. They're not making much of a dent in the red-hot Baltimore Orioles' 1969 championship form.

The Tigers polished off the New York Yankees 8-0 and 6-3 in a doubleheader last night to run their winning streak to seven straight and eight in 10 outings.

But, the Orioles also won again, turning back Washington 5-1 for their fifth straight and 11th in 13 games.

The net result is this: At the start of their current winning streak, the Tigers were in third place, 9½ games behind the Orioles.

ONLY ONE GAME

Seven victories later, they're still third, and they've gained only one game on the American League's East Division leaders.

The Tigers have a 34-23 season mark. At this point a year ago, Detroit was 37-20 and led the league by 4½ games.

The Orioles, meanwhile, have lost only 17 of 62 games this year, an amazing clip.

"They're playing .725 ball," said Tiger Manager Mayo Smith. "There's no way they can keep that up all the way. But we'll just have to keep on our own pace until we meet them. You can't do anything about them when you don't play them."

In other A.L. activity, California trounced Minnesota 13-1 and Cleveland whipped Boston 4-2. Oakland at Kansas City and Seattle's doubleheader at Chicago were rained out.

SIX-HITTER

John Hiller checked New York on six hits in the opener, then Dick McAuliffe smashed a three-run homer and Ike Brown made his first major league hit a homer as the Tigers completed the sweep.

"I was kind of shaken," said Brown of his two-run shot off Mike Kekich in the fourth. "I guess everyone is when he gets into his first major league game."

Brown, a veteran of eight years in the minors, was called up only Monday from the Tigers' Toledo farm club.

Left-hander Mickey Lolich picked up his seventh victory in eight decisions in the nightcap, although he needed some help from Don McMahon after the Yankees pushed across three runs in the eighth.

Mike Cuellar, 7-5, stopped Washington on four hits, striking out 12 and walking only three.

BIG HITS

Paul Blair had a pair of doubles, driving in one run, and Dave Johnson homered and had two singles to pace the Orioles.

Andy Messersmith hurled a three-hitter and Rick Reichardt and Bill Voss backed him with homers as California knocked the Twins out of the West Division lead.

The Twins, who took the top spot on Monday night, trail idle Oakland by only .002 percentage points.

AN EDGE FOR THE GOP

Former major league baseball pitcher Wilmer "Vinegar Bend" Mizell, now a Republican Congressman from North Carolina, pitched during the annual Congressional Baseball game at Robert F. Kennedy Stadium last night, giving the GOP a distinct professional edge. Mizell pitched two scoreless innings as the Republicans beat the Democrats, 7-2, for their seventh straight win. Mets Play 4-Man Outfield Game Against Phil's Allen

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Four outfielders didn't keep Richie Allen from going for the home run, and three outfielders certainly weren't going to stop Hank Aaron from doing the same. So how could the Chicago Cubs expect to keep Richie Hebner from hitting singles?

The Cubs tried the commonplace defense of four infielders and three outfielders against Hebner and failed miserably—twice—when the Pittsburgh rookie singled in the winning runs in both games yesterday as the Pirates swept the Cubs 1-0 and 4-3 in a twi-night twinbill.

IMAGINATIVE

The New York Mets were most imaginative with four outfielders against Allen in the ninth inning of their opener against Philadelphia. And while the strategy had little effect on Allen, he did strike out going for a tying homer and the Mets won 1-0, and then dropped the nightcap 6-3.

Houston probably wishes it had tried the unusual defense against Aaron. It couldn't have done any harm because Aaron hammered a homer in the ninth inning to give Atlanta a 6-5 victory over the Astros.

In other National League games, nothing could stop Los Angeles as the Dodgers swept San Diego 7-3 and 11-0, Juan Marichal pitched San Francisco by Cincinnati 4-0 and St. Louis tripped Montreal 2-0 behind Steve Carlton and Joe Hoerner.

.319 MARK

Hebner, one of the surprises of the league with a .319 average, has only three home runs among his 67 hits, but singles were enough to drop the West Division leading Cubs twice.

After Matty Alou, the league's leading hitter, doubled in the seventh inning of the opener against loser Ferguson Jenkins, 8-4, Hebner decided the contest with a run-scoring single.

Bob Veale, 4-7, relieved by Bruce Dal Canton in the eighth, got the victory.

Then, in the ninth inning of the nightcap, Hebner rubbed salt in the Chicago wound when the Cubs walked Alou intentionally to fill the bases and Hebner delivered another single to break a 3-3 deadlock.

His other hit, another single, came when the Pirates tied the game with two runs in the eighth inning, undoing the damage caused by Chicago homers by Don Kessinger, Willie Smith and Billy Williams in the third inning for a 3-1 lead.

THREE PITCHES

Another rookie, Gary Gentry, 6-5, of the Mets, proved more effective than Manager Gil Hodges' strategy as he stopped the Phillies' five-game winning streak with a two-hitter. When Hodges chose to move second baseman Al Weis into the outfield with two out and none on in the ninth and the slugging Allen at bat, Gentry responded by striking out Allen on three pitches.

Ken Boswell's single, a balk and J.C. Martin's single in the seventh inning beat rookie Billy Champion, 1-2, who gave only four hits in eight innings.

Hodges, following the same strategy Cincinnati tried against San Francisco'w Willie McCovey Monday, explained that he wanted to keep Allen from getting an extra base hit. And Allen called it "a darn smart move," but admitted he still was up there going for it (a home run)."

Oddly, Allen homered his first time up in the second game and rookie Larry Hisle hit two behind Grant Jackson's six-hitter as the Phillies salvaged a split.

18TH CLOUT

Houston, in contrast, stuck with three outfielders and Aaron led off the ninth of a 5-5 game with his 18th homer for the Braves' fourth consecutive victory.

Andy Kosco capped a seven-run seventh inning for Los Angeles in the opener with a two-run homer and the Dodgers erupted for six runs, three on Willie Crawford's homer, in the fourth inning of the nightcap. Kosco also drove in three runs in the second game as Alan Foster, 2-4, scattered seven hits and extended his scoreless string to 21 innings.

Marichal Heads For Doctor's Office

Juan Complains Of Cold, But Reds Think He's Hot

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—One way to muffle the awesome Cincinnati Reds' batting attack is to throw Juan Marichal against it—even when the San Francisco Giants' ace is ailing.

Marichal, suffering from a severe cold he caught in Montreal two weeks ago, shackled the Reds, 4-0, on five hits last night, notched his 40th career shutout and improved his record to 8-2.

SADECKI

The Giants sent Ray Sadecki, 3-5, against the Reds' Jim Merritt, 6-3, today.

Reds' Manager Dave Bristol sat on his clubhouse step stool in disbelief after the game. The Reds have yet to defeat Marichal since he took over as skipper in 1966. The great righthander has won nine straight over the Reds since Sept. 22, 1965.

"I should be in the hospital," declared Marichal. "I think I had a temperature today, so I'm going to the doctor for a checkup."

Marichal's third shutout of the season lowered his earned run average to 2.08.

SLUGGERS

Cincinnati entered the game with a .287 team batting average and four batters above .332. They hadn't been effectively smothered since the Phillies' Rick Wise hurled a five-hit shutout May 15 winning 7-0.

"This shutout should make Marichal feel a lot better," offered defending National League batting champion Pete Rose, who entered the game batting .208.

"My screwball was working real well," added Marichal, who struck out eight.

"I don't know how he throws that pitch — I couldn't follow the spin," said Rose, who struck out twice.

'MASTER'

"Marichal is just a great control pitcher who's a master of every pitch," explained Bristol. "That screwball seems to just fall off his fingers—as if he's pulling a yo-yo."

Ron Hunt and Dick Dietz each had two runs batted in for the Giants. Dietz walked with the bases loaded off loser George Culver, 4-5, in the first and belted a run-scoring double off reliever Pedro Ramos in the seventh.

Hunt, on a tear since returning to the lineup, cracked a two-run double in the fourth. The scrappy second baseman also doubled in the eighth. In the seven games since his return, Hunt has reached base 19 times and scored eight runs.

'YOU BET'

"You bet I'm happy to be back," he said. "I'm trying real hard to keep the job. For awhile I felt I might be traded, but things worked out.

"I think my problem earlier this year was having too good a spring—I probably got overconfident when the season started," Hunt added.

Profitable Day Off For A's

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Oakland Athletics took over the American League Western Division lead and got a much-needed day of rest yesterday.

They took over the lead because Minnesota lost to the division's cellar team, California, and fell a half-game off the pace.

RAINED OUT

The A's got an unscheduled day of rest because their game with Kansas City was rained out. It will be played this evening as part of a twi-night double header.

A day of rest was what the Athletics and Royals needed too after a Monday doubleheader that totaled 25 innings.

The A's won the first game of the marathon 7-5 in 13 innings. The Royals came back in the second with a 3-2, 12-inning victory.

Chuck Dobson, 6-5, and John Odom, 8-3, are slated for Oakland mound chores today. Kansas City will use Jim Rooker, 0-3, and Dick Drago, 3-5.

While nothing was happening on the playing field yesterday, there was some business office activity for the Athletics.

Carl Finley, cousin of owner Charles O. Finely, confirmed he has resigned as A's business manager.

He said he submitted his resignation in mid-April and will open his own public relations, advertising and marketing firm in Oakland.

NOT UNHAPPY

"My decision was not reached out of any unhappiness with Charlie," he said. "My experience with Charlie has always been very congenial, and I can only praise his efforts to acquire first-quality players and to produce a winning baseball team."

He has been with the Athletics front office longer than any — 6½ years.

Formula A Cars To Provide Action

They'll be playing follow the liter in Sonoma County this weekend with some of America's foremost sports car drivers gunning for gold and glory in the Continental 49er Championship at Sears Point.

Headlining the two-day program will be some of the hottest machinery ever to set rubber on Northern California asphalt, the Formula A cars whose relatively new Continental Championship Series is rapidly capturing the fancy of America's motorsports buffs.

Developed by Sports Car Club of America in answer to the astronomical costs of Indianapolis championship cars and Canadian-American series cars, the Continental series of 13 races started in Riverside in April and will wind up in Sebring, Fla., in December. Sears Point is fourth stop on the agenda.

Cost Is Somewhat Lower

While the Indy cars cost anywhere between $60,000 and $100,000 and the Can-Ams from 75 to 100 Gs, you can pick up one of these Formula A jobs for a piddling $25,000 (driven only on Sundays by a little old leadfoot).

But don't think the bargain rate means 50 to 75 per cent less action. At Riverside, for example, winner John Cannon's Eagle-Chevy averaged 112.988 mph and posted a record lap speed of 121.6 mph, beating the Indy car lap mark of 118.556 by Dan Gurney and the 119.683 Trans-Am record by Bruce McLaren.

The Formula A's also provide for exciting races as the first three cars at Riverside finished within 56 seconds of each other.

While the Formula A's weight about the same as the Indy and Can-Am cars, the difference is in horsepower. Indy cars are limited to three-liter (255 cubic inch engines) while the Can-Am'ers (seven liter) have unlimited horsepower. Formula A cars have five liter engines (305 cubic inches).

Airfoils Are Allowed

The sleek, single seat, open cockpit, open wheel, rear engine Formula A's look similar to Indy cars except, of course, for the airfoils which are allowed by the SCCA but banned by the United States Auto Club. (A malfunctioning airfoil can be quite hazardous.)

If you have young'uns with you at the races and they are puzzled by the "spoilers," as airfoils are sometimes called, you can explain that their downward angle pushes down on the car to increase its traction, making for surer handling in turns and increasing lap speeds. Were the foil slanted upwards it would lift the car and the race that began at Sears Point could very well finish at Penngrove — as the Eagle-Chevy flies.

Domination By Chevy

Chevy-powered cars thus far have completely dominated the Continental Series, led by Sam Posey's Eagle Chevy with a first at Laguna Seca and second in Colorado, George Wintersteen's Lola T142 Chevy second in point standings, John Cannon's Eagle-Chevy and Rich Simons' Lola Chevy tied for third. Cannon won at Riverside and Simons at Colorado.

Sears officials expect between 30 and 35 Formula A's and a like number of Formula B and C cars that will race Saturday and Sunday. Saturday's feature attraction, in addition to Formula A practice and qualifying runs, will be the 100-mile Formula B/C championship race at 2:30 p.m. Sunday's 49-lap, 123-mile main event will begin at 1:15 p.m.

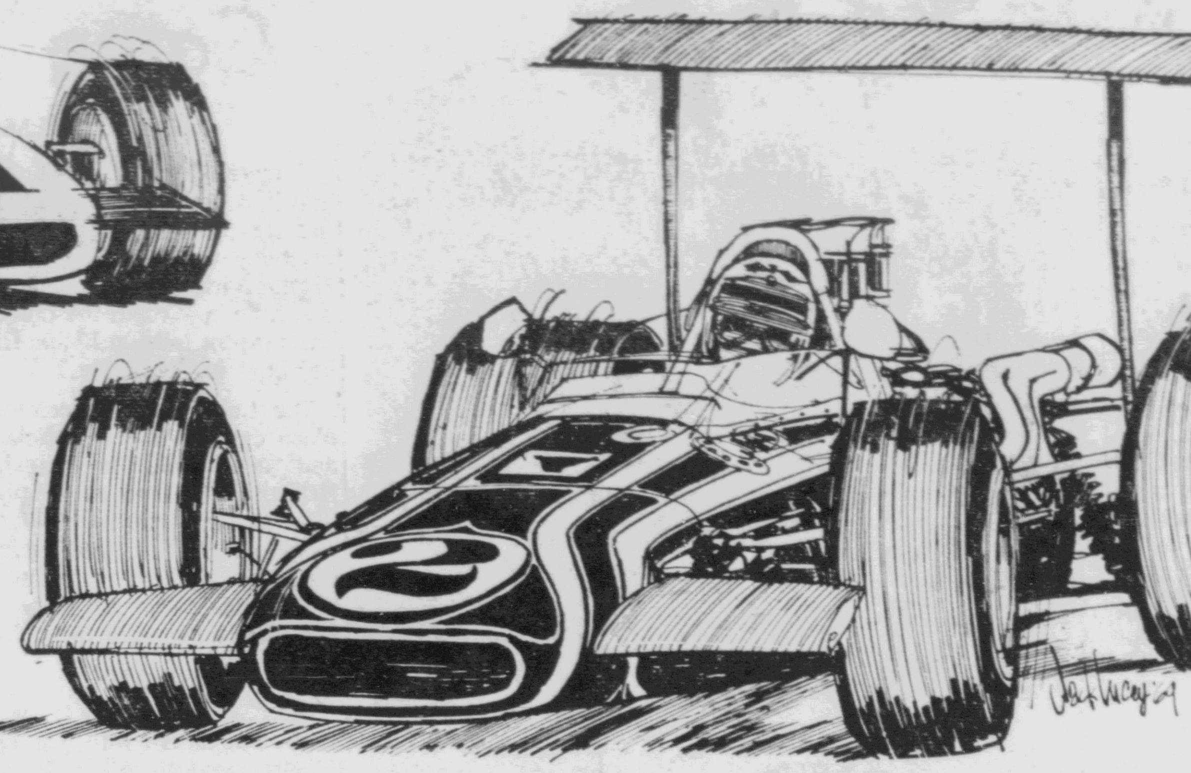
All told, there will be $24,000 in prize money. And that, my friends, is a lot of Sears Road Bucks.

Posey's Second Time Around

Incidentally, the boyish-looking, 24-year-old Posey will be the only Continental driver seeing Sears Point's tricky, 12-turn, 2.5-mile road circuit for the second time.

A few days after his Laguna Seca victory last month Sudden Sam tested the Sonoma County track and set a lap record of 1 minute, 42.8 seconds, or 89 miles per hour.

The track since then has been slightly altered to increase speed, so the Formula A's could average close to 100 mph on Sunday, according to Sears publicist Steve Castoldi. Far short of the Riverside records, but Sears is a much "tighter" circuit that will give the pros all they can handle.



SCREAMING EAGLES — John Cannon in his No. 2 Chevy-Eagle and Sam Posey in his No. 1 Classic Wax Special Chevy Eagle will be among the Formula A drivers gunning for top prize in this weekend's Continental 49er headliner at Sears Point International Raceway. ROZELLE OUT OF TOWN

Namath Wants To Meet

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Namath, the controversial New York Jets quarterback, has agreed to meet with pro football Commissioner Pete Rozelle but whether there'll be a meeting of the minds remains to be seen.

The meeting will probably be next week. Rozelle is fishing off the coast of lower California and Namath will be out of town until next week, too.

Namath and Jets President Phil Iselin had their first face-to-face meeting yesterday since June 6 when Namath tearfully announced he was quitting football rather than follow Rozelle's orders to give up his third-interest in a Manhattan restaurant allegedly frequented by undesirable characters.

News of an imminent Rozelle-Namath confrontation was the only item to emerge from the one-hour meeting between Namath and Iselin. There was no word on who's calling the plays.

Rozelle has said Namath must sit down with him before he will be allowed to play again even if he sells his interest in the restaurant, Bachelors III.

In Toronto, meantime, Jake Gauduar, commissioner of the Canadian Football League, dismissed a report that Namath might play in Canada.

Gaudaur told the Toronto Telegram that there was no way a CFL team could deal with Namath since he is under contract to an American team.

The Telegram quoted an unnamed personal friend of Namath as saying in a telephone interview from New York that a CFL team had invited Namath to play in Canada "but he's not saying which one."

NCAA 'WORLD SERIES'

Dolinsek Gets A Key Blow

COMBINED AP & UPI

OMAHA, Neb. — Three triples, one of them by former Novato High School star John Dolinsek, started a four-run explosion in the fifth inning to carry Arizona State to a 4-2 victory over Massachusetts and keep the Sun Devils alive in the NCAA double-elimination baseball championships yesterday.

Dolinsek, who was drafted by the Houston Astros last week, joined teammate Roger Detter and John Ray Powell in the triple barrage, an outburst that was abetted by a double by Lenny Randle and a single by Ralph Dick.

The Sun Dvils thus face the dubious situation of facing Tulsa, the only unbeaten team in the tournament, at 8 o'clock tonight.

Tulsa blanked New York University, 2-0, to give the Golden Hurricane a series record of 3-0. In the day's other game, Texas blasted Mississippi, 14-1, to eliminate the Rebels. Texas and NYU were to clash today.

EARLY LEAD

Arizona State overcame an early 1-0 Massachusetts lead with its big inning and hung on to win behind hurler Craig Swan, who got his ninth win of the season without a loss.

Reserve pitchers Reg Rowe and Jay Weinheimer combined for the Tulsa victory.

Texas pounded out three doubles, two triples and homers by Pat Brown and David Hall to crush Mississippi. The Longhorns totaled 13 hits.

Longhorn freshman righthander Bert Hooton won it for his second verdict in the series. He had an opening day shutout to his credit and now has a 12-0 season record.

San Jose Remains In Meet

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The NCAA charged yesterday that nine schools violated track rules by allowing athletes to participate in uncertified meets. But San Jose State and Louisiana State — two of the schools involved — said they plan to compete in the NCAA track and field championships anyway.

FAVORED

San Jose State, triggered by controversial sprinter John Carlos and Olympic champion Lee Evans, is one of the favorites for the team title in the NCAA meet that starts tomorrow on the Tennessee track. Louisiana State has entered Al Coffey, who has the nation's fastest time in the 440 this spring with a 45.6 clocking.

"I have every confidence that we will compete," said Robert Bronzan, athletic director of San Jose State.

"Coffey will run as scheduled," Carl Maddox, athletic director of Louisiana, said from Baton Rouge.

UCLA

Officials at UCLA, another team listed among the violators by the NCAA, were not available for comment but meet officials expect the Los Angeles school to compete.

Other schools that had athletes in uncertified meets last Saturday, the NCAA said, were Southern Methodist, Baylor, Prairie View, A&M, University of California at Santa Barbara, Northeast Louisiana and Texas Southern.

Laver Is Wimbledon Top Seed

LONDON (UPI)—The Wimbledon Seeding Committee agrees with tennis fans the world over. Rod Laver is the man to beat.

The red haired Australian has been top-seeded for the Wimbledon event June 23-July 5, in which he will be the defending champion.

Laver will be seeking his fourth Wimbledon crown, and also striving to keep alive his hopes for a second "grand slam," a feat never accomplished.

Tony Roche, of Australia, who bowed to Laver in Wimbledon's inaugural open in 1968, is second seeded and Tom Okker of Holland third. Ken Rosewall, who lost to Laver in the final of the French open, is placed fourth.

U.S. Open champion Arthur Ashe is slotted fifth. Ashe, who whipped Okker in the U.S. final, has been having his troubles on the European circuit, but is dangerous on grass.

The honor of the top spot among the women did not go to the defending champion, Mrs. Billie Jean King of Long Beach. Mrs. King, who will be seeking her fourth consecutive Wimbledon title, has been placed a notch below Mrs. Margaret Smith Court of Australia.

Mrs. Court, too, is seeking a grand slam. Like Laver, she won the championships of Australia and France. Prior to her marriage, she won at Wimbledon in 1963, defeating Billie Jean in the final and again in 1956 over Maria Bueno.

Only three Americans other than Billie Jean and Ashe are in the top 10 seeds. Davis Cup star Clark Graebner of New York was placed seventh, and Nancy Richey of San Angelo, Tex.and Julie Heldman of New York are fifth and seventh, respectively, in women's listing.

Two Rec Softball Teams Triumph

The Hurricanes and Marin Supply were winners in a pair of C-II division games in San Rafael Recreation Department softball play at Albert Field yesterday.

The Hurricanes stopped the Refectory, 8-4 and Marin Supply trounced the Post Office, 16-5.

Banner Waterfowl Season Predicted For Cal Hunters

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Duck hunting could be on the upswing in California this year. Reasons: More water; more ducks.

So far the 1960's have been frustrating for waterfowl shooters. But now U.S. Department of the Interior, long noted for its pessimism over the future of ducks, believes this could be a banner year.

A recently completed aerial survey by pilot - biologists showed heavy rains have left an abundant water supply in just about every area of North America where ducks and geese breed in quantity. Large populations of the birds also were noted.

"This could be an excellent production year," said Dr. Leslie L. Glasgow, Assistant Secretary of the Interior for Fish and Wildlife, Parks and Marine Resources. Dr. Glasgow could have much to say about the number of shooting days and bag limits which will be allowed this fall.

EARLY NESTING

A uniformly early season of favorable weather has set in after one of the wettest, snowiest northern winters in recent years. This makes it possible for massive early nesting in the areas of the key Canadian prairie provinces which have been drought stricken for nearly 10 years.

Of special interest to California hunters is news that Alberta, which normally funnels the bulk of its ducks into the Pacific Flyway, boasts so much water and so many ducks the census takers are having a tough time making an accurate tally. Alberta ducks generally migrate through the Sacramento and San Joaquin Delta regions.

Additional aerial surveys and brook counts will be needed before the Department of the Interior sets fall duck hunting regulations during August.

But this week, the Federal authorities did put out their first optimistic duck forecast since the late 1950's when ducks were so plentiful that California shooters were granted 105 days of hunting with a daily bag and possession limit of 10 birds.

Moody Late Arrival For Kemper

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP) — For the first time in his career, Orville Moody is ranked as one of the prime contenders for a pro golf crown.

The tough, stocky former Army sergeant who made last week's United States Open—the world's most prestigious title—his first tour victory, was one of the late arrivals for the $150,000 Kemper Open.

NO PRACTICE

The long-shot Open champion didn't get in from Texas in time to take a practice round on the long, lush Quail Hollow Country Club course, a rolling, 7,205 yard, par 72 layout.

But the ruddy-faced guy, a 14 - year Army veteran who came on the tour less than two years ago, was scheduled to participate in today's pro-am event that precedes tomorrow's start of the 72-hole event.

Among the missing in the chase for the $30,000 top prize are Jack Nicklaus and Billy Casper, who finished well back in the national championship, Gene Littler, who missed the cut for the final two rounds of the Open, and Miller Barber, the third round leader who blew to a 78 in the final round.

PALMER'S HERE

Besides Moody, other late arrivals included Arnold Palmer, the struggling dynamo whose last victory was in the Kemper last year, when it was played in New England, and Lee Trevino, the deposed Open champ who is bothered by an aching left knee.

Both Palmer and Trevino rank high among the challengers, along with Deane Beman, the little man from Bethesda, Md., who finished in a tie for second at the Open, gangling Masters champ George Archer and 49-year-old Julius Boros, the PGA titleholder.

"It's a very long course," the short-hitting Beman said. "But it should be a great test of golf.

Quarterback Domres Signs Charger Pact

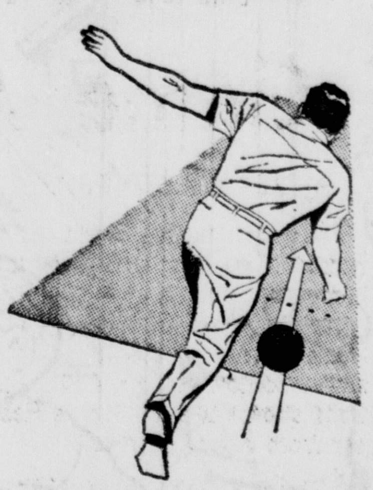
SAN DIEGO (AP) — The San Diego Chargers of the American Football League yesterday signed quarterback Marty Domres of Columbia, their No. 1 draft choice, and end Skip Orszulak of Pittsburgh, No. 5.

Terms were not announced.

The 215-pound Domres, who stands 6-foot-3½, was third in the nation in total offense in 1968 with 2,404 yards and fourth in passing with 1,133.

BOWLING TIPS

By MARION LADEWIG



Even beginning bowlers will usually do better if they adopt the spot system quickly, merely because it shortens their target distance. In the spot system you merely select the arrow some 15 feet out on the lane over which your ball rolls when it travels to the pocket. When you've found this arrow (or the board nearest it), that becomes your target instead of the pins some 60 feet away.

AT SEARS

Continental Drivers Chase Posey

The season point standings in the Sports Car Club of America's Continental Championships Series may undergo an overhaul after the noise dies down at Sears Point International Race in Sonoma County this weekend.

All top eight drivers in the point standings for the Formula A racers will be on hand for the fourth race in the series, a 49-lap, 123.6-mile test set for Sunday. Qualifying and Formula B and C races Saturday and Sunday will supplement the main event.

With nine points going to the winner of this race, 24-year-old Sam Posey of Sharon, Conn., could be deposed as current leader. He's now on top with 15 points but at least four other drivers have a shot at vaulting into the lead.

Closest is George Wintersteen, currently the runnerup with 11 points. Wintersteen, of Villanova, Pa., is last year's Formula A champion and is a consistent "in the money" driver.

CANNON TIED

In a third place tie are John Cannon, the former Canadian now living in Los Angeles, and Rich Simons of Salt Lake City, Utah, each with nine points.

Lothar Motschenbacher, veteran driver from Beverly Hills, is next with seven points.

Rounding out the top eight are Chuck Dietrich of Sandusky, Ohio, 1967 Formula B champion; Bud Morley of Denver, Colo., in his second year of Formula A racing, and Tony Adamowitz of New Jersey, each with four points.

The front-runners in the Continental series will be shooting for first-place prize money of $2,500 plus contingency and lap money.

MARIN COUNTY GOLF NOTES

Junior League In Full Swing

Two Marin County golf clubs are represented in the Bay Cities League of Junior Golfers, a league which has expanded from six to twelve teams during its three years of existence.

Meadow Club of Fairfax and Marin Country Club of Novato are in the league this year, with boys aged 12 through 20 getting in on the action.

"The league gives the 19 and 20-year-olders something to do," explains Bill Carewe of Meadow Club, head of the Fairfax team and an officer in the league.

TWO DIVISIONS

Growth of the league has forced it to split into two divisions of six teams each. Along with the two Marin teams in one division are Green Hills of Millbrae, Palo Alto Hills, Peninsula Club of San Mateo and Stanford Golf Club.

Marin Country Club's team has had two matches so far this season, losing twice to Peninsula Club, 30-6 the first time and then 24-12 in a rematch last Saturday on the Novato course. Meadow Club hasn't played any matches yet.

GAIN EXPERIENCE

Although there are 33 players on the Meadow Club team, only eight compete in the tourney championships, the others playing for the experience. Among the top players are Dave Basham, brothers George, Art and Ed Carewe, Bill Donaldson, Nip Grey, Steve Hartman, Tom Schaal, Jim Wilhelm and Jeb Harrison.

There are 16 players on the Marin C.C. team, led by Mike Ahern, Brian Telford, Greg Davenport, brothers Bob and Paul Sherry, Chuck Raznakov, brothers Dick and Jeff Lesieur Richard Taylor.

FOUR MARIN County golfers will be trying their hand in championship flight of the 58th annual California State Amateur championships at Cypress Point and Pebble Beach golf courses.

Mat Palacio Jr. of San Rafael, winner of this tournament in 1936, will be trying to bring back the good old days. Other Marin golfers who will be in the qualifying rounds next Monday and Tuesday include Buzz Beattie Jr. of Ross, Kai Thomsen of Novato, and Joseph Thurston of Mill Valley. Beattie is a two-handicapper, the other three carry handicaps of four strokes.

WITH VISIONS of Public Links championships in their heads, 10 Marin County golfers will be trying for four vacant spots alloted to the greater Bay Area for the 44th U.S. Amateur Public Links Championship scheduled July 9-12.

Teeing off at the Harding Park course in San Francisco Saturday, among 121 hopefuls, will be Jerry Santiago, George Greenwood, Mike Doris and Doug Francisco of San Rafael, Robert Shultz of Novato, Russ Adams of Kentfield, James Brown of San Geronimo, Kevin Hogan and David Haberlin of Mill Valley, and George Ambrosio of Forest Knolls. Adams is 1968 winner of the Marin County Tournament of Champions, representing Mill Valley Golf Club.

CONGRATULATIONS to Mrs. John Siebler of Novato for the hole-in-one she shot last week at Las Gallinas course north of San Rafael.

MARIO COLOMBO of San Rafael is an early entrant in the annual Nugget Golf Classic at Sparks, Nev., a 54-holer set June 23-26.

TWO MARIN COUNTY high school golfers will be playing in the Pro-Youth Golf Classic's California state finals next month in San Luis Obispo after qualifying at Napa's Silverado North course last weekend.

They are Kelly Wolfe, 17, of San Rafael High, and Arthur Cudworth III, 16, of Terra Linda High. With scores of 79 and 84 respectively, they were among 19 Northern California juniors who qualified for the state playoffs.

The three lowest qualifiers at San Luis Obispo will proceed to the nationals in Detroit Aug. 6-10 where they will be teamed with touring professionals.

The national tournament is sponsored by Independent Insurance Agents Association of America.

Can 'Moo Cow' Spark Oakland To Pennant?

OAKLAND—We journalistic geniuses who watch the A's with regularity had doped it out to our sophisticated satisfaction. All that remained to happen was for Mister Finley to corroborate our wisdom.

There were these two very, very young outfielders, two Joes name of Rudi and Keough. The former was seemingly awkward, embarrassingly green afield. At the plate there loomed a potential for power but a halting swing. Keough, on the other hand, stroked smoothly at the dish and handled himself with grace and aplomb out there in the pasture.

BOTH WERE sort of local boys — Rudi from Modesto, both as a resident and California Leaguer, and Keough from Lafayette, just over the hills from the Oakland Coliseum. So there was a press box hope back there in late 1968 that these local kids would make good the following season. Alas, we knew it could never be. Keough yes, but Rudi not for a long time. In our hearts, we knew we were right.

Thus there was massive amazement on our part when Finley let Keough slip away to K.C. in the expansion draft — and kept Rudi. Oh well, France had given Jefferson the Louisiana Territory and the world survived.

OUR JUDGMENT was temporarily upheld when Keough led the Royals in batting in spring training and Rudi was sent down by the A's to Iowa. Humph, we humphed; and continued to snicker with pompous self-satisfaction as Keough slammed at a near .400 pace for the first three weeks of the season.

But suddenly the Great Commissioner in The Sky ordered the air let out of our balloons. Humble them, the thunder demanded. And in the sealed orders that followed, Keough was reduced to futility — and farmed to Omaha — while Rudi demolished the American Assn.

IN JUST over a month, Rudi hit .395 and drove in 56 runs. Had he stayed in Des Moines the entire season, Joe could have become the most potent minor leaguer since Steve Bilko, or even Rocky Nelson. Not to mention Lou Novikoff.

The Oakland brain trust had Rudi playing at first in Iowa, the thought being he might eventually serve the big club as a backup man to Danny Cater — and suffer less fielding embarrassment at the initial ottoman than in left. Also, the A's seemed secure — sort of — in leftfielders with Tommy Reynolds and Mike Hershberger. And the way Cater was hitting, it was unlikely there'd be a need to call up Joe at all in 1969.

BUT REASON IS not the way of baseball. Reynolds was hot and cold; Hershy, who's probably the highest-paid player on the A's, never did hit satisfactorily, and Cater lost 40 points on his batting average in three weeks.

Enter Joe Rudi, whom his teammates call "Moo Cow." Why. "Because he looks like a cow," says Rick Monday.

JOE STARTED in left in Washington during the current road trip and tripled home a run his first time at bat. Three nights later in Boston he made a couple of marvelous defensive plays—yes, in left—that saved an Oakland win. And Rudi was hitting the ball well, although not for average. Best of all, the A's were winning and, for a while, back in first place.

Can this 22-year-old lad with the large ears and bovine eyes be a harbinger of a pennant year? Well . . .

WHEN HE was called up for a brief time last season, Joe was instantly inserted in left field. And on that very night in his first A's game in '68, Rudi watched Jim Hunter throw a perfect game.

Joe Keough wasn't even here for that.

Tigers Keep Winning; So Do Orioles

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

All of a sudden, the Detroit Tigers have regained their 1968 championship form. Only there's one little hitch. They're not making much of a dent in the red-hot Baltimore Orioles' 1969 championship form.

The Tigers polished off the New York Yankees 8-0 and 6-3 in a doubleheader last night to run their winning streak to seven straight and eight in 10 outings.

But, the Orioles also won again, turning back Washington 5-1 for their fifth straight and 11th in 13 games.

The net result is this: At the start of their current winning streak, the Tigers were in third place, 9½ games behind the Orioles.

ONLY ONE GAME

Seven victories later, they're still third, and they've gained only one game on the American League's East Division leaders.

The Tigers have a 34-23 season mark. At this point a year ago, Detroit was 37-20 and led the league by 4½ games.

The Orioles, meanwhile, have lost only 17 of 62 games this year, an amazing clip.

"They're playing .725 ball," said Tiger Manager Mayo Smith. "There's no way they can keep that up all the way. But we'll just have to keep on our own pace until we meet them. You can't do anything about them when you don't play them."

In other A.L. activity, California trounced Minnesota 13-1 and Cleveland whipped Boston 4-2. Oakland at Kansas City and Seattle's doubleheader at Chicago were rained out.

SIX-HITTER

John Hiller checked New York on six hits in the opener, then Dick McAuliffe smashed a three-run homer and Ike Brown made his first major league hit a homer as the Tigers completed the sweep.

"I was kind of shaken," said Brown of his two-run shot off Mike Kekich in the fourth. "I guess everyone is when he gets into his first major league game."

Brown, a veteran of eight years in the minors, was called up only Monday from the Tigers' Toledo farm club.

Left-hander Mickey Lolich picked up his seventh victory in eight decisions in the nightcap, although he needed some help from Don McMahon after the Yankees pushed across three runs in the eighth.

Mike Cuellar, 7-5, stopped Washington on four hits, striking out 12 and walking only three.

BIG HITS

Paul Blair had a pair of doubles, driving in one run, and Dave Johnson homered and had two singles to pace the Orioles.

Andy Messersmith hurled a three-hitter and Rick Reichardt and Bill Voss backed him with homers as California knocked the Twins out of the West Division lead.

The Twins, who took the top spot on Monday night, trail idle Oakland by only .002 percentage points.

AN EDGE FOR THE GOP

Former major league baseball pitcher Wilmer "Vinegar Bend" Mizell, now a Republican Congressman from North Carolina, pitched during the annual Congressional Baseball game at Robert F. Kennedy Stadium last night, giving the GOP a distinct professional edge. Mizell pitched two scoreless innings as the Republicans beat the Democrats, 7-2, for their seventh straight win. Mets Play 4-Man Outfield Game Against Phil's Allen

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Four outfielders didn't keep Richie Allen from going for the home run, and three outfielders certainly weren't going to stop Hank Aaron from doing the same. So how could the Chicago Cubs expect to keep Richie Hebner from hitting singles?

The Cubs tried the commonplace defense of four infielders and three outfielders against Hebner and failed miserably—twice—when the Pittsburgh rookie singled in the winning runs in both games yesterday as the Pirates swept the Cubs 1-0 and 4-3 in a twi-night twinbill.

IMAGINATIVE

The New York Mets were most imaginative with four outfielders against Allen in the ninth inning of their opener against Philadelphia. And while the strategy had little effect on Allen, he did strike out going for a tying homer and the Mets won 1-0, and then dropped the nightcap 6-3.

Houston probably wishes it had tried the unusual defense against Aaron. It couldn't have done any harm because Aaron hammered a homer in the ninth inning to give Atlanta a 6-5 victory over the Astros.

In other National League games, nothing could stop Los Angeles as the Dodgers swept San Diego 7-3 and 11-0, Juan Marichal pitched San Francisco by Cincinnati 4-0 and St. Louis tripped Montreal 2-0 behind Steve Carlton and Joe Hoerner.

.319 MARK

Hebner, one of the surprises of the league with a .319 average, has only three home runs among his 67 hits, but singles were enough to drop the West Division leading Cubs twice.

After Matty Alou, the league's leading hitter, doubled in the seventh inning of the opener against loser Ferguson Jenkins, 8-4, Hebner decided the contest with a run-scoring single.

Bob Veale, 4-7, relieved by Bruce Dal Canton in the eighth, got the victory.

Then, in the ninth inning of the nightcap, Hebner rubbed salt in the Chicago wound when the Cubs walked Alou intentionally to fill the bases and Hebner delivered another single to break a 3-3 deadlock.

His other hit, another single, came when the Pirates tied the game with two runs in the eighth inning, undoing the damage caused by Chicago homers by Don Kessinger, Willie Smith and Billy Williams in the third inning for a 3-1 lead.

THREE PITCHES

Another rookie, Gary Gentry, 6-5, of the Mets, proved more effective than Manager Gil Hodges' strategy as he stopped the Phillies' five-game winning streak with a two-hitter. When Hodges chose to move second baseman Al Weis into the outfield with two out and none on in the ninth and the slugging Allen at bat, Gentry responded by striking out Allen on three pitches.

Ken Boswell's single, a balk and J.C. Martin's single in the seventh inning beat rookie Billy Champion, 1-2, who gave only four hits in eight innings.

Hodges, following the same strategy Cincinnati tried against San Francisco'w Willie McCovey Monday, explained that he wanted to keep Allen from getting an extra base hit. And Allen called it "a darn smart move," but admitted he still was up there going for it (a home run)."

Oddly, Allen homered his first time up in the second game and rookie Larry Hisle hit two behind Grant Jackson's six-hitter as the Phillies salvaged a split.

18TH CLOUT

Houston, in contrast, stuck with three outfielders and Aaron led off the ninth of a 5-5 game with his 18th homer for the Braves' fourth consecutive victory.

Andy Kosco capped a seven-run seventh inning for Los Angeles in the opener with a two-run homer and the Dodgers erupted for six runs, three on Willie Crawford's homer, in the fourth inning of the nightcap. Kosco also drove in three runs in the second game as Alan Foster, 2-4, scattered seven hits and extended his scoreless string to 21 innings.

ALMANAC

Today is Wednesday, June 18, the 169th day of 1969 with 196 to follow.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus and Saturn. The evening stars are Mars and Jupiter.

On this day in history:

In 1812 the United States declared war on Britain for the second time in history.

In 1815 Napolean was defeated at the Battle of Waterloo.

In 1935 Adolf Hitler signed a treaty with Britain, promising not to expand the German Navy beyond 35 per cent of the Royal navy.

In 1953 Egypt was proclaimed a republic by the Army Council of the Revolution.

A thought for the day: Walter Pater said, "To know when one's self is interested is the first condition of interesting other people."

Tiburon Plans City Hall Fete

The City of Tiburon will hold an open house at its newly renovated city hall at 7:30 p.m. Monday to commemorate the fifth anniversary of the city's incorporation.

The city council will hold a brief business meeting at 8 p.m. followed by a cocktail party at the Dock Restaurant at 8:30 p.m.

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Remember The Lowest Trump Is A Most Important Tool

When you played your first hand of bridge somebody surely told you that even the lowest trump can win a trick from a side suit. Since we all need to be reminded now and then of first principles, perhaps this column will remind you of a good way to get proper mileage out of your trumps.

No. 3897 .... June 18, 1969

Opening lead — ♡ K

RUFFS HEART

South ruffed the first heart, led a trump to the ace and returned a trump to win a finesse with the jack. Declarer then drew the queen of trumps with his king.

South next led a diamond, losing dummy's queen to the ace. Back came a heart, and South had to ruff with his last trump. Now when the diamonds and clubs both failed to break, South could win only five trumps, one diamond and three clubs. Down one.

ABANDON TRUMPS

South should have remembered that dummy's five of trumps could win a heart trick — but only if declarer left one trump in the dummy. After drawing just two rounds of trumps (with the ace and the jack), South should have abandoned trumps. He should have switched at once to diamonds, losing dummy's queen to the ace.

East would return a heart, of course, and South should discard a diamond instead of ruffing. This would allow the defenders to take their second trick with the ace of hearts. If West continued with a heart, dummy could then stop the suit with the lowly five of trumps, allowing South to keep both of his own trumps. If West led anything else, South would have an easier time.

CAN REGAIN

Regardless of the defense, South could regain the lead, draw the queen of trumps and still have the eight of trumps to keep control. He could then cash the king of diamonds, give up a diamond and ruff the heart return with the eight of trumps to run the rest of the diamonds in safety.

DAILY QUESTION

Dealer, at your left, opens with one diamond. Your partner bids one heart, and the next player bids two clubs.

You hold:
♠—Q 10 4
♥—J 10 7 3 2
♦—A J 9
♣—10 9.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid four hearts if the vulnerability is equal or if only the opponents are vulnerable.

If only your side is vulnerable, jump to three hearts. When you have exceptional length in your partner's suit, bid as much as you safely can (and perhaps a bit more) and bid it without waiting. You may shut the opponents out of their best suit or induce them to sacrifice against a game that you were not going to make.

Banner Waterfowl Season Predicted For Cal Hunters

Moody Late Arrival For Kemper

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP) — For the first time in his career, Orville Moody is ranked as one of the prime contenders for a pro golf crown.

The tough, stocky former Army sergeant who made last week's United States Open—the world's most prestigious title—his first tour victory, was one of the late arrivals for the $150,000 Kemper Open.

NO PRACTICE

The long-shot Open champion didn't get in from Texas in time to take a practice round on the long, lush Quail Hollow Country Club course, a rolling, 7,205 yard, par 72 layout.

But the ruddy-faced guy, a 14 - year Army veteran who came on the tour less than two years ago, was scheduled to participate in today's pro-am event that precedes tomorrow's start of the 72-hole event.

Among the missing in the chase for the $30,000 top prize are Jack Nicklaus and Billy Casper, who finished well back in the national championship, Gene Littler, who missed the cut for the final two rounds of the Open, and Miller Barber, the third round leader who blew to a 78 in the final round.

PALMER'S HERE

Besides Moody, other late arrivals included Arnold Palmer, the struggling dynamo whose last victory was in the Kemper last year, when it was played in New England, and Lee Trevino, the deposed Open champ who is bothered by an aching left knee.

Both Palmer and Trevino rank high among the challengers, along with Deane Beman, the little man from Bethesda, Md., who finished in a tie for second at the Open, gangling Masters champ George Archer and 49-year-old Julius Boros, the PGA titleholder.

"It's a very long course," the short-hitting Beman said. "But it should be a great test of golf.

So far the 1960's have been frustrating for waterfowl shooters. But now U.S. Department of the Interior, long noted for its pessimism over the future of ducks, believes this could be a banner year.

A recently completed aerial survey by pilot - biologists showed heavy rains have left an abundant water supply in just about every area of North America where ducks and geese breed in quantity. Large populations of the birds also were noted.

"This could be an excellent production year," said Dr. Leslie L. Glasgow, Assistant Secretary of the Interior for Fish and Wildlife, Parks and Marine Resources. Dr. Glasgow could have much to say about the number of shooting days and bag limits which will be allowed this fall.

EARLY NESTING

A uniformly early season of favorable weather has set in after one of the wettest, snowiest northern winters in recent years. This makes it possible for massive early nesting in the areas of the key Canadian prairie provinces which have been drought stricken for nearly 10 years.

Of special interest to California hunters is news that Alberta, which normally funnels the bulk of its ducks into the Pacific Flyway, boasts so much water and so many ducks the census takers are having a tough time making an accurate tally. Alberta ducks generally migrate through the Sacramento and San Joaquin Delta regions.

Additional aerial surveys and brook counts will be needed before the Department of the Interior sets fall duck hunting regulations during August.

But this week, the Federal authorities did put out their first optimistic duck forecast since the late 1950's when ducks were so plentiful that California shooters were granted 105 days of hunting with a daily bag and possession limit of 10 birds.

Quarterback Domres Signs Charger Pact

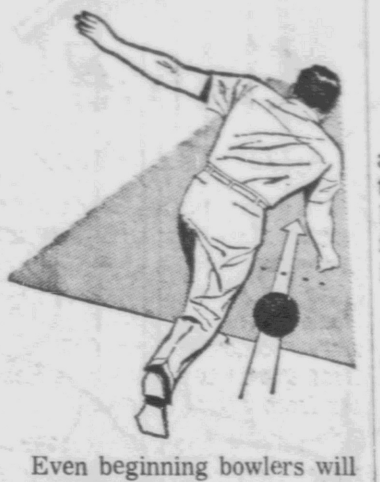
SAN DIEGO (AP) — The San Diego Chargers of the American Football League yesterday signed quarterback Marty Domres of Columbia, their No. 1 draft choice, and end Skip Orszulak of Pittsburgh, No. 5.

Terms were not announced.

The 215-pound Domres, who stands 6-foot-3½, was third in the nation in total offense in 1968 with 2,404 yards and fourth in passing with 1,133.

BOWLING TIPS

By MARION LADEWIG



Even beginning bowlers will usually do better if they adopt the spot system quickly, merely because it shortens their target distance. In the spot system you merely select the arrow some 15 feet out on the lane over which your ball rolls when it travels to the pocket. When you've found this arrow (or the board nearest it), that becomes your target instead of the pins some 60 feet away.

AT SEARS

Continental Drivers Chase Posey

The season point standings in the Sports Car Club of America's Continental Championships Series may undergo an overhaul after the noise dies down at Sears Point International Race in Sonoma County this weekend.

All top eight drivers in the point standings for the Formula A racers will be on hand for the fourth race in the series, a 49-lap, 123.6-mile test set for Sunday. Qualifying and Formula B and C races Saturday and Sunday will supplement the main event.

With nine points going to the winner of this race, 24-year-old Sam Posey of Sharon, Conn., could be deposed as current leader. He's now on top with 15 points but at least four other drivers have a shot at vaulting into the lead.

Closest is George Wintersteen, currently the runnerup with 11 points. Wintersteen, of Villanova, Pa., is last year's Formula A champion and is a consistent "in the money" driver.

CANNON TIED

In a third place tie are John Cannon, the former Canadian now living in Los Angeles, and Rich Simons of Salt Lake City, Utah, each with nine points.

Lothar Motschenbacher, veteran driver from Beverly Hills, is next with seven points.

Rounding out the top eight are Chuck Dietrich of Sandusky, Ohio, 1967 Formula B champion; Bud Morley of Denver, Colo., in his second year of Formula A racing, and Tony Adamowitz of New Jersey, each with four points.

The front-runners in the Continental series will be shooting for first-place prize money of $2,500 plus contingency and lap money.

MARIN COUNTY GOLF NOTES

Junior League In Full Swing

Two Marin County golf clubs are represented in the Bay Cities League of Junior Golfers, a league which has expanded from six to twelve teams during its three years of existence.

Meadow Club of Fairfax and Marin Country Club of Novato are in the league this year, with boys aged 12 through 20 getting in on the action.

"The league gives the 19 and 20-year-olders something to do," explains Bill Carewe of Meadow Club, head of the Fairfax team and an officer in the league.

TWO DIVISIONS

Growth of the league has forced it to split into two divisions of six teams each. Along with the two Marin teams in one division are Green Hills of Millbrae, Palo Alto Hills, Peninsula Club of San Mateo and Stanford Golf Club.

Marin Country Club's team has had two matches so far this season, losing twice to Peninsula Club, 30-6 the first time and then 24-12 in a rematch last Saturday on the Novato course. Meadow Club hasn't played any matches yet.

GAIN EXPERIENCE

Although there are 33 players on the Meadow Club team, only eight compete in the tourney championships, the others playing for the experience. Among the top players are Dave Basham, brothers George, Art and Ed Carewe, Bill Donaldson, Nip Grey, Steve Hartman, Tom Schaal, Jim Wilhelm and Jeb Harrison.

There are 16 players on the Marin C.C. team, led by Mike Ahern, Brian Telford, Greg Davenport, brothers Bob and Paul Sherry, Chuck Raznakov, brothers Dick and Jeff Lesieur Richard Taylor.

FOUR MARIN County golfers will be trying their hand in championship flight of the 58th annual California State Amateur championships at Cypress Point and Pebble Beach golf courses.

Mat Palacio Jr. of San Rafael, winner of this tournament in 1936, will be trying to bring back the good old days. Other Marin golfers who will be in the qualifying rounds next Monday and Tuesday include Buzz Beattie Jr. of Ross, Kai Thomsen of Novato, and Joseph Thurston of Mill Valley. Beattie is a two-handicapper, the other three carry handicaps of four strokes.

WITH VISIONS of Public Links championships in their heads, 10 Marin County golfers will be trying for four vacant spots alloted to the greater Bay Area for the 44th U.S. Amateur Public Links Championship scheduled July 9-12.

Teeing off at the Harding Park course in San Francisco Saturday, among 121 hopefuls, will be Jerry Santiago, George Greenwood, Mike Doris and Doug Francisco of San Rafael, Robert Shultz of Novato, Russ Adams of Kentfield, James Brown of San Geronimo, Kevin Hogan and David Haberlin of Mill Valley, and George Ambrosio of Forest Knolls. Adams is 1968 winner of the Marin County Tournament of Champions, representing Mill Valley Golf Club.

CONGRATULATIONS to Mrs. John Siebler of Novato for the hole-in-one she shot last week at Las Gallinas course north of San Rafael.

MARIO COLOMBO of San Rafael is an early entrant in the annual Nugget Golf Classic at Sparks, Nev., a 54-holer set June 23-26.

TWO MARIN COUNTY high school golfers will be playing in the Pro-Youth Golf Classic's California state finals next month in San Luis Obispo after qualifying at Napa's Silverado North course last weekend.

They are Kelly Wolfe, 17, of San Rafael High, and Arthur Cudworth III, 16, of Terra Linda High. With scores of 79 and 84 respectively, they were among 19 Northern California juniors who qualified for the state playoffs.

The three lowest qualifiers at San Luis Obispo will proceed to the nationals in Detroit Aug. 6-10 where they will be teamed with touring professionals.

The national tournament is sponsored by Independent Insurance Agents Association of America.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Ashland Oil Is In Three Hot Spots

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I would like your opinion on King Resources and Home Oil. I attended a sumposium where these two companies were enthusiastically talked up. Since this investment would be toward retirement in 10 years, it is important that I choose strong growth stocks. — J. B.

A. You've mentioned an industry that is ideally suited to your purposes. However, Home Oil has had a sharp run-up on the anticipated outcome of the well it is drilling on the North Slope. If the well hits, shares will move higher, but at current price level shares are too volatile for you.

HOLDINGS

I would certainly favor King Resources for long-term growth purchases. The company holds 29 million gross acres, or 15 per cent of the Arctic's Sverdrup Basin, making it the second largest landholder in the "high Arctic."

Additional holdings include 2.5 million acres of sulphur leases in and around the Arctic Islands and a good number of leasehold blocks on the Alaskan North Slope. Share earnings of $2.06 in 1968 could readily double this year, making the shares reasonably priced on the basis of the earnings multiple.

In place of Home Oil, Ashland Oil, with holdings in three of the world's petroleum "hot spots," looks promising. Through a 75 per cent interest in Circle Oil, Ashland will participate in a 4 to 5 well-drilling program in Libya this year.

In Indonesia, Ashland has ⅓ interest in a 37-million acre offshore tract adjacent to the Natomas discovery. Drilling on this property by Reading & Bates is scheduled to begin later this year.

On the Alaskan North Slpe, Ashland has a 22.5 percnet interest in an exploration program with Hamilton Brothers. A well-regarded refiner and marketer, zAshland stands to reap substantial supplies of crude petroleum if any or all of its drilling ventures hit pay dirt.

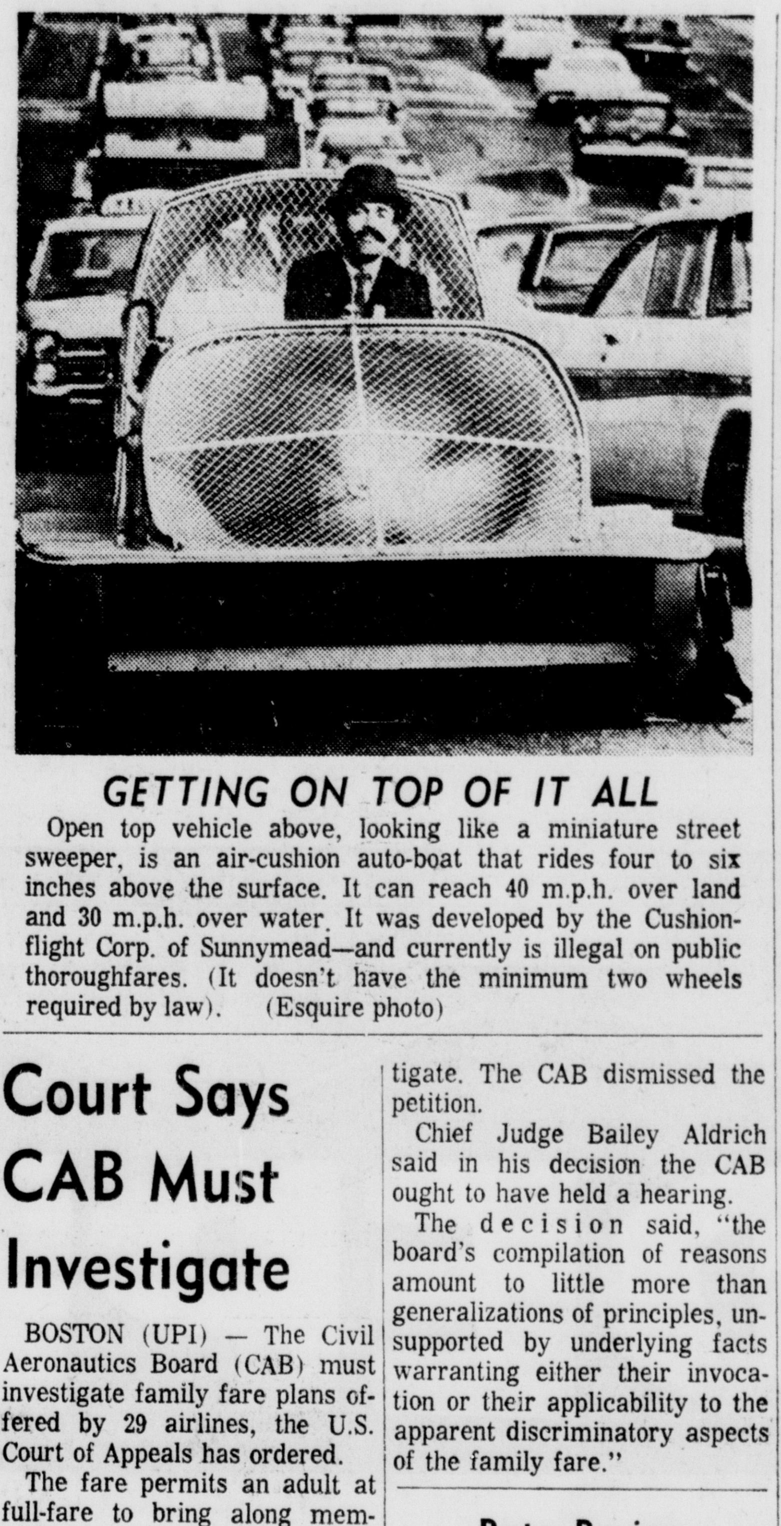
Earnings could reach $2.65 a share this year, up from $2.2 in 1968. A modest dividend adds to the appeal of the shares.

Sylvester Inc. Is Purchased

SAN LEANDRO (BW) — Pacific Growers, Inc., San Leandro-based distributor of Nulaid Eggs, has purchased Sylvester Dairies, Inc., San Francisco-headquartered distributor of eggs, butter, cheese and other dairy products.

The announcement was made jointly by Harry Trembath, executive vice president and general manager of Pacific Growers, and Sidney B. Weil, president of Sylvester.

They said Sylvester dairies will continue to operate as a wholly owned subsidiary under Weil and plans to diversify its product line are expected to be announced later.



GETTING ON TOP OF IT ALL

Open top vehicle above, looking like a miniature street sweeper, is an air-cushion auto-boat that rides four to six inches above the surface. It can reach 40 m.p.h. over land and 30 m.p.h. over water. It was developed by the Cushionflight Corp. of Sunnymead—and currently is illegal on public thoroughfares. (It doesn't have the minimum two wheels required by law). (Esquire photo)

Court Says CAB Must Investigate

BOSTON (UPI) — The Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) must investigate family fare plans offered by 29 airlines, the U.S. Court of Appeals has ordered.

The fare permits an adult at full-fare to bring along members of his family at reduced rates, often half-fare.

Transcontinental Bus Systems Inc. and Trailways of New England, a subsidiary, had contended the fares were discriminatory, unjust and unreasonable, and has asked the CAB to investigate. The CAB dismissed the petition.

Chief Judge Bailey Aldrich said in his decision the CAB ought to have held a hearing.

The decision said, "the board's compilation of reasons amount to little more than generalizations of principles, unsupported by underlying facts warranting either their invocation or their applicability to the apparent discriminatory aspects of the family fare."

Stocks Finish Down Again As Early Rally Evaporates

NEW YORK (UPI)—An early stock market rally evaporated today and prices closed irregularly lower in moderately active trading.

The initial upswing seemed to reflect House Ways and Means Committee approval of the surtax extension and the possibility of additional troop withdrawals from Vietnam. But the tight money situation, which has pressured the list for about a month, continued to disturb traders.

Electronics showed scattered strength, although several issues came down from their day's highs.

Rails were mixed after some early firmness. Airlines and aircrafts also traded in both directions and generally in narrow ranges.

Steels, motors and chemicals moved in fractions and without definite direction.

Oils worked lower, with Atlantic Richfield and Superior among the point-plus losers. The latter fell more than 4 yesterday.

Among the most active issues were Studebaker-Worthington Preferred A, Thiokol Chemical, FMC Corp., City Investing, Gulf Oil, and Mobil Oil.

Illinois Center

NEW YORK (UPI) — Atlantic Richfield Co. will establish a product research center at the former research center of Sinclair Oil Corp. at Harvey, Ill., and an enlarged chemicals research center at Philadelphia.

First DC-8-62 Is Delivered

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — The first of 10 super long-range jetliners capable of flying nonstop from New York to Honolulu has been delivered to United Air Lines by the McDonnell Douglas Corp.

The plane, called the DC-8-62, was turned over to technicians at United's San Francisco engineering and maintenance base for pre-service checks prior to being placed in operation later this month.

The huge craft is designed to carry 147 passengers and 13,720 pounds of cargo at speeds up to 550 miles an hour.

Golden Nugget To Buy Casino

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The Golden Nugget said it has completed negotiations to buy another downtown casino, the Nevada Club.

Golden Nugget President G.C. "Buck" Blain, said the Nevada Club was closed Monday and will reopen July 1 as an annex to the Golden Nugget. No purchase price was announced.

"We didn't buy a successful business," Blain said. "It was nothing as far as its operation is concerned."

The Nevada Club was owned by a group of Las Vegas investors. Continental Connectors Corp., owner of the Dunes Hotel on the strip, is completing negotiations to buy the Golden Nugget.

"Mommy, Barfy's hair is all over the place! Is he going bald?"

ALMANAC

Today is Wednesday, June 18, the 169th day of 1969 with 196 to follow.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus and Saturn. The evening stars are Mars and Jupiter.

On this day in history:

In 1812 the United States declared war on Britain for the second time in history.

In 1815 Napolean was defeated at the Battle of Waterloo.

In 1935 Adolf Hitler signed a treaty with Britain, promising not to expand the German Navy beyond 35 per cent of the Royal navy.

In 1953 Egypt was proclaimed a republic by the Army Council of the Revolution.

A thought for the day: Walter Pater said, "To know when one's self is interested is the first condition of interesting other people."

Tiburon Plans City Hall Fete

The City of Tiburon will hold an open house at its newly renovated city hall at 7:30 p.m. Monday to commemorate the fifth anniversary of the city's incorporation.

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Remember The Lowest Trump Is A Most Important Tool

When you played your first hand of bridge somebody surely told you that even the lowest trump can win a trick from a side suit. Since we all need to be reminded now and then of first principles, perhaps this column will remind you of a good way to get proper mileage out of your trumps.

RUFFS HEART

South ruffed the first heart, led a trump to the ace and returned a trump to win a finesse with the jack. Declarer then drew the queen of trumps with his king.

South next led a diamond, losing dummy's queen to the ace. Back came a heart, and South had to ruff with his last trump. Now when the diamonds and clubs both failed to break, South could win only five trumps, one diamond and three clubs. Down one.

ABANDON TRUMPS

South should have remembered that dummy's five of trumps could win a heart trick — but only if declarer left one trump in the dummy. After drawing just two rounds of trumps (with the ace and the jack), South should have abandoned trumps. He should have switched at once to diamonds, losing dummy's queen to the ace.

East would return a heart, of course, and South should discard a diamond instead of ruffing. This would allow the defenders to take their second trick with the ace of hearts. If West continued with a heart, dummy could then stop the suit with the lowly five of trumps, allowing South to keep both of his own trumps. If West led anything else, South would have an easier time.

CAN REGAIN

Regardless of the defense, South could regain the lead, draw the queen of trumps and still have the eight of trumps to keep control. He could then cash the king of diamonds, give up a diamond and ruff the heart return with the eight of trumps to run the rest of the diamonds in safety.

DAILY QUESTION

Dealer, at your left, opens with one diamond. Your partner bids one heart, and the next player bids two clubs.

You hold:
♠—Q 10 4
♥—J 10 7 3 2
♦—A J 9
♣—10 9

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid four hearts if the vulnerability is equal or if only the opponents are vulnerable.

If only your side is vulnerable, jump to three hearts. When you have exceptional length in your partner's suit, bid as much as you safely can (and perhaps a bit more) and bid it without waiting. You may shut the opponents out of their best suit or induce them to sacrifice against a game that you were not going to make.

New Soviet Jet May Land In U.S.

MOSCOW (UPI)—The first supersonic jetliner to land in the United States may wear the hammer-and-sickle insignia of the Soviet Union.

Alexander V. Bessedin, chief of the international division of the Soviet Ministry of Civil Aviation told United Press International it was "quite possible" the Kremlin might decide to use its supersonic jetliner on the Moscow-New York route.

The only competition for the Soviet TU144 supersonic jetliner is the British-French Concorde. The United States is in third place, and even its hold on that is shaky.

Both the TU144 and the Concorde already are being flight tested. But the U.S. SST still is held fast on a drawing board waiting for President Richard M. Nixon to decide whether he should ask Congress to finance the construction of two prototypes.

In Moscow, billboards around the city boast that the TU144 will be ready for the ticket-buying public by 1971. Bessedin also said Russia does not expect to keep the TU144 to itself. He said the Soviets hope to sell the plane on the world market in competition with the Concorde.

Despite the outward ballyhoo, the United States was never really in the running to be "first" with a supersonic airliner. But if it does decide to build its planned version of an SST, the plane will be bigger and faster than both the Soviet and the British-French jetliners.

The Soviet TU144 and the Concorde are not unalike. The delta-winged Soviet jetliner will carry 120 passengers at speeds of up to 1,500 miles an hour.

It was the first to get off the ground—making its test flight in December 1968. Earlier this year, a TU144 was reported to have crashed during a test. The Kremlin officially denied this, however.

The needle-nosed plane is powered with four jet engines slung under the fuselage and it is expected to operate at altitudes of up to 65,000 feet.

The Concorde is longer—190 feet compared to 180 for the TU144—but its top speed is 100 miles an hour less than the Tu144. Each plane will carry about the same number of passengers, 120.

The planned American SST is on a much bigger scale. Its top speed is 1,800 miles an hour. It will carry 300 passengers, but it is not expected to be delivered to the airlines until 1976, or even later.

Nixon is expected to make up his mind shortly on the SST. If he decides to go ahead with it, Congress may be asked to appropriate $250 million to start the prototype construction—a move that is certain to touch off a battle with the economy-minded Congress.

Nixon, however, has other alternatives. He can postpone the prototype construction, he can scrap the project, or he may endorse a new financing program for the plane.

One idea gaining support is to finance the SST through the sale of government-guaranteed bonds on the open market.

Even though this would avoid asking Congress for more funds, critics say that if the plane turned out to be a failure, the government would lose more money than it would under the current government-industry cost sharing formula.

Schwab Named Times Editor

Peter L. Schwab of San Anselmo has been named editor of the College of Marin Times for the fall semester.

Schwab, 19, who will succeed Richard W. Beban, was news editor this semester and has served as reporter and sports editor. He is currently working for the San Francisco Examiner in the sports department.

An English major, Schwab will be in his fourth semester at College of Marin in September and plans to major in journalism next spring at the University of Missouri.

Guilty Plea To Two Charges

Rudolph Anthony Del Sol, 26, of San Francisco pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to misdemeanor charges of being drunk in a public place and being in a place where drugs were being used.

He had originally been charged with a felony count of possessing dangerous drugs.

Judge Peter Allen Smith set sentencing for July 11.

Talks Halt In Nurses Strike

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Negotiations between nurses and five Bay Area Hospitals ended yesterday with no signs of progress in settling the walkout.

State conciliator James Marshall said he would call the disputing parties together again today in an effort to solve the strike which started last Thursday.

Spokesmen at the hospitals involved said the situation has remained almost the same. Services are cut sharply at St. Francis and French hospitals in San Francisco and at Children's Hospital in Oakland. Meanwhile, Alameda Hospital in Alameda and Herrick Hospital in Berkeley said they are slightly affected.

The nurses are striking for more authority in patient care and higher wages.

Black American Jews Attempt To Begin New Life In Liberia

By ARNOLD ZEITLIN

MONROVIA, Liberia (AP) — Black American Jews have made their impact on the Liberian scene since settling in this West African republic seeking a homeland. But they say the going is so rough they try to charge foreign newsmen $500 an interview.

"We are trying to make it, man, but it's rough with all this austerity here," said James Greer, 45, of Chicago, who calls himself Ben Yaakov. He is a leader of the band of American blacks who adopted Judaism, dubbed themselves Hebrew Israelites and moved to Liberia at the end of 1967.

Wearing a green paisley skullcap, Green explained the interview price list in one of his group's enterprises, Mesada Tova, a snack bar. Its name means "good restaurant."

A sign outside advertises "soul chicken."

Fried chicken is sold also in another Israelite shop in Gbargna, a bush crossroads about 100 miles north of Monrovia.

You can buy lemon-flavored "slush" in the American-style custard ice cream parlor the black Jews have opened here in the same building containing the Bureau of Immigration and Naturalization.

The nearness to the bureau is coincidental but symbolic.

The Hebrew Israelites have made a major impact on immigration policy in this country founded 153 years ago by freed slaves from America.

Liberia has a law allowing entry to all Negroes. But the Israelites probably would not make it en masse as they did in 1967 if they tried it today.

"Some day it will be all right for more to come," said lawyer J. Newton Garnet, secretary of the board of immigration President William V. S. Tubman named to handle the black Jews. "But we have to have a budget to take care of these people. The president hasn't given us a budget yet."

Edward Sumo Jones, the immigration commissioner, said the first batch of 159, including 78 adults, were in Liberia three weeks before the government discovered them.

By then they had hacked out a camp in a forest near a crossroads called Gbatala. The camp still exists run by the few who knew anything about farming. Most of the others were semiskilled laborers and artisans. Garnet said about two-thirds of the immigrants have drifted back to Monrovia; in addition to operating food stores, they have formed a band called the Soul Messengers to make money. About 20 have returned to the United States, said Garnet, but some of them plan to come back to Liberia once they have learned a skill.

The Liberians put the immigrants up rent-free for three months in a large house used for paramount chiefs visiting the capital. They provided each adult with a $60 monthly allowance. Garnet estimated all this cost the government $12,000.

Under Liberian law the Israelites eventually can become citizens. Few have the skills listed as most desirable in the Liberian immigration act. These run from physician and druggist to "persons skilled in prison management."

But making do are such persons as a 22-year-old Chicagoan who now calls himself Ovedy Israel and runs the Mesada Tova. His wife and 8-month-old baby stay in Gbatala while he dishes out soft ice cream in Monrovia. His grandmother, who came with the group at the age of 72, died in the camp. "I don't have that much value in material things," said Israel, who will talk even if a newsman customer only buys a milk shake from him. He worked in a Hyde Park, Chicago, factory before moving from the United States.

"There's been too much emphasis on this black thing," he said. "I'm here because I have an easier time serving God the way I want to serve him."

College Pools To Open Daily

College of Marin's summer recreation program will begin Monday with the college pools open daily except Sunday from 1 to 6 p.m. and on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7 to 9.

The pools will be open for community use through Aug. 23.

Other recreational activities include badminton, golf, tennis, volleyball and men's and women's personal fitness and weight training.

Most of the classes, some offering half-unit college credits and others no credit, end Aug. 1.

One Million Expected At State Lakes

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — William Gianelli, state water resources director, has reported he expects recreational use of state water project facilities to pass the one-million visitor mark during the year for the first time.

The director said that he expects boaters, fishermen, and other recreational enthusiasts will use project reservoirs in excess of the 908,000 visitor-days recorded in 1968.

Gianelli said that efforts are being made to meet the demand for recreational facilities with construction scheduled for camping units, boat-launching ramps, picnic sites and sanitary facilities being readied.

State water project units providing such facilities are at Frenchman, Antelope, and Davis lakes in the Feather River watershed in Plumas County; Lake Oroville and Thermalito in Butte County, and O'Neill Forebay in Merced County. Also in Merced County are fishing sites along the California Aqueduct.

Recreational day use of the facilities are reported as Oroville and Thermalito, 288,000 recreation days; Frenchman Lake, 312,000 visitor days; Antelope and Davis lakes, 260,000 recreation days, and O'Neill Forebay, 67,000 visitor days.

Final Meeting For Trustees

At a final meeting Monday night, the West Marin School trustees authorized $6,900 in work for the school and turned a closing balance of approximately $40,000 over to the Shoreline Unified School District, said Supt. Howard F. Brose.

The work authorized putting air circulating machines into the administration, nurses and speech therapist offices; replacing four light fixtures; replacing tile in the original four classrooms and purchasing two tumbling mats and two sewing machines.

The board authorized a letter to the Shoreline district board asking continuance of programs at the school, Brose said.

The board then adjourned permanently, as the district will become a part of the Shoreline district July 1.

Teen Theater Sets Rehearsals

Junior Theater of Marin, sponsoring a new Teen Theater Workshop this summer, will start rehearsals Tuesday at the First Methodist Church in San Rafael.

Rehearsals will be held three times a week from 7 to 9 p.m., reported Mrs. Virginia DePue, president. All high school students in Marin interested in dramatics are welcome to join the workshop, she said.

The group, under the direction of Greg Norgaard of San Anselmo, will present its first production, "The Thurber Carnival," Aug. 8 and 9 at San Rafael High School auditorium.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Ashland Oil Is In Three Hot Spots

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I would like your opinion on King Resources and Home Oil. I attended a sumposium where these two companies were enthusiastically talked up. Since this investment would be toward retirement in 10 years, it is important that I choose strong growth stocks. — J. B.

A. You've mentioned an industry that is ideally suited to your purposes. However, Home Oil has had a sharp run-up on the anticipated outcome of the well it is drilling on the North Slope. If the well hits, shares will move higher, but at current price level shares are too volatile for you.

HOLDINGS

I would certainly favor King Resources for long-term growth purchases. The company holds 29 million gross acres, or 15 per cent of the Arctic's Sverdrup Basin, making it the second largest landholder in the "high Arctic."

Additional holdings include 2.5 million acres of sulphur leases in and around the Arctic Islands and a good number of leasehold blocks on the Alaskan North Slope. Share earnings of $2.06 in 1968 could readily double this year, making the shares reasonably priced on the basis of the earnings multiple.

In place of Home Oil, Ashland Oil, with holdings in three of the world's petroleum "hot spots," looks promising. Through a 75 per cent interest in Circle Oil, Ashland will participate in a 4 to 5 well-drilling program in Libya this year.

In Indonesia, Ashland has ⅓ interest in a 37-million acre offshore tract adjacent to the Natomas discovery. Drilling on this property by Reading & Bates is scheduled to begin later this year.

On the Alaskan North Slpe, Ashland has a 22.5 percnet interest in an exploration program with Hamilton Brothers. A well-regarded refiner and marketer, zAshland stands to reap substantial supplies of crude petroleum if any or all of its drilling ventures hit pay dirt.

Earnings could reach $2.65 a share this year, up from $2.2 in 1968. A modest dividend adds to the appeal of the shares.

Sylvester Inc. Is Purchased

SAN LEANDRO (BW) — Pacific Growers, Inc., San Leandro-based distributor of Nulaid Eggs, has purchased Sylvester Dairies, Inc., San Francisco-headquartered distributor of eggs, butter, cheese and other dairy products.

The announcement was made jointly by Harry Trembath, executive vice president and general manager of Pacific Growers, and Sidney B. Weil, president of Sylvester.

They said Sylvester dairies will continue to operate as a wholly owned subsidiary under Weil and plans to diversify its product line are expected to be announced later.

GETTING ON TOP OF IT ALL

Open top vehicle above, looking like a miniature street sweeper, is an air-cushion auto-boat that rides four to six inches above the surface. It can reach 40 m.p.h. over land and 30 m.p.h. over water. It was developed by the Cushionflight Corp. of Sunnymead—and currently is illegal on public thoroughfares. (It doesn't have the minimum two wheels required by law). (Esquire photo)

Court Says CAB Must Investigate

BOSTON (UPI) — The Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) must investigate family fare plans offered by 29 airlines, the U.S. Court of Appeals has ordered.

The fare permits an adult at full-fare to bring along members of his family at reduced rates, often half-fare.

Transcontinental Bus Systems Inc. and Trailways of New England, a subsidiary, had contended the fares were discriminatory, unjust and unreasonable, and has asked the CAB to investigate. The CAB dismissed the petition.

Chief Judge Bailey Aldrich said in his decision the CAB ought to have held a hearing.

The decision said, "the board's compilation of reasons amount to little more than generalizations of principles, unsupported by underlying facts warranting either their invocation or their applicability to the apparent discriminatory aspects of the family fare."

Rate Review

WASHINGTON (UPI) — America Telephone & Telegraph Co. has asked the Federal Communications Commission for a rate review starting in July with a view to raising interstate rates.

Stocks Finish Down Again As Early Rally Evaporates

NEW YORK (UPI)—An early stock market rally evaporated today and prices closed irregularly lower in moderately active trading.

The initial upswing seemed to reflect House Ways and Means Committee approval of the surtax extension and the possibility of additional troop withdrawals from Vietnam. But the tight money situation, which has pressured the list for about a month, continued to disturb traders.

Electronics showed scattered strength, although several issues came down from their day's highs.

Rails were mixed after some early firmness. Airlines and aircrafts also traded in both directions and generally in narrow ranges.

Steels, motors and chemicals moved in fractions and without definite direction.

Oils worked lower, with Atlantic Richfield and Superior among the point-plus losers. The latter fell more than 4 yesterday.

Among the most active issues were Studebaker-Worthington Preferred A, Thiokol Chemical, FMC Corp., City Investing, Gulf Oil, and Mobil Oil.

Illinois Center

NEW YORK (UPI) — Atlantic Richfield Co. will establish a product research center at the former research center of Sinclair Oil Corp. at Harvey, Ill., and an enlarged chemicals research center at Philadelphia.

First DC-8-62 Is Delivered

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — The first of 10 super long-range jetliners capable of flying nonstop from New York to Honolulu has been delivered to United Air Lines by the McDonnell Douglas Corp.

The plane, called the DC-8-62, was turned over to technicians at United's San Francisco engineering and maintenance base for pre-service checks prior to being placed in operation later this month.

The huge craft is designed to carry 147 passengers and 13,720 pounds of cargo at speeds up to 550 miles an hour.

Deluge Of Obscenity Linked To Revolution

At a used book store in downtown San Rafael, you (or your child) may buy copies of various "underground newspapers" replete with tales of revolution couched in gutter language and illustrated with obscene cartoons and pornographic photos.

Posters stuck to the windows of stores ranging from record shops to corner groceries employ suggestively outre art to promote rock-and-roll dances and "happenings."

And in mail boxes, unsolicited, arrive illustrated advertisements for such books of "Dynamic Intercourse," described as "an illustrated book of 150 rare coital positions."

THIS DELUGE of obscenity has resulted in several bills in Congress making it a federal crime to use the mails to deliver erotic material to those under 18 years of age or to promote exploitation of a prurient interest in sex through advertising. President Richard M. Nixon has called for a "citizens' crusade against the obscene," and has urged that the proposed laws include penalties of up to five years in prison or $50,000 fine for the first offense and double penalties for repeaters.

Postmasters throughout the country have received complaints by the thouands of the mailing of unsolicited advertising filth.

THERE ARE LAWS on the books against use of the mails to distribute obscene material. There are laws in California against its display and sale, which were tightened by the legislature this week. Yet they seem to accomplish little.

Some years back, it was rather commonplace for the Post Office Department, on its own, to ban a publication from the mails for obscenity. A series of court challenges, however, gradually ate away the department's authority to act as censor.

At present, the Post Office Department merely accepts the names of those who want no such material sent them, and informs the senders. The only punishment for ignoring the warning is a contempt action.

The Post Office Department is loath to go farther because of uncertainty as to what the courts will hold is obscene. The U.S. Supreme Court's so-called Roth ruling of 1957 is supposed to be the guide. It held that the test for obscenity is "whether to the average person, applying contemporary community standards, the dominant theme of the material taken as a whole appeals to prurient interests." The trouble is that court decisions have differed widely as to what are "contemporary community standards."

Enforcement of local and state anti-obscenity laws has run up against similar difficulties, since the U.S. Supreme Court's findings are taken as guides by lower courts and are so contradictory as to be of little help.

THERE IS, MEANWHILE, an evident tie between purveyors of obscenity and fomentors of revolution.

The organizations dedicated to overthrowing the present system, including the Black Panthers, Students for a Democratic Society, Red Guards, etc., customarily mix obscenity with their political propaganda. The same "newspapers" that promote their causes devote major space to pornography and obscenity. The attack on the existing order thus becomes a gutter attack, and at the same time lax morals and perversion are made to appear as contributing somehow to "power of the people."

THERE APPEAR TO BE two approaches to the problem: Wait for tougher federal laws, such as those advocated by the President, or try prosecuting under the present laws, including the new state measures, in the hope of getting some court guidelines that will be usable.

We suggest the second.

AFFAIRS OF STATE

Old Turkey Struts Again As Deddeh Revives ARCOSS

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — One can always depend on "old turkeys," bills which have been relegated to the dirt heap for years on end, to come back to haunt the legislature and the tax-paying public.

One such bill is AB 1148, by Assemblyman Waldie P. Deddeh, D-Los Angeles, a measure designed to use the taxpayers' money for the benefit of teachers in no inconsiderable sum, by transferring retirement rights they have built up in other states to California.

THIS MEASURE, known as the ARCOSS bill, was passed by the legislature last year, and sent to Gov. Ronald Reagan, who promptly vetoed it.

Deddeh, himself at one time a teacher in another state, re-introduced the legislation this year, although the 1969 measure reflects some reductions from the demands of 1968. Deddeh said estimates of the costs to the tax-paying public are now set at more than $91 million over a 40-year period, whereas last year's measure called for $215 million over the same period.

He said the measure is a matter of equity to the teachers who have brought their training to California from out of state.

The measure would fix the retirement benefits of the new arrivals, as well as those already in the state who have had teaching experience in other states, on a par with California teachers who are under the State Teachers Retirement System.

THE ASSEMBLY Ways and Means Committee approved the bill and sent it to the floor for further action. Although it could pass the Assembly, it may have a rougher ride when and if it reaches the Senate.

This, and the fact that the administration is against the measure, may save it this year from reaching the governor again and forcing another veto.

The state Department of Finance has six reasons for wanting to kill the bill.

REPRESENTATIVES of the department say the measure would cause a horrendous cost impact on the teachers retirement system, which it claims already is under-funded.

Also, it would violate the concept that California taxpayers should pay only for teaching services rendered within the state. Picking up the bill for other states could be figured as a gift of public money, prohibited by the constitution.

The measure sets a precedent, the department says, for every other group of public employees to ask for the same treatment, which could endanger other retirement systems.

Liberals Paved Way For Hitler

Nora La Carte Sugarman's letter to the editor (June 4), to save America via Western Union messages missed a few points.

Hitler's road to power was paved by a permissive ultra-liberal republic who refused to suppress militant student organizations, militant black and brown uniformed organizations and periodicals advocating racial strife — all in the name of freedom of speech and a truly democratic society.

Her comparison of an unfortunate incident of released tear gas with planned poisoning of millions in Europe, Santa Rita Prison Farm with concentration camps seems far-fetched. Any National Guardsman stabbing innocent people is subject to thorough inquiry.

The middle class citizen will have to choose between revolutionary violence or the American way of checks and balances. Ours is still a government of laws, in spite of some alarmists.

Such 'Progress' Should Be Fought

Francis Auger, whose letter appeared in last Friday's (June 13) I-J, is to be congratulated for his honesty. His contemptuous reference to "the quaint woodsy effect of 19th century living in Marin" clearly exposes an attitude held (as indicated by their actions) but prudently left unexpressed by the dollar-hungry proponents of the NOW environment: smog, concrete, bulldozed hills, scarred woodlands, chain-link fences and shabby, crackerbox housing.

Unfortunately the "enlightened progress" to which Mr. Auger refers is too often used to justify the steady downgrading of our once-beautiful surroundings here as well as elsewhere. "Enlightened progress" is something to be fought at every turn. And if that should mean a restoration of some phases of 19th century Marin living, I'm just awfully sorry about that!

Would Bring Suit Over Bond Defeat

Tuesday's defeat by 2,910 voters of San Rafael Elementary School District's $2.1 million bond issue leaves me feeling sold down the river.

If 2,910 votes can dictate to my duly elected and appointed representatives on the school board that they shall not acquire property for present and future site development; keep safe and enhance buildings currently in operation; supply adequate staff, certificated as well as non-certificated, to provide a proper per pupil-teacher ratio, then I say, this appears to be representation without taxation —

Nowhere in the United States Constitution, I believe, does it say that there shall be a two-thirds majority vote to pass laws governing capital expenditures as vital to our economy and to our society as providing schools. In 1966, the voters of te State of California voted down an amendment to the state constitution to change the two-thirds vote requirement to a 60-40 ratio. A simple majority could have passed it. Either the voters were apathetic or they went to the polls not knowing what they were doing. . . .

I say that 3,865 woters who voted yes on Tuesday's bond issue should institute an immeidate taxpayers' suit against the California State Legislature. Either it changes an unfair and inequitable law, or let us take it to Washington, D.C., to let the United States Supreme Court decide.

MRS. ULRICH KRAMER
San Rafael.

(Editor's note: A challenge to the two-thirds requirement for passage of bond issues originating in Idaho is now on the tortuous route through the courts that may eventually bring it before the U.S. Supreme Court.)

Council Merely Discussing Pay

May I bring to your attention two errors in your reporting of the June 12 Sausalito budget meeting in the I-J of June 13.

First, Sausalito city councilmen did not indicate that we would put ourselves on the city payroll! We simply indicated that we would discuss salary at a future budget meeting.

Secondly, Councilman (A. R.) Imlay and myself were quoted as favoring a salary for the council. This is not the case. We merely agreed to discuss the matter.

Why Few Speak Out At Public Meetings

Many people legitimately wonder why so few people try to voice an opinion at city council meetings, school board meetings and other public meetings around the country. The main reason these people don't come out is because they know what can happen to them if they oppose or try to criticize anything as was evidenced at last night's (June 10) city council meeting in San Anselmo.

One woman in this town had the courage to write a letter — the purpose of which was simply to ask the council not to accept as mandates the recommendations of the town meeting as sometimes only a few people actually voted for these recommendations. The woman was treated as though she were on trial. One panel chairman who may have shared some light on the accuracy of the letter was conspiciously not there.

After hearing from the audience for a least an hour, three councilmen read statements which had been prepared ahead of time denying her complaints as untrue but failed to back up their statements with facts. Actually, portions of their statements sounded a little silly after the hearing.

The three councilmen, Anderson (the most vicious), Reed and Ragan lashed their personal attack on her with snide, sarcastic remarks which were completely uncalled for and a disgrace to this town . . .

If what these people intended was to stifle all opposition and criticism in our town, they may well have succeeded. There were others who had come to this meeting prepared to speak out but lost their nerve when they saw the treatment given this one woman. . .

TRY AND STOP ME

By BENNETT CERF

PHYLLIS DILLER insists that she once challenged a beauty expert to "make me look like Elke Sommer." The expert told her, "You already look like an elk in summer. Would you like to try for a walrus in winter?"

Mr. Garlick had a genuine kick coming: a careless drugstore clerk had sold him a bottle of glue instead of a bottle of hair tonic.

"Disgraceful," agreed his seatmate on the 5:15. "When did you discover the error?"

"This morning," grumbled Mr. Garlick. "I put some on my hair and left the house. On the way I met a girl I knew. I tried to tip my hat to her and lifted myself clear off the sidewalk!"

Cities' Money Goes To U.S. While Urban Problems Multiply

By ROSCOE and GEOFFREY DRUMMOND

PITTSBURGH — Conditions in the cities are not bad, they are perilous and getting worse, because the cities are simply not doing much about it.

It's not that they don't want to. They just don't have the money because the federal government takes too much from them and gives back too little.

This is why another anguished plea for help comes from the U. S. Conference of Mayors, meeting here this week and representing every major city in the nation.

Its plea is valid. It can't afford to go unheeded. The cities are beginning to drown in a sea of unsolved social, racial and economic problems.

They have long been acute, but they are now at the point of being unmanagable.

Continued inability to cope with them is causing the urban crisis to mount and is plunging local governments into financial and political bankruptcy.

THE STATES and cities are not refusing to tax themselves. They have simply exhausted revenue sources because state government and Washington gobble up so much.

How much?

About 80 per cent of all taxes collected in the cities goes to the states or to the federal government, yet the cities receive back only about 19 per cent of their funds from the states and only a tiny 3.5 per cent from the federal government.

This means that cities are forced to continue to rely largely on the inadequate and unjust property tax. The result is that industry and affluent home owners move to the suburbs, and cities are left with the very poor huddled in their ghettos.

The suburbs have the resources to devote about $1,100 per pupil per year to provide good education while the inner city schools can afford only $500 per pupil per year.

SAN FRANCISCO, for example, needs 13,000 new housing units per year for the next six years. Last year 112 single family homes were built and 111 demolished; a net of 777 apartments units were added. That's it — 778 built to 13,000 needed, and that's typical of most cities. Many are losing ground, not gaining.

As sources of revenue have declined, the cost of welfare has gone up and up in every large city. The case-load in San Francisco increased 135 per cent in 10 years and the cost increased 263 per cent.

Mayor Joseph Alioto of San Francisco put it starkly:

"The cities," he said, "are not looking for a handout but for determined and dynamic national participation in problems that clearly transcend the boundaries of any one city and affect the destiny of the entire country.

"History finds its momentum in the cities, and it is here that national commitment must concentrate. And this is what is asked of the present administration in Washington.

"Certainly the rush of events in our cities is as dangerous as any external threat to our nation and must be given priority equal to any we have internationally."

PRESIDENT NIXON agrees. At the Air Force Academy commencement he said:

"Let us not pose a false choice between meeting our responsibilities abroad and meeting the needs of our people at home. We shall meet both or we shall meet neither.

"The crisis within our society cannot be put on the back burner until we resolve the problem of Vietnam."

What the mayors are asking is: When do we begin?

WASHINGTON WINDOW

It Used To Be Capitol Hill; Now It's Information Gap

By FRANK ELEAZER

WASHINGTON (UPI) —For 169 years they have called it Capitol Hill. Now some lawmakers fear the name will have to be changed. They say Information Gap soon may be a more appropriate title.

Say a congressman wants to know what has happened to HR 1054, a bill to authorize a study of polar bears and for other purposes. He can:

1. — Look it up in the daily House congressional calendar.

2.—Search the digest of public general bills,

3.—Study the Congressional Record.

4.—Ask somebody.

NATURALLY, being a $42,500-a-year executive and busy with inquiries from the polar bear lobby and other big voter blocs, he asks somebody.

That is why each House member is provided with 11 or 12 assistants (senators get about twice that many). And when one of them gets the congressman's inquiry he has four options —as above —and resolves them the same way.

What he does is call the affected committee. Which is why each legislative committee has clerks and counsel, paid up to $32,239 yearly, and secretaries who sometimes draw as much as $18,000.

One of these experts takes the query and looks up the answer in a printed committee calendar compiled for that purpose.

That, of course, is one of the reasons we have the Government Printing Office, which works around the clock and is the world's busiest printer, at a cost to taxpayers of $39 million this year.

So now comes House Clerk W. Pat Jennings, who for his $40,000 a year figures there must be some better way for congressmen to keep track of their business —including the 25,000 or so bills introduced during an average Congress.

Jennings has nothing against reference works, clerks, committee staffers, or government printers. But he thinks computers can perform a lot of the work quicker, easier, and probably cheaper.

SO WHAT he recently installed in the Rayburn House Office Building was a sample data retrieval device. It looks like a TV set. A user asks his question by pointing his finger at appropriate categories, subcategories, and finally specific listings of information stored in a central computer.

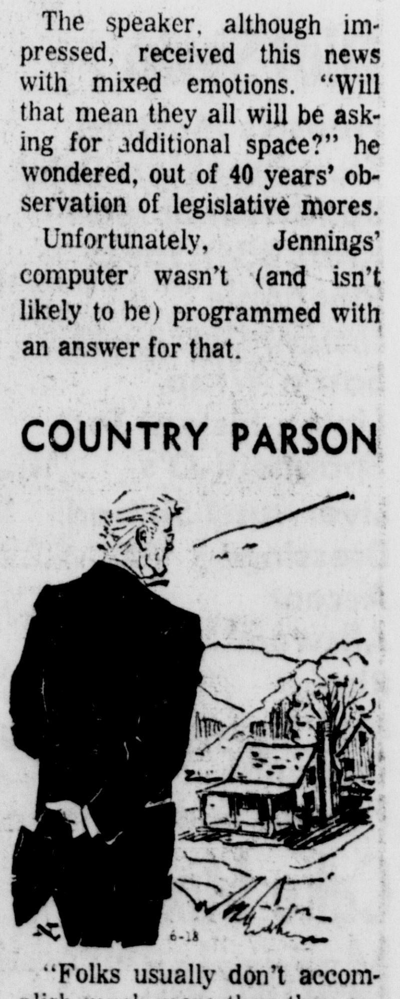
The answer appears at once on the screen. HR1054, the computer advises, is lying doggo in the House Committee on Merchant Marine. The TV screen also offers up a capsule analysis of what the bill would do, in event it got passed.

Jennings told Speaker John W. McCormack that what he proposes to do —if the House will allow it —is install one of these wondrous computer outlets in every congressman's office.

The speaker, although impressed, received this news with mixed emotions. "Will that mean they all will be asking for additional space?" he wondered, out of 40 years' observation of legislative mores.

Unfortunately, Jennings' computer wasn't (and isn't likely to be) programmed with an answer for that.

COUNTRY PARSON



"Folks usually don't accomplish much more than they expect to."

New Soviet Jet May Land In U.S.

MOSCOW (UPI)—The first supersonic jetliner to land in the United States may wear the hammer-and-sickle insignia of the Soviet Union.

Alexander V. Bessedin, chief of the international division of the Soviet Ministry of Civil Aviation told United Press International it was "quite possible" the Kremlin might decide to use its supersonic jetliner on the Moscow-New York route.

The only competition for the Soviet TU144 supersonic jetliner is the British-French Concorde. The United States is in third place, and even its hold on that is shaky.

Both the TU144 and the Concorde already are being flight tested. But the U.S. SST still is held fast on a drawing board waiting for President Richard M. Nixon to decide whether he should ask Congress to finance the construction of two prototypes.

In Moscow, billboards around the city boast that the TU144 will be ready for the ticket-buying public by 1971. Bessedin also said Russia does not expect to keep the TU144 to itself. He said the Soviets hope to sell the plane on the world market in competition with the Concorde.

Despite the outward ballyhoo, the United States was never really in the running to be "first" with a supersonic airliner. But if it does decide to build its planned version of an SST, the plane will be bigger and faster than both the Soviet and the British-French jetliners.

The Soviet TU144 and the Concorde are not unalike. The delta-winged Soviet jetliner will carry 120 passengers at speeds of up to 1,500 miles an hour.

It was the first to get off the ground—making its test flight in December 1968. Earlier this year, a TU144 was reported to have crashed during a test. The Kremlin officially denied this, however.

The needle-nosed plane is powered with four jet engines slung under the fuselage and it is expected to operate at altitudes of up to 65,000 feet.

The Concorde is longer—190 feet compared to 180 for the TU144—but its top speed is 100 miles an hour less than the Tu144. Each plane will carry about the same number of passengers, 120.

The planned American SST is on a much bigger scale. Its top speed is 1,800 miles an hour. It will carry 300 passengers, but it is not expected to be delivered to the airlines until 1976, or even later.

Nixon is expected to make up his mind shortly on the SST. If he decides to go ahead with it, Congress may be asked to appropriate $250 million to start the prototype construction—a move that is certain to touch off a battle with the economy-minded Congress.

Nixon, however, has other alternatives. He can postpone the prototype construction, he can scrap the project, or he may endorse a new financing program for the plane.

One idea gaining support is to finance the SST through the sale of government-guaranteed bonds on the open market.

Even though this would avoid asking Congress for more funds, critics say that if the plane turned out to be a failure, the government would lose more money than it would under the current government-industry cost sharing formula.

Schwab Named Times Editor

Peter L. Schwab of San Anselmo has been named editor of the College of Marin Times for the fall semester.

Schwab, 19, who will succeed Richard W. Beban, was news editor this semester and has served as reporter and sports editor. He is currently working for the San Francisco Examiner in the sports department.

An English major, Schwab will be in his fourth semester at College of Marin in September and plans to major in journalism next spring at the University of Missouri.

Redwood Students Set For Study Overseas

Seven Redwood High School students are scheduled to leave in the next two weeks to study overseas under programs sponsored by the school.

Perrin Smith of Tiburon is scheduled to travel to Belgium and Michael King of Greenbrae to Lubeck, Germany, under the Experiment in International Living program. Each will spend a month with a host family and a month traveling.

Terry Ostler of Corte Madera will study in Hamburg, Germany, for a year under the Youth for Understanding program. Vicky Moore of Ross will go to Finland, Leslie Friedman of Kentfield to Denmark and Camille Goebel of Belvedere to Argentina for the summer under the same program.

Carol Worth of Kentfield will spend a year abroad with the American Field Service program, but has not yet been assigned to a country.

Two Redwood High students will leave in August for Preetz, Germany, in a student exchange with Friedrich Schiller Gymnasium of Preetz.

Robin Lachtman of Kentfield and Randy Richter of Corte Madera will go to Preetz, and Peter Eichinger of Preetz will go to Redwood High. This year-long study program is conducted under the auspices of the School Affiliation Service of the American Friends Service Committee.

Guilty Plea To Two Charges

Rudolph Anthony Del Sol, 26, of San Francisco pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to misdemeanor charges of being drunk in a public place and being in a place where drugs were being used.

He had originally been charged with a felony count of possessing dangerous drugs.

Judge Peter Allen Smith set sentencing for July 11.

Talks Halt In Nurses Strike

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Negotiations between nurses and five Bay Area Hospitals ended yesterday with no signs of progress in settling the walk-out.

State conciliator James Marshall said he would call the disputing parties together again today in an effort to solve the strike which started last Thursday.

Spokesmen at the hospitals involved said the situation has remained almost the same. Services are cut sharply at St. Francis and French hospitals in San Francisco and at Children's Hospital in Oakland. Meanwhile, Alameda Hospital in Alameda and Herrick Hospital in Berkeley said they are slightly affected.

The nurses are striking for more authority in patient care and higher wages.

THE PEOPLE'S SCHOOLS

Faculty Arrogance Draws Blame In Student Unrest

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

Faculty arrogance is largely to blame for the spread of student dissatisfaction on college campuses, a Stanford University professor told a graduating class last week.

Prof. Lewis B. Mayhew, outgoing president of the American Association for Higher Education, addressed himself only to the college scene in his commencement speech at Western Washington State College, Bellingham, Wash. But some of the evidences of faculty arrogance he cited are beginning to show up in California high schools — at the same time that student unrest is percolating down to that level.

SAID PROFESSOR Mayhew:

"Admired and well-paid professors in prestigious institutions are those who have gained the right to set their own goals, determine their own activities, and assess their own performance.

"Increasingly these do not include students . . . or at least are restricted to the few who are willing disciples. . . .

"Faculty members . . . also have limited the power of administration to make needed educational reforms. Much of ths trouble at San Francisco State College in 1968 and 1969" came about "because departments controlled all positions."

Further, he declared, arrogant faculty members imagine themselves capable of governing institutions of learning despite lack of background for such an enterprise. "The faculty senator, who would be the first to criticize a generalist or a popularizer, will meet for a dozen hours, skim reports, and vote to abolish a $60 million research installation or discredit a president's handling of a student uprising."

PROFESSOR MAYHEW is not the first to point out responsibility of faculties for much that has gone wrong at the colleges. However, he has catalogued faculty arrogance in a way to make the implications in high schools observable.

High school teachers are out to emulate the "admired and well-paid professors" by setting their own goals, determining their own activities, and assessing their own performance.

This year much more than heretofore, teacher groups in California high schools have insisted on participating in "all matters relating to educational objectives," a right guaranteed then under the Winton Act.

FLARE-UPS in various districts over what was being taught under the guise of American history, sociology, or English have brought retorts that the determination was up to the teacher, and that any suggestion that it should follow prescribed guidelines constituted a threat to academic freedom.

In many districts, teachers have injected themselves into the budgeting process, demanding that the school board change its priorities for use of funds — usually to the effect of devoting more to increasing teachers' salaries.

Although high school faculties do not control hiring their tenure rights under California law (much more ironclad than those of college professors) give them virtual immunity from interference with how they conduct their courses. Principals and superintendents, recognizing this, rarely attempt any reform or change without first winning majority faculty approval. And such changes as are made usually are at instigation of faculty groups rather than of the school board or administration.

PROFESSOR MAYHEW did not try to solve the chicken-or-egg enigma of whether faculties have become arrogant because of the powers given them or have seized those powers because of their arrogance. But either way, he held, the faculty has become "the real enemy of students."

The question arises: If it is true (and many agree with Mayhew that it is) that decisions by faculty on what should be taught and how, where funds should be allocated, and how teachers' time should be spent have helped bring about widespread unrest in colleges; then, if the same sort of decisions are put in faculty hands in high schools, can the same result be expected?

Pollution Helps Produce Food In Experimental Arizona Project

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — When Dr. Richard A. Kassander Jr. of the University of Arizona talks about pollution, he says one man's poison can become another man's meat.

Don't let pollution destroy indiscriminately and indefinitely, he says. Put pollution to work.

They're already doing this at Arizona with one type of pollution, so far experimentally.

As director of the UA Institute of Atmospheric Physics and director of the Water Resources Research Center, Kassander is responsible for Arizona's share of a project at Puerto Penasco in Mexico for the production of power, water and food. Power is generated by diesel engines. The engines throw off carbon dioxide. Instead of helping pollute the air, here the engine exhaust is fed into a greenhouse to help increase the production of food plants.

"In the 'have not' parts of the world, population is outstripping its food supply," says Kassander. "In the 'have' parts the population can't escape its own waste products.

"Although the laws of conservation of mass and energy tell us we can't believe the results, we can foretell the day when the weight of people equals the weight of the earth. From extrapolation of population curves, we can also foretell the day when the last man eats the last plant or when suffocation overtakes the population.

"The laws of physics tell us that the results are false, but they don't tell us whether famine, poison or nuclear holocaust will change the trend. It is our business, and it may not be quite too late, to determine that any changes will be in the direction that will be most satisfactory."

Animals, especially humans, are incredibly inefficient machines," Kassander says. "They consume a tremendous amount of valuable fuel, produce an outrageously small amount of useful work and the balance of the fuel is released as waste which is poisonous to the animal and most of the beneficial aspects of his environment."

Waste pollutes. "So why not use the waste?" he says. "Household garbage, when burned, produces heat at the rate of about 4500 BTUs per pound. This means common garbage is approximately one-third as good as fuel as the best quality soft coal.

"With a little imagination, it can be determined that almost every waste product has economic value, directly or as a processed material," he says.

Kassander suggests that the cost of operating waste disposal and sanitary engineering plants include the cost of putting these pollutants to work. "Why can't we pay to protect our environment?" he asks.

In Arizona, he says, sulphuric acid can — and is being — produced from air-polluting sulphur dioxide as it leaves copper smelter stacks.

"Electrostatic precipitation of solid particles from smoke stacks has been a very lucrative source of material such as arsenic," he says.

"Even the lowly fly ash, the most common stack effluent, has value. In the Tennessee Valley Authority, fly ash recovered by mechanical means replaced 20 per cent of the cement and 10.5 per cent of sand necessary for the concrete at Wilson Dam lock."

India has a tremendous food problem, yet in a normal year it is short only 10 to 15 per cent in the grain production necessary to feed its people. Power to till the fields is produced by oxen. It is estimated that oxen consume about 30 per cent of the food they help produce. A machine could be 20 times as efficient — and not eat food — if a fuel could be found.

"This fuel, in fact, exists — in the waste product of the fields," Kassander says.

Straw from an acre producing two and a half tons of rice theoretically could be made to produce 2,358 horsepower hours of work per acre assuming reasonable efficiencies. This is enough energy to lift enough water from 260 feet to cover an acre of farm land to a depth of four feet.

"It would appear that the time has come to move in these directions — in the exploitation of waste to improve the quality of environment," Kassander says.

"In the last few years, we have seen massive capital investment which recognizes the value of improving the quality of the environment for future yields. This is precisely the philosophy of urban renewal programs.

"I believe it will be possible to extend this philosophy to our basic urban waste production process in a way that will make the poisons we produce sources of value to our economy."

Black American Jews Attempt To Begin New Life In Liberia

By ARNOLD ZEITLIN

MONROVIA, Liberia (AP) — Black American Jews have made their impact on the Liberian scene since settling in this West African republic seeking a homeland. But they say the going is so rough they try to charge foreign newsmen $500 an interview.

"We are trying to make it, man, but it's rough with all this austerity here," said James Greer, 45, of Chicago, who calls himself Ben Yaakov. He is a leader of the band of American blacks who adopted Judaism, dubbed themselves Hebrew Israelites and moved to Liberia at the end of 1967.

Wearing a green paisley skullcap, Green explained the interview price list in one of his group's enterprises, Mesada Tova, a snack bar. Its name means "good restaurant."

A sign outside advertises "soul chicken."

Fried chicken is sold also in another Israelite shop in Gbargna, a bush crossroads about 100 miles north of Monrovia.

You can buy lemon-flavored "slush" in the American-style custard ice cream parlor the black Jews have opened here in the same building containing the Bureau of Immigration and Naturalization.

The nearness to the bureau is coincidental but symbolic.

The Hebrew Israelites have made a major impact on immigration policy in this country founded 153 years ago by freed slaves from America.

Liberia has a law allowing entry to all Negroes. But the Israelites probably would not make it en masse as they did in 1967 if they tried it today.

"Some day it will be all right for more to come," said lawyer J. Newton Garnet, secretary of the board of immigration President William V. S. Tubman named to handle the black Jews. "But we have to have a budget to take care of these people. The president hasn't given us a budget yet."

Edward Sumo Jones, the immigration commissioner, said the first batch of 159, including 78 adults, were in Liberia three weeks before the government discovered them.

By then they had hacked out a camp in a forest near a crossroads called Gbatala. The camp still exists run by the few who knew anything about farming. Most of the others were semiskilled laborers and artisans. Garnet said about two-thirds of the immigrants have drifted back to Monrovia; in addition to operating food stores, they have formed a band called the Soul Messengers to make money. About 20 have returned to the United States, said Garnet, but some of them plan to come back to Liberia once they have learned a skill.

The Liberians put the immigrants up rent-free for three months in a large house used for paramount chiefs visiting the capital. They provided each adult with a $60 monthly allowance. Garnet estimated all this cost the government $12,000.

Under Liberian law the Israelites eventually can become citizens. Few have the skills listed as most desirable in the Liberian immigration act. These run from physician and druggist to "persons skilled in prison management."

But making do are such persons as a 22-year-old Chicagoan who now calls himself Ovedy Israel and runs the Mesada Tova. His wife and 8-month-old baby stay in Gbatala while he dishes out soft ice cream in Monrovia. His grandmother, who came with the group at the age of 72, died in the camp. "I don't have that much value in material things," said Israel, who will talk even if a newsman customer only buys a milk shake from him. He worked in a Hyde Park, Chicago, factory before moving from the United States.

"There's been too much emphasis on this black thing," he said. "I'm here because I have an easier time serving God the way I want to serve him."

College Pools To Open Daily

College of Marin's summer recreation program will begin Monday with the college pools open daily except Sunday from 1 to 6 p.m. and on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7 to 9.

The pools will be open for community use through Aug. 23.

Other recreational activities include badminton, golf, tennis, volleyball and men's and women's personal fitness and weight training.

Most of the classes, some offering half-unit college credits and others no credit, end Aug. 1.

One Million Expected At State Lakes

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — William Gianelli, state water resources director, has reported he expects recreational use of state water project facilities to pass the one-million visitor mark during the year for the first time.

The director said that he expects boaters, fishermen, and other recreational enthusiasts will use project reservoirs in excess of the 908,000 visitor-days recorded in 1968.

Gianelli said that efforts are being made to meet the demand for recreational facilities with construction scheduled for camping units, boat-launching ramps, picnic sites and sanitary facilities being readied.

State water project units providing such facilities are at Frenchman, Antelope, and Davis lakes in the Feather River watershed in Plumas County; Lake Oroville and Thermalito in Butte County, and O'Neill Forebay in Merced County. Also in Merced County are fishing sites along the California Aqueduct.

Recreational day use of the facilities are reported as Oroville and Thermalito, 288,000 recreation days; Frenchman Lake, 312,000 visitor days; Antelope and Davis lakes, 260,000 recreation days, and O'Neill Forebay, 67,000 visitor days.

Final Meeting For Trustees

At a final meeting Monday night, the West Marin School trustees authorized $6,900 in work for the school and turned a closing balance of approximately $40,000 over to the Shoreline Unified School District, said Supt. Howard F. Brose.

The work authorized putting air circulating machines into the administration, nurses and speech therapist offices; replacing four light fixtures; replacing tile in the original four classrooms and purchasing two tumbling mats and two sewing machines.

The board authorized a letter to the Shoreline district board asking continuance of programs at the school, Brose said.

The board then adjourned permanently, as the district will become a part of the Shoreline district July 1.

Teen Theater Sets Rehearsals

Junior Theater of Marin, sponsoring a new Teen Theater Workshop this summer, will start rehearsals Tuesday at the First Methodist Church in San Rafael.

Rehearsals will be held three times a week from 7 to 9 p.m., reported Mrs. Virginia DePue, president. All high school students in Marin interested in dramatics are welcome to join the workshop, she said.

The group, under the direction of Greg Norgaard of San Anselmo, will present its first production, "The Thurber Carnival," Aug. 8 and 9 at San Rafael High School auditorium.

Further details may be obtained by telephoning Mrs. Patricia Mills, vice president of Junior Theater, 120 McAllister Avenue, Kentfield or writing Box 92, Kentfield.

5 Pct. Pay Hike Being Recommended

A five per cent across-the-board 1969-70 salary scale increase for Marin County Schools employees is being recommended to the Marin County Board of Education.

The increase, representing a $36,000 hike above the current budget, will be presented to the board by the administrative services committee at the board's next regular meeting at 8 p.m. July 7 in the County Schools office.

The 5 per cent proposal, termed a cost-of-living increase by the committee, will be in addition to the automatic annual 2.5 per cent increment, Robert E. Spain, director, administrative services, reported.

If approved, the salary schedule would be increased from the present $7,315 - $14,089 to a schedule of $7,681 - $14,793, with the top salary in each case requiring a doctorate degree.

The three committees of the board agreed upon the recommendation at their Monday night meetings, Spain said.

Emphasis in the in-service program for 1969-70 will be on working with school administrators in addition to the regular teacher's in-service program. Ideas to be considered will be student and teacher militancy and teachers' salary negotiations, members of the educational services committee decided.

The special services committee heard a request from several school districts for an educationally handicapped program for junior high age students but continued study until a formal proposal can be submitted by the staff.

Man Charged In Shooting Case

Marin Frank Perry, 57, of 12 Ross Street, San Rafael, has been charged in Marin Municipal Court with two felony counts for allegedly shooting at a house where his wife was Friday.

He is accused of assaulting Stella Perry with a deadly weapon as well as shooting at an occupied residence.

Police said they were called by Paul Herman Weeks to his home at 188 Greenfield Avenue, and that Weeks told them Perry had shot at the house.

When arrested near the house, Perry had a hunting rifle on the floor of the car, police said.

His case has been continued until tomorrow for entry of plea and he is free on $6,250 bail.

Aquacade Aims At $3,000 Contribution

The Marin Ballet Aquacade hopes to contribute about $3,300 from its recent aquacade to the Marindale School for the Orthopedically Handicapped, Mrs. David M. Sullivan, aquacade president, has reported.

The exact amount of the profits from the swimming show will be determined at a later date, Mrs. Sullivan said.

Deluge Of Obscenity Linked To Revolution

At a used book store in downtown San Rafael, you (or your child) may buy copies of various "underground newspapers" replete with tales of revolution couched in gutter language and illustrated with obscene cartoons and pornographic photos.

Posters stuck to the windows of stores ranging from record shops to corner groceries employ suggestively outre art to promote rock-and-roll dances and "happenings."

And in mail boxes, unsolicited, arrive illustrated advertisements for such books of "Dynamic Intercourse," described as "an illustrated book of 150 rare coital positions."

THIS DELUGE of obscenity has resulted in several bills in Congress making it a federal crime to use the mails to deliver erotic material to those under 18 years of age or to promote exploitation of a prurient interest in sex through advertising. President Richard M. Nixon has called for a "citizens' crusade against the obscene," and has urged that the proposed laws include penalties of up to five years in prison or $50,000 fine for the first offense and double penalties for repeaters.

Postmasters throughout the country have received complaints by the thousands of the mailing of unsolicited advertising filth.

THERE ARE LAWS on the books against use of the mails to distribute obscene material. There are laws in California against its display and sale, which were tightened by the legislature this week. Yet they seem to accomplish little.

Some years back, it was rather commonplace for the Post Office Department, on its own, to ban a publication from the mails for obscenity. A series of court challenges, however, gradually ate away the department's authority to act as censor.

At present, the Post Office Department merely accepts the names of those who want no such material sent them, and informs the senders. The only punishment for ignoring the warning is a contempt action.

The Post Office Department is loath to go farther because of uncertainty as to what the courts will hold is obscene. The U.S. Supreme Court's so-called Roth ruling of 1957 is supposed to be the guide. It held that the test for obscenity is "whether to the average person, applying contemporary community standards, the dominant theme of the material taken as a whole appeals to prurient interests." The trouble is that court decisions have differed widely as to what are "contemporary community standards."

Enforcement of local and state anti-obscenity laws has run up against similar difficulties, since the U.S. Supreme Court's findings are taken as guides by lower courts and are so contradictory as to be of little help.

THERE IS, MEANWHILE, an evident tie between purveyors of obscenity and fomentors of revolution.

The organizations dedicated to overthrowing the present system, including the Black Panthers, Students for a Democratic Society, Red Guards, etc., customarily mix obscenity with their political propaganda. The same "newspapers" that promote their causes devote major space to pornography and obscenity. The attack on the existing order thus becomes a gutter attack, and at the same time lax morals and perversion are made to appear as contributing somehow to "power of the people."

THERE APPEAR TO BE two approaches to the problem: Wait for tougher federal laws, such as those advocated by the President, or try prosecuting under the present laws, including the new state measures, in the hope of getting some court guidelines that will be usable.

We suggest the second.

Old Turkey Struts Again As Deddeh Revives ARCOSS

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — One can always depend on "old turkeys," bills which have been relegated to the dirt heap for years on end, to come back to haunt the legislature and the tax-paying public.

One such bill is AB 1148, by Assemblyman Waldie P. Deddeh, D-Los Angeles, a measure designed to use the taxpayers' money for the benefit of teachers in no inconsiderable sum, by transferring retirement rights they have built up in other states to California.

THIS MEASURE, known as the ARCOSS bill, was passed by the legislature last year, and sent to Gov. Ronald Reagan, who promptly vetoed it.

Deddeh, himself at one time a teacher in another state, re-introduced the legislation this year, although the 1969 measure reflects some reductions from the demands of 1968. Deddeh said estimates of the costs to the tax-paying public are now set at more than $91 million over a 40-year period, whereas last year's measure called for $215 million over the same period.

He said the measure is a matter of equity to the teachers who have brought their training to California from out of state.

The measure would fix the retirement benefits of the new arrivals, as well as those already in the state who have had teaching experience in other states, on a par with California teachers who are under the State Teachers Retirement System.

THE ASSEMBLY Ways and Means Committee approved the bill and sent it to the floor for further action. Although it could pass the Assembly, it may have a rougher ride when and if it reaches the Senate.

This, and the fact that the administration is against the measure, may save it this year from reaching the governor again and forcing another veto.

The state Department of Finance has six reasons for wanting to kill the bill.

REPRESENTATIVES of the department say the measure would cause a horrendous cost impact on the teachers retirement system, which it claims already is under-funded.

Also, it would violate the concept that California taxpayers should pay only for teaching services rendered within the state. Picking up the bill for other states could be figured as a gift of public money, prohibited by the constitution.

The measure sets a precedent, the department says, for every other group of public employees to ask for the same treatment, which could endanger other retirement systems.

Liberals Paved Way For Hitler

Nora La Carte Sugarman's letter to the editor (June 4), to save America via Western Union messages missed a few points.

Hitler's road to power was paved by a permissive ultra-liberal republic who refused to suppress militant student organizations, militant black and brown uniformed organizations and periodicals advocating racial strife — all in the name of freedom of speech and a truly democratic society.

Her comparison of an unfortunate incident of released tear gas with planned poisoning of millions in Europe, Santa Rita Prison Farm with concentration camps seems far-fetched. Any National Guardsman stabbing innocent people is subject to thorough inquiry.

The middle class citizen will have to choose between revolutionary violence or the American way of checks and balances. Ours is still a government of laws, in spite of some alarmists.

Such 'Progress' Should Be Fought

Francis Auger, whose letter appeared in last Friday's (June 13) I-J, is to be congratulated for his honesty. His contemptuous reference to "the quaint woodsy effect of 19th century living in Marin" clearly exposes an attitude held (as indicated by their actions) but prudently left unexpressed by the dollar-hungry proponents of the NOW environment: smog, concrete, bulldozed hills, scarred woodlands, chain-link fences and shabby, crackerbox housing.

Unfortunately the "enlightened progress" to which Mr. Auger refers is too often used to justify the steady downgrading of our once-beautiful surroundings here as well as elsewhere. "Enlightened progress" is something to be fought at every turn. And if that should mean a restoration of some phases of 19th century Marin living, I'm just awfully sorry about that!

Would Bring Suit Over Bond Defeat

Tuesday's defeat by 2,910 voters of San Rafael Elementary School District's $2.1 million bond issue leaves me feeling sold down the river.

If 2,910 votes can dictate to my duly elected and appointed representatives on the school board that they shall not acquire property for present and future site development; keep safe and enhance buildings currently in operation; supply adequate staff, certificated as well as non-certificated, to provide a proper per pupil-teacher ratio, then I say, this appears to be representation without taxation —

Nowhere in the United States Constitution, I believe, does it say that there shall be a two-thirds majority vote to pass laws governing capital expenditures as vital to our economy and to our society as providing schools. In 1966, the voters of te State of California voted down an amendment to the state constitution to change the two-thirds vote requirement to a 60-40 ratio. A simple majority could have passed it. Either the voters were apathetic or they went to the polls not knowing what they were doing. . . .

I say that 3,865 woters who voted yes on Tuesday's bond issue should institute an immeidate taxpayers' suit against the California State Legislature. Either it changes an unfair and inequitable law, or let us take it to Washington, D.C., to let the United States Supreme Court decide.

MRS. ULRICH KRAMER
San Rafael.

(Editor's note: A challenge to the two-thirds requirement for passage of bond issues originating in Idaho is now on the tortuous route through the courts that may eventually bring it before the U.S. Supreme Court.)

Council Merely Discussing Pay

May I bring to your attention two errors in your reporting of the June 12 Sausalito budget meeting in the I-J of June 13.

First, Sausalito city councilmen did not indicate that we would put ourselves on the city payroll! We simply indicated that we would discuss salary at a future budget meeting.

Secondly, Councilman (A. R.) Imlay and myself were quoted as favoring a salary for the council. This is not the case. We merely agreed to discuss the matter.

Why Few Speak Out At Public Meetings

Many people legitimately wonder why so few people try to voice an opinion at city council meetings, school board meetings and other public meetings around the country. The main reason these people don't come out is because they know what can happen to them if they oppose or try to criticize anything as was evidenced at last night's (June 10) city council meeting in San Anselmo.

One woman in this town had the courage to write a letter — the purpose of which was simply to ask the council not to accept as mandates the recommendations of the town meeting as sometimes only a few people actually voted for these recommendations. The woman was treated as though she were on trial. One panel chairman who may have shared some light on the accuracy of the letter was conspiciously not there.

After hearing from the audience for a least an hour, three councilmen read statements which had been prepared ahead of time denying her complaints as untrue but failed to back up their statements with facts. Actually, portions of their statements sounded a little silly after the hearing.

The three councilmen, Anderson (the most vicious), Reed and Ragan lashed their personal attack on her with snide, sarcastic remarks which were completely uncalled for and a disgrace to this town . . .

If what these people intended was to stifle all opposition and criticism in our town, they may well have succeeded. There were others who had come to this meeting prepared to speak out but lost their nerve when they saw the treatment given this one woman. . .

Cities' Money Goes To U.S. While Urban Problems Multiply

By ROSCOE and GEOFFREY DRUMMOND

PITTSBURGH — Conditions in the cities are not bad, they are perilous and getting worse, because the cities are simply not doing much about it.

It's not that they don't want to. They just don't have the money because the federal government takes too much from them and gives back too little.

This is why another anguished plea for help comes from the U. S. Conference of Mayors, meeting here this week and representing every major city in the nation.

Its plea is valid. It can't afford to go unheeded. The cities are beginning to drown in a sea of unsolved social, racial and economic problems.

They have long been acute, but they are now at the point of being unmanagable.

Continued inability to cope with them is causing the urban crisis to mount and is plunging local governments into financial and political bankruptcy.

THE STATES and cities are not refusing to tax themselves. They have simply exhausted revenue sources because state government and Washington gobble up so much.

How much?

About 80 per cent of all taxes collected in the cities goes to the states or to the federal government, yet the cities receive back only about 19 per cent of their funds from the states and only a tiny 3.5 per cent from the federal government.

This means that cities are forced to continue to rely largely on the inadequate and unjust property tax. The result is that industry and affluent home owners move to the suburbs, and cities are left with the very poor huddled in their ghettos.

The suburbs have the resources to devote about $1,100 per pupil per year to provide good education while the inner city schools can afford only $500 per pupil per year.

SAN FRANCISCO, for example, needs 13,000 new housing units per year for the next six years. Last year 112 single family homes were built and 111 demolished; a net of 777 apartments units were added. That's it — 778 built to 13,000 needed, and that's typical of most cities. Many are losing ground, not gaining.

As sources of revenue have declined, the cost of welfare has gone up and up in every large city. The case-load in San Francisco increased 135 per cent in 10 years and the cost increased 263 per cent.

Mayor Joseph Alioto of San Francisco put it starkly:

"The cities," he said, "are not looking for a handout but for determined and dynamic national participation in problems that clearly transcend the boundaries of any one city and affect the destiny of the entire country.

"History finds its momentum in the cities, and it is here that national commitment must concentrate. And this is what is asked of the present administration in Washington.

"Certainly the rush of events in our cities is as dangerous as any external threat to our nation and must be given priority equal to any we have internationally."

PRESIDENT NIXON agrees. At the Air Force Academy commencement he said:

"Let us not pose a false choice between meeting our responsibilities abroad and meeting the needs of our people at home. We shall meet both or we shall meet neither.

"The crisis within our society cannot be put on the back burner until we resolve the problem of Vietnam."

What the mayors are asking is: When do we begin?

WASHINGTON WINDOW

It Used To Be Capitol Hill; Now It's Information Gap

By FRANK ELEAZER

WASHINGTON (UPI) —For 169 years they have called it Capitol Hill. Now some lawmakers fear the name will have to be changed. They say Information Gap soon may be a more appropriate title.

Say a congressman wants to know what has happened to HR 1054, a bill to authorize a study of polar bears and for other purposes. He can:

1. — Look it up in the daily House congressional calendar.

2.—Search the digest of public general bills,

3.—Study the Congressional Record.

4.—Ask somebody.

NATURALLY, being a $42,500-a-year executive and busy with inquiries from the polar bear lobby and other big voter blocs, he asks somebody.

That is why each House member is provided with 11 or 12 assistants (senators get about twice that many). And when one of them gets the congressman's inquiry he has four options —as above —and resolves them the same way.

What he does is call the affected committee. Which is why each legislative committee has clerks and counsel, paid up to $32,239 yearly, and secretaries who sometimes draw as much as $18,000.

One of these experts takes the query and looks up the answer in a printed committee calendar compiled for that purpose.

That, of course, is one of the reasons we have the Government Printing Office, which works around the clock and is the world's busiest printer, at a cost to taxpayers of $39 million this year.

So now comes House Clerk W. Pat Jennings, who for his $40,000 a year figures there must be some better way for congressmen to keep track of their business —including the 25,000 or so bills introduced during an average Congress.

Jennings has nothing against reference works, clerks, committee staffers, or government printers. But he thinks computers can perform a lot of the work quicker, easier, and probably cheaper.

SO WHAT he recently installed in the Rayburn House Office Building was a sample data retrieval device. It looks like a TV set. A user asks his question by pointing his finger at appropriate categories, subcategories, and finally specific listings of information stored in a central computer.

The answer appears at once on the screen. HR1054, the computer advises, is lying doggo in the House Committee on Merchant Marine. The TV screen also offers up a capsule analysis of what the bill would do, in event it got passed.

Jennings told Speaker John W. McCormack that what he proposes to do —if the House will allow it —is install one of these wondrous computer outlets in every congressman's office.

The speaker, although impressed, received this news with mixed emotions. "Will that mean they all will be asking for additional space?" he wondered, out of 40 years' observation of legislative mores.

Unfortunately, Jennings' computer wasn't (and isn't likely to be) programmed with an answer for that.

THE PEOPLE'S SCHOOLS

Faculty Arrogance Draws Blame In Student Unrest

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

Faculty arrogance is largely to blame for the spread of student dissatisfaction on college campuses, a Stanford University professor told a graduating class last week.

Prof. Lewis B. Mayhew, outgoing president of the American Association for Higher Education, addressed himself only to the college scene in his commencement speech at Western Washington State College, Bellingham, Wash. But some of the evidences of faculty arrogance he cited are beginning to show up in California high schools — at the same time that student unrest is percolating down to that level.

SAID PROFESSOR Mayhew:

"Admired and well-paid professors in prestigious institutions are those who have gained the right to set their own goals, determine their own activities, and assess their own performance.

"Increasingly these do not include students . . . or at least are restricted to the few who are willing disciples. . . .

"Faculty members . . . also have limited the power of administration to make needed educational reforms. Much of ths trouble at San Francisco State College in 1968 and 1969" came about "because departments controlled all positions."

Further, he declared, arrogant faculty members imagine themselves capable of governing institutions of learning despite lack of background for such an enterprise. "The faculty senator, who would be the first to criticize a generalist or a popularizer, will meet for a dozen hours, skim reports, and vote to abolish a $60 million research installation or discredit a president's handling of a student uprising."

PROFESSOR MAYHEW is not the first to point out responsibility of faculties for much that has gone wrong at the colleges. However, he has catalogued faculty arrogance in a way to make the implications in high schools observable.

High school teachers are out to emulate the "admired and well-paid professors" by setting their own goals, determining their own activities, and assessing their own performance.

This year much more than heretofore, teacher groups in California high schools have insisted on participating in "all matters relating to educational objectives," a right guaranteed then under the Winton Act.

FLARE-UPS in various districts over what was being taught under the guise of American history, sociology, or English have brought retorts that the determination was up to the teacher, and that any suggestion that it should follow prescribed guidelines constituted a threat to academic freedom.

In many districts, teachers have injected themselves into the budgeting process, demanding that the school board change its priorities for use of funds — usually to the effect of devoting more to increasing teachers' salaries.

Although high school faculties do not control hiring their tenure rights under California law (much more ironclad than those of college professors) give them virtual immunity from interference with how they conduct their courses. Principals and superintendents, recognizing this, rarely attempt any reform or change without first winning majority faculty approval. And such changes as are made usually are at instigation of faculty groups rather than of the school board or administration.

PROFESSOR MAYHEW did not try to solve the chicken-or-egg enigma of whether faculties have become arrogant because of the powers given them or have seized those powers because of their arrogance. But either way, he held, the faculty has become "the real enemy of students."

The question arises: If it is true (and many agree with Mayhew that it is) that decisions by faculty on what should be taught and how, where funds should be allocated, and how teachers' time should be spent have helped bring about widespread unrest in colleges; then, if the same sort of decisions are put in faculty hands in high schools, can the same result be expected?

Pollution Helps Produce Food In Experimental Arizona Project

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — When Dr. Richard A. Kassander Jr. of the University of Arizona talks about pollution, he says one man's poison can become another man's meat.

Don't let pollution destroy indiscriminately and indefinitely, he says. Put pollution to work.

They're already doing this at Arizona with one type of pollution, so far experimentally.

As director of the UA Institute of Atmospheric Physics and director of the Water Resources Research Center, Kassander is responsible for Arizona's share of a project at Puerto Penasco in Mexico for the production of power, water and food. Power is generated by diesel engines. The engines throw off carbon dioxide. Instead of helping pollute the air, here the engine exhaust is fed into a greenhouse to help increase the production of food plants.

"In the 'have not' parts of the world, population is outstripping its food supply," says Kassander. "In the 'have' parts the population can't escape its own waste products.

"Although the laws of conservation of mass and energy tell us we can't believe the results, we can foretell the day when the weight of people equals the weight of the earth. From extrapolation of population curves, we can also foretell the day when the last man eats the last plant or when suffocation overtakes the population.

"The laws of physics tell us that the results are false, but they don't tell us whether famine, poison or nuclear holocaust will change the trend. It is our business, and it may not be quite too late, to determine that any changes will be in the direction that will be most satisfactory."

Animals, especially humans, are incredibly inefficient machines," Kassander says. "They consume a tremendous amount of valuable fuel, produce an outrageously small amount of useful work and the balance of the fuel is released as waste which is poisonous to the animal and most of the beneficial aspects of his environment."

Waste pollutes. "So why not use the waste?" he says. "Household garbage, when burned, produces heat at the rate of about 4500 BTUs per pound. This means common garbage is approximately one-third as good as fuel as the best quality soft coal.

"With a little imagination, it can be determined that almost every waste product has economic value, directly or as a processed material," he says.

Kassander suggests that the cost of operating waste disposal and sanitary engineering plants include the cost of putting these pollutants to work. "Why can't we pay to protect our environment?" he asks.

In Arizona, he says, sulphuric acid can — and is being — produced from air-polluting sulphur dioxide as it leaves copper smelter stacks.

"Electrostatic precipitation of solid particles from smoke stacks has been a very lucrative source of material such as arsenic," he says.

"Even the lowly fly ash, the most common stack effluent, has value. In the Tennessee Valley Authority, fly ash recovered by mechanical means replaced 20 per cent of the cement and 10.5 per cent of sand necessary for the concrete at Wilson Dam lock."

India has a tremendous food problem, yet in a normal year it is short only 10 to 15 per cent in the grain production necessary to feed its people. Power to till the fields is produced by oxen. It is estimated that oxen consume about 30 per cent of the food they help produce. A machine could be 20 times as efficient — and not eat food — if a fuel could be found.

"This fuel, in fact, exists — in the waste product of the fields," Kassander says.

Straw from an acre producing two and a half tons of rice theoretically could be made to produce 2,358 horsepower hours of work per acre assuming reasonable efficiencies. This is enough energy to lift enough water from 260 feet to cover an acre of farm land to a depth of four feet.

"It would appear that the time has come to move in these directions — in the exploitation of waste to improve the quality of environment," Kassander says.

"In the last few years, we have seen massive capital investment which recognizes the value of improving the quality of the environment for future yields. This is precisely the philosophy of urban renewal programs.

"I believe it will be possible to extend this philosophy to our basic urban waste production process in a way that will make the poisons we produce sources of value to our economy."

RACIAL STRIFE NEXT?

Immigration Again Rousing Britishers

By YORKE HENDERSON
London Express

LONDON — Enoch's been at it again.

The Right Honorable John Enoch Powell, member of her Majesty's Privy Council, member of the Order of the British Empire, Master of Arts of the University of Cambridge and Conservative member of Parliament for Wolverhampton, has been warning the British of the racial strife that lies ahead for them if they don't do something about immigration.

It was Enoch Powell who, just over a year ago, cast the color question into the political cockpit with a speech to his constituents which said all the sort of things people had been saying in private but which no one had had the gall to pronounce publicly. He warned then that untrammeled immigration of "colored" people must inevitably lead to strife.

The strength of popular reaction shook pundits to the core and with them politicians and professional liberals. Virtually overnight Powell became — by reliable estimate — just about the most popular individual politician in the country. Significantly his most glamorous support came not from the middle class blimps and shellback reactionaires but from the working class, by tradition predominantly leftwing. Dockers (longshoremen) and tough bumarees (meat-market porters) marched through London in support of him.

His latest speech, made to constituents in the heart of England's black country (the reference is to the accumulation of industrial dirt), offered little that was dramatically different.

The dramatic difference lay in the reaction to it.

Last time there was shock and consternation. Vilification was heaped on Powell and even his own party leaders disavowed him, before the full extent of his popular support was realized.

In the year and more since then Powell has barely touched on the subject of immigration, although he has remained the embodiment of all they hate for militant leftwingers, Black Power disciples and protesting students. "Powellism" has become an epithet in their mouths.

But as reaction to his latest speech shows, his first speech was something of a political watershed. It changed the mood and attitude of the country. Before it was made, apprehensiveness about immigration was like sex to the Victorians: You knew it existed and tried to pretend it didn't.

Now it can be expressed with almost as much freedom as support for marijuana smoking, premarital copulation and Chairman Mao.

The divergence of political opinion is over how it should be dealt with.

The Socialist administration which so recently vilified Powell has tightened control of immigration; while his own Tories who chucked him out of the shadow cabinet have officially espoused his idea of voluntary subsidized repatriation of immigrants.

And Powell's speech the other day, while featured largely on the front pages of the national press, on television and radio, has inspired nothing like the shrill near-hysteria of the first occasion.

In large measure that is due to the changed mood of the country. But it owes something, too, to the form of the speech itself.

Free of any taint of emotionalism or demagoguery, it concentrated on the increasing proportion of colored immigrants in the areas where they have congregated and on statistical forecasts of how those proportions will grow over the years. Powell's reputation as an academic and his aridly donnish way of speaking lent them far more weight than any amount of rhetoric.

But the significant strength of Powell's speech lay in his rationalization of why it was justifiable to be alarmed at the prospect of a growing colored population.

It is on this score that the ordinary inarticulate bloke is so easily confounded by the eloquent "liberal" pundit.

Confronted by the question of why he is perturbed about the increasing number of immigrants, the ordinary bloke cannot translate the nuances of his unease into words. Either he holds his tongue and appears a sullen clodhopper or resorts in desperation to one of the fatuous stereotype answers that he doesn't even believe himself about noisy parties, smelly cooking or sexual promiscuity.

What Powell did was to crystallize and articulate what a lot of ordinary Britishers think:

"They tell us that we must be prepared to contemplate, in fact to welcome, the alteration and alienation of our cities and towns. They tell us there is no such thing as our own people and our own country. Indeed there is, and I say it in no mean or arrogant or exclusive spirit.

"What I know is that we have an identity of our own, as we have a territory of our own, and that the instinct to preserve that identity, as to defend that territory, is one of the deepest and strongest implanted in mankind. I happen also to believe that the instinct is good and that its beneficent effects are not exhausted.

"In claiming this we claim no more than others. We claim no more than we ourselves have often helped others to vindicate.

"In our time that identity has been threatened more than once. In the past it was threatened by violence and aggression from without. It is not threatened from within by the foreseeable consequences of a massive but unpremeditated and fortunately, in substantial measure, reversible immigration."

Powell's only concession to rhetoric was to quote the Greek Themistocles: "Strike me if you must, but hear me."

This time there was much less of a rush to strike him.

And the nation had heard him.

Herr Oberregierungsrat? In Germany It's Losing Out

BAD GODESBERG, Germany (GF) — Those long, high-sounding titles that have long been used to connote success and prestige in Germany may be coming to an end in at least one sector — the country's civil service.

An organization representing the some 60,000-strong youth set — age 25 and under — of the country's civil service recently decided in favor of reforms which would do away with such titles.

Today, civil servants not only have grades — a system which youth would like to retain. But position also brings titles like herr inspektor and herr regierungsrat or even herr oberregierungsrat (government advisor and upper government advisor), which are normally used along with the person's family name. Calling a government advisor "Herr Schmidt" instead of Herr Regierungsrat Schmidt is considered a highly discourteous breach of good social behavior. The titles are used not only on the job, but after work socially too.

The young civil servants, aligning themselves with the rest of the country's reform-minded youth, hope now to bring an end to the practice in their profession. They also demand a greater number of political meetings for younger groups in order to encourage discussion between political leaders and the coming generation of voters.

Maddox Says Wife May Run

JEKYLL ISLAND, Ga. (UPI) --Gov. Lester Maddox, ired by a speedy legislative rebuff of his tax program, hinted broadly yesterday that he might run his wife for governor in 1970.

Maddox is prohibited from succeeding himself. But he told the Georgia Municipal Association that either he or his wife, Virginia, would be in the gubernatorial race next year.

He said that he would continue to push for his tax and budget program and, if he did not get approval, "some other people may have a chance to vote for Virginia."

5 Pct. Pay Hike Being Recommended

A five per cent across-the-board 1969-70 salary scale increase for Marin County Schools employees is being recommended to the Marin County Board of Education.

The increase, representing a $36,000 hike above the current budget, will be presented to the board by the administrative services committee at the board's next regular meeting at 8 p.m. July 7 in the County Schools office.

The 5 per cent proposal, termed a cost-of-living increase by the committee, will be in addition to the automatic annual 2.5 per cent increment, Robert E. Spain, director, administrative services, reported.

If approved, the salary schedule would be increased from the present $7,315 - $14,089 to a schedule of $7,681 - $14,793, with the top salary in each case requiring a doctorate degree.

The three committees of the board agreed upon the recommendation at their Monday night meetings, Spain said.

Emphasis in the in-service program for 1969-70 will be on working with school administrators in addition to the regular teacher's in-service program. Ideas to be considered will be student and teacher militancy and teachers' salary negotiations, members of the educational services committee decided.

The special services committee heard a request from several school districts for an educationally handicapped program for junior high age students but continued study until a formal proposal can be submitted by the staff.

Man Charged In Shooting Case

Marin Frank Perry, 57, of 12 Ross Street, San Rafael, has been charged in Marin Municipal Court with two felony counts for allegedly shooting at a house where his wife was Friday.

He is accused of assaulting Stella Perry with a deadly weapon as well as shooting at an occupied residence.

Police said they were called by Paul Herman Weeks to his home at 188 Greenfield Avenue, and that Weeks told them Perry had shot at the house.

When arrested near the house, Perry had a hunting rifle on the floor of the car, police said.

His case has been continued until tomorrow for entry of plea and he is free on $6,250 bail.

Aquacade Aims At $3,000 Contribution

The exact amount of the profits from the swimming show will be determined at a later date, Mrs. Sullivan said.

Fawn Takers Warned Fines Can Be Heavy

A lonely fawn should be left alone.

This warning, now that fawning season is here, was issued today by Alfred F. Giddings, state fish and game warden.

Under the Fish and Game Code it is illegal to possess a fawn, but each year at this time there are people who violate the law, Giddings said.

Some people want a fawn for a pet and attempt to locate and capture one. "These people are cited and prosecuted if apprehended," he said.

Some people find a fawn that is alone and seemingly unattended, "but whose mother is usually only away for a short feeding or watering trip."

No mother deer will intentionally abandon her fawn, he noted, and almost invariably find a fawn that seems lost. These people have no intent to commit a crime, but taking the fawn is still a crime, Giddings said.

Some people find a dead doe and a motherless fawn nearby and take the fawn home, he said. There is no prosecution in these cases, but the fawn is taken from them, he reported. What they should do, he said, is notify the Fish and Game Department of the doe's death.

The law is for the good of everyone including the fawn, Giddings contended. "It takes a certain formula to feed a fawn properly. Even then most die."

The Humane Society of Marin County and the Marin Junior Museum have enough deer to take care of already, and most owners don't want them when they grow up because they are too big to handle, he noted.

"And when the fawns live in this civilized environment away from the other deer and the wilds, they create all kinds of problems," he added.

Motorcycle Stolen

A motorcycle valued at $1,500 was taken from a driveway at 515 Arlington Circle, Novato, between 9:30 p.m., Monday and 7:30 a.m. yesterday, Thomas B. Estes, 37, reported yesterday to police.

City Schools Budget Request

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Even though San Francisco schools will have 2,000 fewer children next year, Superintendent Robert Jenkins wants to increase his budget $14 million to a record $111 million.

Jenkins presented the budget to the board of education last night. He said it contained no program cutbacks, but failed to include some projects the district would like to start.

The school official said student enrollment would probably drop to 101,788 next year.

Major increases in the budget provided for salary hikes of $4.5 million and the addition of 300 teachers at a cost of $2.4 million.

NEWMAN-WOODWARD TEAMED IN 'WINNING'

"Winning," a saga of the world of auto racing, has entered its second week at the Rafael. It stars the husband and wife team of Paul Newman and Joanne Woodward. The second feature stars Doris Day in the "Ballad of Josie." The theater has switched to its summertime schedule with daily matinees.

Nine Marin Youngsters Cast In Shakespeare Play

Nine Marin County youngsters have been cast as members of Puck's gang in the Marin Shakespeare Festival's production of "Midsummer Night's Dream," which opens July 17 at the Forest Meadows Theater.

The youngsters are Pete Battaglio of Terra Linda, Jay Brebner and Sandy Brebner of Sausalito, John Alderson, Dan Bagshaw, Jim Dodson, Bob Meeker, Kent Pinkerton and Steve Whiteman, all of San Rafael.

Other Marinites who will be playing in the season's productions of "Midsummer Night's Dream," "Two Gentlemen of Vernona," and "Richard II" include Bob Feero of San Anselmo; David Gilliam, George Pritzker, Alice Rorvik and Philip Sheridan of Mill Valley; Sue Glausen and Dianne Winsor of Fairfax; Abe Kalish of Sausalito; Max Klein and Bob Meeker of San Rafael; Suzanne O'Hare of Dominican College, and William Remak of Novato.

The festival's madrigal singers need additional male vocalists, especially bass and tenor. The singers specialize in Elizabethan songs and madrigals and will make appearances this summer in Marin and Sonoma counties and San Francisco.

Young Woman To Be Planner

A green-eyed blonde from Pennsylvania will join the Marin County Planning Department as senior planner next week.

She is Margaret Lee Porter, 26, who will replace John Dole, who resigned on June 1 to work with the Ecumenical Association for Housing in Marin. Miss Porter will work in the advance planning section headed by Albert Solnit. She will draw $829 per month.

She is a graduate of Bryn Mawr College and the University of Pennsylvania where she won her master's degree in city planning. She then worked in a Negro ghetto of central Brooklyn, then as a housing specialist in a Philadelphia model cities program where she helped prepare housing action programs with the people in slum communities.

Boy's Head Bruised When Hit By Auto

Brent E. Collins, 4, of 182 Belvedere Street, San Rafael, was treated at Marin General Hospital yesterday for a bruised head after he was hit by a car driven by Robert E. Springer, 23, of 140 Lower Via Casitas, Greenbrae, San Rafael police reported.

Springer said he was traveling at about 15 miles per hour west on Belvedere Street when the child ran into the street from between two parked cars. No charges were cited.

'TORA, TORA, TORA'

Laird Disclaims Navy's Movie Role

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird has disclaimed any Nixon administration association with a controversial movie in which U.S. warships portrayed Papanese vessels in the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor.

Laird wrote Rep. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., yesterday that "all decisions" allowing the USS Yorktown to play a Japanese attack ship were made by the Johnson administration. Six American sailors who volunteered as extras suffered burns during the filming of Tora, Tora, Tora."

It also was announced yesterday that the House Armed Services Committee would investigate use of the ship.

Laird also disavowed a full-page advertisement published Monday and placed by Darryl F. Zanuck, president and chief executive officer of Twentieth Century Fox, which said the movie was "officially approved" by both the U. S. and Japanese defense departments.

"As far as I'm concerned, I have no basis on which to approve or disapprove this film," Laird said.

Laird did not rule out future loans of ships for movies, but laid down some guidelines:

"I do have a basis, however, for insisting that cooperation with film producers in future matters of this kind be restricted to situations in which such cooperation can be accomplished without interfering with normal operations and without cost to the government."

Word of the armed services committee's plan to investigate the filming came from Rep. John M. Murphy, D-N.Y., who has severely criticized the arrangement in which the Navy cooperated with the movie firm. He said L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., chairman, told him that hearings probably would start in late July.

The official reason for the hearings will be to consider a bill by Murphy that would prevent similar instances of cooperation between the armed forces and commercial filmmakers.

Following a meeting of the two men this morning, Rivers authorized Murphy to issue this statement:

"I am sympathetic with the objectives you seek in the bill you have introduced, a bill which would put a stop to the indiscriminate use of military personnel and equipment for the production of movies, television programs or anything else for profit."

The Navy has defended its actions, contending that it was merely aiding those seeking to present historically accurate information to the American people.

Zanuck bought full page ads in the Washington Post and the New York Times Monday to defend the film. Twentieth Century told Murphy in a telegram that the movie "is historical in every sense."

Violinist At College Sunday

Marin Music Chest will open its 1969 summer concert season at 3 p.m. Sunday with a recital by 22-year-old Korean violinist, Young Uck Kim, at Forest Meadows, Dominican College, San Rafael.

Kim, called a "genius" by Leonard Bernstein after his appearance as a soloist with the New York Philharmonic, will play compositions of Pergolesi, Mozart, Bach, Hindemith, and Szymanowski. Rosalyn Franz Miller will be at the piano.

Childern under 12, when accompanied by an adult, are admitted without charge. Nonsubscribers to the series, can obtain tickets at the gate the afternoon of the concert. Gates open at 1:30 p.m. and there are no reserved seats.

Czech Organist To Give Recital

Organist Maria Byma of Czechoslovakia will present her first solo recital at the First Presbyterian Church in San Anselmo Sunday at 8 p.m.

She will perform works by older and contemporary Czech and Slovak composers, including Cernohorsky, Eben, Nemeth and Zimmer.

The organist studied music at the Conservatory of Music in Bratislava and at the Bratislava Academy of Arts. She has performed with the Slovak Philharmoic Orchestra and has given organ recitals in various cities in Bohemia and Slovakia.

She has also performed extensively for the Czechoslovakian Radio and Television Network and the National Theatre in Bratislava.

Mrs. Byma and her husband and two children were in Austria when the Russians invaded Czechoslovakia and were advised not to return. After spending some time in a displaced persons camp, they came to California with the help of a friend who had been a pen pal for eight years and who agreed to act as their sponsor.

RACIAL STRIFE NEXT?

Immigration Again Rousing Britishers

By YORKE HENDERSON
London Express

LONDON — Enoch's been at it again.

The Right Honorable John Enoch Powell, member of her Majesty's Privy Council, member of the Order of the British Empire, Master of Arts of the University of Cambridge and Conservative member of Parliament for Wolverhampton, has been warning the British of the racial strife that lies ahead for them if they don't do something about immigration.

It was Enoch Powell who, just over a year ago, cast the color question into the political cockpit with a speech to his constituents which said all the sort of things people had been saying in private but which no one had had the gall to pronounce publicly. He warned then that untrammeled immigration of "colored" people must inevitably lead to strife.

The strength of popular reaction shook pundits to the core and with them politicians and professional liberals. Virtually overnight Powell became — by reliable estimate — just about the most popular individual politician in the country. Significantly his most glamorous support came not from the middle class blimps and shellback reactionaires but from the working class, by tradition predominantly leftwing. Dockers (longshoremen) and tough bumarees (meat-market porters) marched through London in support of him.

His latest speech, made to constituents in the heart of England's black country (the reference is to the accumulation of industrial dirt), offered little that was dramatically different.

The dramatic difference lay in the reaction to it.

Last time there was shock and consternation. Vilification was heaped on Powell and even his own party leaders disavowed him, before the full extent of his popular support was realized.

In the year and more since then Powell has barely touched on the subject of immigration, although he has remained the embodiment of all they hate for militant leftwingers, Black Power disciples and protesting students. "Powellism" has become an epithet in their mouths.

But as reaction to his latest speech shows, his first speech was something of a political watershed. It changed the mood and attitude of the country. Before it was made, apprehensiveness about immigration was like sex to the Victorians: You knew it existed and tried to pretend it didn't.

Now it can be expressed with almost as much freedom as support for marijuana smoking, premarital copulation and Chairman Mao.

The divergence of political opinion is over how it should be dealt with.

The Socialist administration which so recently vilified Powell has tightened control of immigration; while his own Tories who chucked him out of the shadow cabinet have officially espoused his idea of voluntary subsidized repatriation of immigrants.

And Powell's speech the other day, while featured largely on the front pages of the national press, on television and radio, has inspired nothing like the shrill near-hysteria of the first occasion.

In large measure that is due to the changed mood of the country. But it owes something, too, to the form of the speech itself.

Free of any taint of emotionalism or demagoguery, it concentrated on the increasing proportion of colored immigrants in the areas where they have congregated and on statistical forecasts of how those proportions will grow over the years. Powell's reputation as an academic and his aridly donnish way of speaking lent them far more weight than any amount of rhetoric.

But the significant strength of Powell's speech lay in his rationalization of why it was justifiable to be alarmed at the prospect of a growing colored population.

It is on this score that the ordinary inarticulate bloke is so easily confounded by the eloquent "liberal" pundit.

Confronted by the question of why he is perturbed about the increasing number of immigrants, the ordinary bloke cannot translate the nuances of his unease into words. Either he holds his tongue and appears a sullen clodhopper or resorts in desperation to one of the fatuous stereotype answers that he doesn't even believe himself about noisy parties, smelly cooking or sexual promiscuity.

What Powell did was to crystallize and articulate what a lot of ordinary Britishers think:

"They tell us that we must be prepared to contemplate, in fact to welcome, the alteration and alienation of our cities and towns. They tell us there is no such thing as our own people and our own country. Indeed there is, and I say it in no mean or arrogant or exclusive spirit.

"What I know is that we have an identity of our own, as we have a territory of our own, and that the instinct to preserve that identity, as to defend that territory, is one of the deepest and strongest implanted in mankind. I happen also to believe that the instinct is good and that its beneficent effects are not exhausted.

"In claiming this we claim no more than others. We claim no more than we ourselves have often helped others to vindicate.

"In our time that identity has been threatened more than once. In the past it was threatened by violence and aggression from without. It is not threatened from within by the foreseeable consequences of a massive but unpremeditated and fortunately, in substantial measure, reversible immigration."

Powell's only concession to rhetoric was to quote the Greek Themistocles: "Strike me if you must, but hear me."

This time there was much less of a rush to strike him.

And the nation had heard him.

Herr Oberregierungsrat? In Germany It's Losing Out

BAD GODESBERG, Germany (GF) — Those long, high-sounding titles that have long been used to connote success and prestige in Germany may be coming to an end in at least one sector — the country's civil service.

An organization representing the some 60,000-strong youth set — age 25 and under — of the country's civil service recently decided in favor of reforms which would do away with such titles.

Today, civil servants not only have grades — a system which youth would like to retain. But position also brings titles like herr inspektor and herr regierungsrat or even herr oberregierungsrat (government advisor and upper government advisor), which are normally used along with the person's family name. Calling a government advisor "Herr Schmidt" instead of Herr Regierungsrat Schmidt is considered a highly discourteous breach of good social behavior. The titles are used not only on the job, but after work socially too.

The young civil servants, aligning themselves with the rest of the country's reform-minded youth, hope now to bring an end to the practice in their profession. They also demand a greater number of political meetings for younger groups in order to encourage discussion between political leaders and the coming generation of voters.

Maddox Says Wife May Run

JEKYLL ISLAND, Ga. (UPI) —Gov. Lester Maddox, ired by a speedy legislative rebuff of his tax program, hinted broadly yesterday that he might run his wife for governor in 1970.

Maddox is prohibited from succeeding himself. But he told the Georgia Municipal Association that either he or his wife, Virginia, would be in the gubernatorial race next year.

He said that he would continue to push for his tax and budget program and, if he did not get approval, "some other people may have a chance to vote for Virginia."

Fawn Takers Warned Fines Can Be Heavy

A lonely fawn should be left alone.

This warning, now that fawning season is here, was issued today by Alfred F. Giddings, state fish and game warden.

Under the Fish and Game Code it is illegal to possess a fawn, but each year at this time there are people who violate the law, Giddings said.

Some people want a fawn for a pet and attempt to locate and capture one. "These people are cited and prosecuted if apprehended," he said.

Some people find a fawn that is alone and seemingly unattended, "but whose mother is usually only away for a short feeding or watering trip."

No mother deer will intentionally abandon her fawn, he noted, and almost invariably find a fawn that seems lost. These people have no intent to commit a crime, but taking the fawn is still a crime, Giddings said.

Some people find a dead doe and a motherless fawn nearby and take the fawn home, he said. There is no prosecution in these cases, but the fawn is taken from them, he reported. What they should do, he said, is notify the Fish and Game Department of the doe's death.

The law is for the good of everyone including the fawn, Giddings contended. "It takes a certain formula to feed a fawn properly. Even then most die."

The Humane Society of Marin County and the Marin Junior Museum have enough deer to take care of already, and most owners don't want them when they grow up because they are too big to handle, he noted.

"And when the fawns live in this civilized environment away from the other deer and the wilds, they create all kinds of problems," he added.

Motorcycle Stolen

A motorcycle valued at $1,500 was taken from a driveway at 515 Arlington Circle, Novato, between 9:30 p.m., Monday and 7:30 a.m. yesterday, Thomas B. Estes, 37, reported yesterday to police.

City Schools Budget Request

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Even though San Francisco schools will have 2,000 fewer children next year, Superintendent Robert Jenkins wants to increase his budget $14 million to a record $111 million.

Jenkins presented the budget to the board of education last night. He said it contained no program cutbacks, but failed to include some projects the district would like to start.

The school official said student enrollment would probably drop to 101,788 next year.

Major increases in the budget provided for salary hikes of $4.5 million and the addition of 300 teachers at a cost of $2.4 million.

NEWMAN-WOODWARD TEAMED IN 'WINNING'

"Winning," a saga of the world of auto racing, has entered its second week at the Rafael. It stars the husband and wife team of Paul Newman and Joanne Woodward. The second feature stars Doris Day in the "Ballad of Josie." The theater has switched to its summertime schedule with daily matinees.

Nine Marin Youngsters Cast In Shakespeare Play

Nine Marin County youngsters have been cast as members of Puck's gang in the Marin Shakespeare Festival's production of "Midsummer Night's Dream," which opens July 17 at the Forest Meadows Theater.

The youngsters are Pete Battaglio of Terra Linda, Jay Brebner and Sandy Brebner of Sausalito, John Alderson, Dan Bagshaw, Jim Dodson, Bob Meeker, Kent Pinkerton and Steve Whiteman, all of San Rafael.

Other Marinites who will be playing in the season's productions of "Midsummer Night's Dream," "Two Gentlemen of Vernona," and "Richard II" include Bob Feero of San Anselmo; David Gilliam, George Pritzker, Alice Rorvik and Philip Sheridan of Mill Valley; Sue Glausen and Dianne Winsor of Fairfax; Abe Kalish of Sausalito; Max Klein and Bob Meeker of San Rafael; Suzanne O'Hare of Dominican College, and William Remak of Novato.

The festival's madrigal singers need additional male vocalists, especially bass and tenor. The singers specialize in Elizabethan songs and madrigals and will make appearances this summer in Marin and Sonoma counties and San Francisco.

Young Woman To Be Planner

A green-eyed blonde from Pennsylvania will join the Marin County Planning Department as senior planner next week.

She is Margaret Lee Porter, 26, who will replace John Dole, who resigned on June 1 to work with the Ecumenical Association for Housing in Marin. Miss Porter will work in the advance planning section headed by Albert Solnit. She will draw $829 per month.

She is a graduate of Bryn Mawr College and the University of Pennsylvania where she won her master's degree in city planning. She then worked in a Negro ghetto of central Brooklyn, then as a housing specialist in a Philadelphia model cities program where she helped prepare housing action programs with the people in slum communities.

Boy's Head Bruised When Hit By Auto

Brent E. Collins, 4, of 182 Belvedere Street, San Rafael, was treated at Marin General Hospital yesterday for a bruised head after he was hit by a car driven by Robert E. Springer, 23, of 140 Lower Via Casitas, Greenbrae, San Rafael police reported.

Springer said he was traveling at about 15 miles per hour west on Belvedere Street when the child ran into the street from between two parked cars. No charges were cited.

'TORA, TORA, TORA'

Laird Disclaims Navy's Movie Role

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird has disclaimed any Nixon administration association with a controversial movie in which U.S. warships portrayed Papanese vessels in the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor.

Laird wrote Rep. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., yesterday that "all decisions" allowing the USS Yorktown to play a Japanese attack ship were made by the Johnson administration. Six American sailors who volunteered as extras suffered burns during the filming of Tora, Tora, Tora."

It also was announced yesterday that the House Armed Services Committee would investigate use of the ship.

Laird also disavowed a full-page advertisement published Monday and placed by Darryl F. Zanuck, president and chief executive officer of Twentieth Century Fox, which said the movie was "officially approved" by both the U. S. and Japanese defense departments.

"As far as I'm concerned, I have no basis on which to approve or disapprove this film," Laird said.

Laird did not rule out future loans of ships for movies, but laid down some guidelines:

"I do have a basis, however, for insisting that cooperation with film producers in future matters of this kind be restricted to situations in which such cooperation can be accomplished without interfering with normal operations and without cost to the government."

Word of the armed services committee's plan to investigate the filming came from Rep. John M. Murphy, D-N.Y., who has severely criticized the arrangement in which the Navy cooperated with the movie firm. He said L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., chairman, told him that hearings probably would start in late July.

The official reason for the hearings will be to consider a bill by Murphy that would prevent similar instances of cooperation between the armed forces and commercial filmmakers.

Following a meeting of the two men this morning, Rivers authorized Murphy to issue this statement:

"I am sympathetic with the objectives you seek in the bill you have introduced, a bill which would put a stop to the indiscriminate use of military personnel and equipment for the production of movies, television programs or anything else for profit."

The Navy has defended its actions, contending that it was merely aiding those seeking to present historically accurate information to the American people.

Zanuck bought full page ads in the Washington Post and the New York Times Monday to defend the film. Twentieth Century told Murphy in a telegram that the movie "is historical in every sense."

Violinist At College Sunday

Marin Music Chest will open its 1969 summer concert season at 3 p.m. Sunday with a recital by 22-year-old Korean violinist, Young Uck Kim, at Forest Meadows, Dominican College, San Rafael.

Kim, called a "genius" by Leonard Bernstein after his appearance as a soloist with the New York Philharmonic, will play compositions of Pergolesi, Mozart, Bach, Hindemith, and Szymanowski. Rosalyn Franz Miller will be at the piano.

Childern under 12, when accompanied by an adult, are admitted without charge. Nonsubscribers to the series, can obtain tickets at the gate the afternoon of the concert. Gates open at 1:30 p.m. and there are no reserved seats.

Czech Organist To Give Recital

Organist Maria Byma of Czechoslovakia will present her first solo recital at the First Presbyterian Church in San Anselmo Sunday at 8 p.m.

She will perform works by older and contemporary Czech and Slovak composers, including Cernohorsky, Eben, Nemeth and Zimmer.

The organist studied music at the Conservatory of Music in Bratislava and at the Bratislava Academy of Arts. She has performed with the Slovak Philharmoic Orchestra and has given organ recitals in various cities in Bohemia and Slovakia.

She has also performed extensively for the Czechoslovakian Radio and Television Network and the National Theatre in Bratislava.

Mrs. Byma and her husband and two children were in Austria when the Russians invaded Czechoslovakia and were advised not to return. After spending some time in a displaced persons camp, they came to California with the help of a friend who had been a pen pal for eight years and who agreed to act as their sponsor.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

With Advancing Years, Joints May Seem To Become Rustier

VAN DELLEN

Joints stiffen with advancing age. This is not news to millions of oldsters who get up more slowly and no longer glide about with grace and ease.

Mobility of these junctions can be tested and it has been shown that the ability to flex the back is dependent on age in both sexes, but more so in women.

THE CONNECTIVE TISSUE of the skin and the joint capsule becomes stiffer after the age of 50. The fluid that lubricates the hinges loses some of its viscosity and becomes lighter in texture.

Some of these changes are associated with osteoarthritis, a condition that usually begins in the cartilages lining the inside of the joints. The covering becomes thin and fragmented and in time, erodes through to the bone. The ends of the bone thicken and produce an overgrowth that protrudes from the rim as a smooth lip or sharp spur.

Eighty per cent of all people over 50 have X-ray evidence of joint degeneration. But only 5 to 10 per cent develop symptoms that require treatment. It is surprising that even though the X-ray reveals many changes, the individual has little or no discomfort.

The most commonly involved structues are the fingers, and weight-bearing joints, such as the spine, hips, and knees.

THE BONY CHANGES associated with osteoarthritis are irreversible, but pain tends to come and go. Aspirin and heat are the best remedies. Cortisone-type products are seldom needed unless pain is severe and disabling. It is advisable to check for gout because one condition may mimic the other and treatments differ.

Weight reduction may be followed by drastic improvement in the knees, hips, and back. Correcting posture may do the same.

Diet is not curative but many feel better after eating nutritious, well-balanced menus.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the I-J.)

ENLARGED COLON AT 13

M. M. writes: What causes an enlarged colon in a boy of 13?

REPLY

Megacolon usually is more annoying than serious. The underlying fault is a congenital lack of propulsion power in the rectum. The condition leads to constipation and abdominal distention. In the majority, the dilated intestine can be made to contract with the use of one of the cholinergic drugs. Enemas may be necessary as well as training in bowel habits. Surgery is curative when conservative measures fail.

CORN OIL COCKTAILS

L. B. writes: What are corn oil cocktails used for?

REPLY

To lower blood cholesterol. Several years ago physicians recommended a mixture of corn oil and skim milk powder for this purpose. Today medicines ar used along with a low animal fat diet supplemented with vegetable salad oils and polyunsaturated fatty acid spreads.

ANGINAL PAIN ON RIGHT

L. F. writes: I have pain in the right shoulder which the doctor said is angina pectoris. I always thought heart pain was on the left side. Please set me straight.

REPLY

Anginal pain usually involves the left side, but in some, it involves the right shoulder, both shoulders, or neither.

CONSTIPATED CHILD

E. L. writes: How can constipation be cured in a child?

REPLY

CONSTIPATED CHILD

By diet—not enemas or laxatives. Add more proteins, fruits, vegetables, cereals, and liquids. We assume that the youngster is otherwise healthy.

THE JUVENILE DIABETIC

Mrs. J. writes: Why can't diabetic chidren use the new pills?

REPLY

Because in juvenile diabetes the pancreas cannot be stimulated to form an adequate amount of insulin. Antidiabetic tablets work best in older persons who usually have a milder form of the disease. The insulin-producing cells are more active then they are in diabetic children.

ALUM SUPPOSITORIES

A reader writes: Will the use of alum suppositories shrink hemorrhoids?

REPLY

No. Alum is a shrinker but I doubt it will reduce the size of a hemorrhoidal blood vessel.

ANGINA AND EXERCISE

E. U. writes: Can a person safely continue exercising daily after he develops angina?

REPLY

Yes, provided the activity does not induce anginal pain. Many physicians recommened increasing daily activity.

SACRAMENTO ROUNDUP

Ivy Baker Priest To Seek Reelection

SACRAMENTO (AP) — State Treasurer Ivy Baker Priest revealed today she will seek reelection in 1970 as chief banker for the nation's richest state.

"I'd like to complete what I've started," said the 63-year-old grandmother, who was Treasurer of the United States during the eight-year Dwight D. Eisenhower administration.

Three years ago the attractive Republican ousted Democratic Treasurer Bert A. Betts and became the first woman ever to hold constitutional office in California.

Mrs. Priest said in an interview her three years as state treasurer have been "more challenging and more interesting" than her eight years in Washington as U. S. Treasurer.

As U. S. Treasurer, she said, she was responsible for issuing currency and supervising government depositories all over the world—"but I didn't have the responsibility of investing money and selling bonds" that go with the state treasurer's job.

WATER BONDS

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The Assembly Revenue and Taxation Committee has approved of a bill of questionable legality permitting the state to sell anticipatory water bond notes at a higher rate of interest than allowed by the California Constitution.

If enacted, the bill probably would wind up in a court test.

The measure by Sen. Gordon Cologne, R-Indio, was sent to the ways and means committee yesterday.

Cologne and committee members agreed it probably was illegal to sell notes to finance the gigantic water project at up to 7 per cent interest when the constitution limits the rate to 5 per cent.

Voters won't have a chance to amend the constitution until the 1970 election. The state wants to sell the bonds before then.

Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, chairman of the revenue and taxation committee, said there were two other methods which could be used to provide immediate funds for the water project.

He said the state could adopt mandatory withholding of state income taxes—which would net the state an additional $100 million annually—or use the $100 million surplus Gov. Ronald Reagan has allocated as an income tax rebate next year.

The water project has enough money to continue construction only through September. Bonds for the project cannot be sold because of the high interest rates brought on by inflation.

"I'd like to see the administration look into—with their blinders off—other alternatives," said Bagley.

But Finance Director Caspar W. Weinberger said neither the income tax refund or withholding was a good alternative. The income tax refund was "imminently proper" and withholding was "too high a price to pay," he said.

PENSIONS

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—A bill which includes four legislative employees in the generous retirement plan provided for members of the Assembly and Senate has been signed by Gov. Ronald Reagan without fanfare.

An aide to the governor disclosed yesterday that Reagan signed the measure Monday in the presence of former Senate President Pro Tem Hugh Burns, D-Fresno, and its author, Sen. Jack Schrade, R-San Diego.

There was no public announcement about the signing.

The politically sensitive bill could cost the state nearly a half million dollars.

Bill In Senate On Sonoma Span Member

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A bill to circumvent a 1968 law requiring that a Sonoma County supervisor serve on the board of directors of the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District has cleared the Assembly and gone to the Senate for hearing.

The bill (AB 1812), by Assemblyman Frank P. Belotti, D-Eureka, was introduced at the request of one of Sonoma's three representatives on the bridge board, E. J. Guidotti of Guerneville. His term expired in December, and the 1968 law requires that the supervisors replace him with one of their own members, but the supervisors have stalled replacing Guidotti.

The bill was thought to be dead a few weeks ago, largely because of the opposition by the author of the 1968 law, Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael. He had objected the bill would undermine the intent of his law, which was to increase the "responsiveness" of the bridge board by putting elected officials on it.

But Bagley now supports the bill because it has been amended to postpone to December 1970, the requirement that a supervisor be among Sonoma's three representatives. Guidotti was an "unfair victim" of the new law, Bagley told the Independent-Journal.

The result of the amendment would be that the Sonoma supervisors next year would have to choose which of their two veteran bridge board representatives they want to dump.

Guidotti, a former member of the board of supervisors, reportedly was pleased with the amendment.

Next year either he or his fellow bridge director, L. E. Castner of Boyes Hot Springs, will have to be replaced by a supervisor.

Sonoma County's third representative on the bridge board is W. R. Lucius, Healdsburg city councilman. Bagley's 1968 law gave Sonoma a third seat on the bridge board to be filled by a member of a city council.

Collier Seeks Hiking Span Directors' Meeting Pay $25

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Legislation to double the pay of Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District directors from $25 to $50 a meeting has been introduced by Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka.

The measure also would delete the limitation that directors may not be paid for attending more than four board or committee meetings in one month.

The pay hike was favored by a majority of the 18 bridge directors when they broached the subject four months ago, but they declined to vote formally to seek it. News reports of their discussion would be ample notice to legislators that they wanted the increase, directors agreed.

Directors from Sonoma, Napa, Mendocino and Del Norte counties also paid mileage and meal allowances.

San Francisco Supervisor William C. Blake, a member of the bridge board, had suggested directors be paid $100 a meeting when he first brought up the subject in February.

The period to introduce new legislation passed in April, but Collier grated the pay hike onto a "skeleton" bill that previously made no substantive change in the act that set up the bridge district.

Native Daughters Name President

LOS BANOS (AP)—An Oakland woman has been elected grand president of the Native Daughters of the Golden West.

Mrs. Nancy Conens was selected to succeed Mrs. Hazel Malette of Oroville as head of the 15,000 member organization.

More than 600 delegates attending the group's convention here were to take part in dedication of Pacheco Pass as an historic monument today.

The new officers will be installed at the close of the five-day convention tomorrow.

Other new officers include Mrs. Irene Bondanza of San Francisco as vice-president and Mrs. Cirgilia McCombs of Modesto as grand marshal.

Elected trustees were Gertrude L. Doss, Whittier; Marie C. Landini, San Jose; Betty Curilich, Jackson; Lila Hummel, Inglewood; Marion Maguire, Berkeley; Helen McCarthy, San Francisco; and Meredyth Burnett, Sonora.

IN SOUTH DAKOTA

Dream Is To Carve Tribute To Indians

CUSTER, S. D. (AP) — Korczak Ziolkowski has a marvelous dream to carve the world's largest monument.

Ziolkowski is the owner of a 6,700-foot mountain on which he is carving a monument to the Indian warrior Crazy Horse.

He also envisions a cultural center at the foot of his gigantic monument where North American Indians could recapture the dignity that once was theirs.

For 18 years the giant man — sporting a heavy, graying beard and wearing a well-worn deer leather jacket — has plodded up and down the mountain, chiseling away to realize his dream. Slowly it emerges, but at a pace that taxes the artist's patience and exasperates the earthlings who wait and watch below.

Nearby stands a national monument — Mount Rushmore.

But Ziolkowski's wife, Ruth, tells tourists who visit the site each year that two million tons of rock have already been removed for the carving. That is six times more than were taken from Mount Rushmore during the period it was carved.

And Ziolkowski is proud of what he has accomplished without state or federal aid. Signs at the gate announced:

"This is not a state or federal project."

Crazy Horse is one man's dream and one man's project, but it is a family operation. Little Ziolkowskis share the work. They are paid modest wages, but there are fringe benefits like the swimming pool their father built for them. There are, however, no vacations, and summer means mainly work.

On display at the sculptor's home, overlooking the gigantic mountain, are Ziolkowski's other works of art.

Among them are pieces in wood and marble — busts, statues and bas-reliefs of such dignitaries as the Polish patriot Paderewski; the famous actress Blanche Yurka; Connecticut's great Gov. Wilbur Cross; Gutzon Borglum, the sculptor of Mount Rushmore, and the late President John F. Kennedy.

From the studio gallery the visitor is able to look down into the sculptor's work area, which is idle during the summer while he devotes all of his time to Crazy Horse. His materials and tools, as well as works in various stages of completion, give an intimate and rare view of the ancient art of sculpturing.

Controversy and financial problems have plagued the sculptor. He thrives on the one and reacts realistically to the other.

No benefactor is providing the gigantic sums necessary to carve the three-dimensional Crazy Horse. No one but Ziolkowski provides the wherewithal to feed, clothe and educate the sculptor's 10 children.

Commissioned works provide some income. There are always several pieces in progress in Ziolkowski's studio.

Bringing Crazy Horse to its present state of completion has been a Herculean task. But things are looking up. A power line was brought up to the top of the mountain, making it possible for more powerful equipment to be put to work.

After 18 years, another surprising thing seems to be happening. The people in Custer are beginning to realize that their giant is going to be there tomorrow.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

With Advancing Years, Joints May Seem To Become Rustier

VAN DELLEN

Joints stiffen with advancing age. This is not news to millions of oldsters who get up more slowly and no longer glide about with grace and ease.

Mobility of these junctions can be tested and it has been shown that the ability to flex the back is dependent on age in both sexes, but more so in women.

THE CONNECTIVE TISSUE of the skin and the joint capsule becomes stiffer after the age of 50. The fluid that lubricates the hinges loses some of its viscosity and becomes lighter in texture.

Some of these changes are associated with osteoarthritis, a condition that usually begins in the cartilages lining the inside of the joints. The covering becomes thin and fragmented and in time, erodes through to the bone. The ends of the bone thicken and produce an overgrowth that protrudes from the rim as a smooth lip or sharp spur.

Eighty per cent of all people over 50 have X-ray evidence of joint degeneration. But only 5 to 10 per cent develop symptoms that require treatment. It is surprising that even though the X-ray reveals many changes, the individual has little or no discomfort.

The most commonly involved structues are the fingers, and weight-bearing joints, such as the spine, hips, and knees.

THE BONY CHANGES associated with osteoarthritis are irreversible, but pain tends to come and go. Aspirin and heat are the best remedies. Cortisone-type products are seldom needed unless pain is severe and disabling. It is advisable to check for gout because one condition may mimic the other and treatments differ.

Weight reduction may be followed by drastic improvement in the knees, hips, and back. Correcting posture may do the same.

Diet is not curative but many feel better after eating nutritious, well-balanced menus.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the I-J.)

ENLARGED COLON AT 13

M. M. writes: What causes an enlarged colon in a boy of 13?

REPLY

Megacolon usually is more annoying than serious. The underlying fault is a congenital lack of propulsion power in the rectum. The condition leads to constipation and abdominal distention. In the majority, the dilated intestine can be made to contract with the use of one of the cholinergic drugs. Enemas may be necessary as well as training in bowel habits. Surgery is curative when conservative measures fail.

CORN OIL COCKTAILS

L. B. writes: What are corn oil cocktails used for?

REPLY

To lower blood cholesterol. Several years ago physicians recommended a mixture of corn oil and skim milk powder for this purpose. Today medicines ar used along with a low animal fat diet supplemented with vegetable salad oils and polyunsaturated fatty acid spreads.

ANGINAL PAIN ON RIGHT

L. F. writes: I have pain in the right shoulder which the doctor said is angina pectoris. I always thought heart pain was on the left side. Please set me straight.

REPLY

Anginal pain usually involves the left side, but in some, it involves the right shoulder, both shoulders, or neither.

CONSTIPATED CHILD

E. L. writes: How can constipation be cured in a child?

REPLY

CONSTIPATED CHILD

By diet—not enemas or laxatives. Add more proteins, fruits, vegetables, cereals, and liquids. We assume that the youngster is otherwise healthy.

THE JUVENILE DIABETIC

Mrs. J. writes: Why can't diabetic chidren use the new pills?

REPLY

Because in juvenile diabetes the pancreas cannot be stimulated to form an adequate amount of insulin. Antidiabetic tablets work best in older persons who usually have a milder form of the disease. The insulin-producing cells are more active then they are in diabetic children.

ALUM SUPPOSITORIES

A reader writes: Will the use of alum suppositories shrink hemorrhoids?

REPLY

No. Alum is a shrinker but I doubt it will reduce the size of a hemorrhoidal blood vessel.

ANGINA AND EXERCISE

E. U. writes: Can a person safely continue exercising daily after he develops angina?

REPLY

Yes, provided the activity does not induce anginal pain. Many physicians recommened increasing daily activity.

SACRAMENTO ROUNDUP

Ivy Baker Priest To Seek Reelection

SACRAMENTO (AP) — State Treasurer Ivy Baker Priest revealed today she will seek reelection in 1970 as chief banker for the nation's richest state.

"I'd like to complete what I've started," said the 63-year-old grandmother, who was Treasurer of the United States during the eight-year Dwight D. Eisenhower administration.

Three years ago the attractive Republican ousted Democratic Treasurer Bert A. Betts and became the first woman ever to hold constitutional office in California.

Mrs. Priest said in an interview her three years as state treasurer have been "more challenging and more interesting" than her eight years in Washington as U. S. Treasurer.

As U. S. Treasurer, she said, she was responsible for issuing currency and supervising government depositories all over the world—"but I didn't have the responsibility of investing money and selling bonds" that go with the state treasurer's job.

WATER BONDS

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The Assembly Revenue and Taxation Committee has approved of a bill of questionable legality permitting the state to sell anticipatory water bond notes at a higher rate of interest than allowed by the California Constitution.

If enacted, the bill probably would wind up in a court test.

The measure by Sen. Gordon Cologne, R-Indio, was sent to the ways and means committee yesterday.

Cologne and committee members agreed it probably was illegal to sell notes to finance the gigantic water project at up to 7 per cent interest when the constitution limits the rate to 5 per cent.

Voters won't have a chance to amend the constitution until the 1970 election. The state wants to sell the bonds before then.

Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, chairman of the revenue and taxation committee, said there were two other methods which could be used to provide immediate funds for the water project.

He said the state could adopt mandatory withholding of state income taxes—which would net the state an additional $100 million annually—or use the $100 million surplus Gov. Ronald Reagan has allocated as an income tax rebate next year.

The water project has enough money to continue construction only through September. Bonds for the project cannot be sold because of the high interest rates brought on by inflation.

"I'd like to see the administration look into—with their blinders off—other alternatives," said Bagley.

But Finance Director Caspar W. Weinberger said neither the income tax refund or withholding was a good alternative. The income tax refund was "imminently proper" and withholding was "too high a price to pay," he said.

PENSIONS

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—A bill which includes four legislative employees in the generous retirement plan provided for members of the Assembly and Senate has been signed by Gov. Ronald Reagan without fanfare.

An aide to the governor disclosed yesterday that Reagan signed the measure Monday in the presence of former Senate President Pro Tem Hugh Burns, D-Fresno, and its author, Sen. Jack Schrade, R-San Diego.

There was no public announcement about the signing.

The politically sensitive bill could cost the state nearly a half million dollars.

Bill In Senate On Sonoma Span Member

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO —A bill to circumvent a 1968 law requiring that a Sonoma County supervisor serve on the board of directors of the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District has cleared the Assembly and gone to the Senate for hearing.

The bill (AB 1812), by Assemblyman Frank P. Belotti, D-Eureka, was introduced at the request of one of Sonoma's three representatives on the bridge board, E. J. Guidotti of Guerneville. His term expired in December, and the 1968 law requires that the supervisors replace him with one of their own members, but the supervisors have stalled replacing Guidotti.

The bill was thought to be dead a few weeks ago, largely because of the opposition by the author of the 1968 law, Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael. He had objected the bill would undermine the intent of his law, which was to increase the "responsiveness" of the bridge board by putting elected officials on it.

But Bagley now supports the bill because it has been amended to postpone to December 1970, the requirement that a supervisor be among Sonoma's three representatives. Guidotti was an "unfair victim" of the new law, Bagley told the Independent-Journal.

The result of the amendment would be that the Sonoma supervisors next year would have to choose which of their two veteran bridge board representatives they want to dump.

Guidotti, a former member of the board of supervisors, reportedly was pleased with the amendment.

Next year either he or his fellow bridge director, L. E. Castner of Boyes Hot Springs, will have to be replaced by a supervisor.

Sonoma County's third representative on the bridge board is W. R. Lucius, Healdsburg city councilman. Bagley's 1968 law gave Sonoma a third seat on the bridge board to be filled by a member of a city council.

Collier Seeks Hiking Span Directors' Meeting Pay $25

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Legislation to double the pay of Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District directors from $25 to $50 a meeting has been introduced by Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka.

The measure also would delete the limitation that directors may not be paid for attending more than four board or committee meetings in one month.

The pay hike was favored by a majority of the 18 bridge directors when they broached the subject four months ago, but they declined to vote formally to seek it. News reports of their discussion would be ample notice to legislators that they wanted the increase, directors agreed.

Directors from Sonoma, Napa, Mendocino and Del Norte counties also paid mileage and meal allowances.

San Francisco Supervisor William C. Blake, a member of the bridge board, had suggested directors be paid $100 a meeting when he first brought up the subject in February.

The period to introduce new legislation passed in April, but Collier grated the pay hike onto a "skeleton" bill that previously made no substantive change in the act that set up the bridge district.

Native Daughters Name President

LOS BANOS (AP)—An Oakland woman has been elected grand president of the Native Daughters of the Golden West.

Mrs. Nancy Conens was selected to succeed Mrs. Hazel Malette of Oroville as head of the 15,000 member organization.

More than 600 delegates attending the group's convention here were to take part in dedication of Pacheco Pass as an historic monument today.

The new officers will be installed at the close of the five-day convention tomorrow.

Other new officers include Mrs. Irene Bondanza of San Francisco as vice-president and Mrs. Cirgilia McCombs of Modesto as grand marshal.

Elected trustees were Gertrude L. Doss, Whittier; Marie C. Landini, San Jose; Betty Curilich, Jackson; Lila Hummel, Inglewood; Marion Maguire, Berkeley; Helen McCarthy, San Francisco; and Meredyth Burnett, Sonora.

IN SOUTH DAKOTA

Dream Is To Carve Tribute To Indians

CUSTER, S. D. (AP) — Korczak Ziolkowski has a marvelous dream to carve the world's largest monument.

Ziolkowski is the owner of a 6,700-foot mountain on which he is carving a monument to the Indian warrior Crazy Horse.

He also envisions a cultural center at the foot of his gigantic monument where North American Indians could recapture the dignity that once was theirs.

For 18 years the giant man — sporting a heavy, graying beard and wearing a well-worn deer leather jacket — has plodded up and down the mountain, chiseling away to realize his dream. Slowly it emerges, but at a pace that taxes the artist's patience and exasperates the earthlings who wait and watch below.

Nearby stands a national monument — Mount Rushmore.

But Ziolkowski's wife, Ruth, tells tourists who visit the site each year that two million tons of rock have already been removed for the carving. That is six times more than were taken from Mount Rushmore during the period it was carved.

And Ziolkowski is proud of what he has accomplished without state or federal aid. Signs at the gate announced: "This is not a state or federal project."

Crazy Horse is one man's dream and one man's project, but it is a family operation. Little Ziolkowskis share the work. They are paid modest wages, but there are fringe benefits like the swimming pool their father built for them. There are, however, no vacations, and summer means mainly work.

On display at the sculptor's home, overlooking the gigantic mountain, are Ziolkowski's other works of art.

Among them are pieces in wood and marble — busts, statues and bas-reliefs of such dignitaries as the Polish patriot Paderewski; the famous actress Blanche Yurka; Connecticut's great Gov. Wilbur Cross; Gutzon Borglum, the sculptor of Mount Rushmore, and the late President John F. Kennedy.

From the studio gallery the visitor is able to look down into the sculptor's work area, which is idle during the summer while he devotes all of his time to Crazy Horse. His materials and tools, as well as works in various stages of completion, give an intimate and rare view of the ancient art of sculpturing.

Controversy and financial problems have plagued the sculptor. He thrives on the one and reacts realistically to the other.

No benefactor is providing the gigantic sums necessary to carve the three-dimensional Crazy Horse. No one but Ziolkowski provides the wherewithal to feed, clothe and educate the sculptor's 10 children.

Commissioned works provide some income. There are always several pieces in progress in Ziolkowski's studio.

Bringing Crazy Horse to its present state of completion has been a Herculean task. But things are looking up. A power line was brought up to the top of the mountain, making it possible for more powerful equipment to be put to work.

After 18 years, another surprising thing seems to be happening. The people in Custer are beginning to realize that their giant is going to be there tomorrow.

Corte Madera Center Giving Canadian Voyage For Two

Where in the world would you like to go??!!

Corte Madera Shopping Center's Merchants' Council — with the cooperation of P and O Steamship Lines — is offering to a fortunate winner a combination sea-air-shore excursion vacation for two to Vancouver and Victoria, B.C., and Seattle, Wash.

Departing from San Francisco Aug. 31, two vacationers will sail aboard the beautiful SS Oriana, P and O's sleek superliner with 11 passenger decks, 25 public rooms, a theater two decks high for showing wide screen stereophonic motion pictures, four swimming pools, beautifully appointed cabins, and all the other amenities of gracious living including excellent cuisine.

Arriving in Vancouver at noon Sept. 2, the lucky trip winners will be taxied to the Bay Shore Inn, their place of residence while not engaged in free-time exploration of this beautiful city or on guided tours by Gray Line motorcoach. Sights to be seen will include Burrard Inlet, Capilano Canyon and its suspension bridge, Lions Gate suspension bridge, and British Properties.

Tour winners will leave for Victoria on Sept. 4 by way of Gray Line's "Royal Victoria" motor coach to Tsawwassen and a ferry boat cruise through the famous Gulf Islands to Swartz Bay. After checking into the Empress Hotel, their evening will begin with dinner at the Red Lion Theater-Restaurant followed by a visit to the Burchart Gardens.

Next day, after a free morning, there will be a trip to the new Undersea Marine World where visitors descend beneath the sea to view a wonderland of sea animals and plant life from North Pacific waters.

On the evening of Sept. 6, tour winners will board a Canadian Pacific steamer for Seattle where the night will be spent at the Benjamin Franklin hotel, and the following day will include a tour to Mt. Rainier through the majestic Cascade range.

The vacation will draw to a close on the evening of Sept. 7 when the vacationers board a Western Airlines flight which will arrive in San Francisco

WHO WILL THEY BE—On P and O's beautiful SS Oriana will sail from San Francisco Aug. 31, enroute to Vancouver, British Columbia. Corte Madera Shopping Center's Merchants' Council and P and O Steamship Lines offer Marin County shoppers the opportunity to be among the passengers through a tour contest to be held tomorrow through Saturday, with all travel arrangements through Northgate Travel Center.

Oriana Is Speediest Liner On Pacific Run

SS Oriana, the fastest passenger ship in the Pacific, made her maiden voyage to San Francisco in February 1961, inaugurating her regular round-world service at that time. The superliner, which has broken every speed record east of Gibraltar, is one of the largest liners to call at West Coast ports.

The 42,000-ton vessel, which carries more than 2,100 passengers and a crew of 900, visits Vancouver, San Francisco and Los Angeles four or five times a year, when she is sailing one of P and O's six basic routes: to or from Europe via the Pacific; to or from the Orient; on a circle-Pacific voyage; to or from Europe via the Panama Canal and Caribbean (Oriana sails from San Francisco June 4 on such a voyage; return from England in August via the Panama); or to Europe via the Pacific and South Africa.

Twin-stacked, the liner is more than two and a half times the length of a football field (804 feet). She is equipped with gyro-stabilizers to minimize roll and a transverse propulsion system enabling her to maneuver directly sideways in either direction, an aid in navigating in close quarters.

One of the most notable features of Oriana is the ship's extensive use of aluminum — more than 1,000 tons of it are used in the superstructure. The ship is also air-conditioned and humidity controlled throughout.

The P and O liner is equipped with television, capable of picking up local programs while in ports and of transmitting closed circuit, taped programs while at sea.

In interior design, Oriana has a number of unique features. The Red Carpet room features television, as well as hi-fi and motion picture projection equipment. An electronic baby sitter monitored by a switchboard operator pages parents should a child awaken and cry. Passenger baggage is handled by fast-moving electrical conveyors and elevators.

Many first class cabins are built around a series of courts which permit each cabin to have a view of the sea and natural daylight. Tourist class cabins are either two or four-berth.

Oriana has a theater two decks high, for showing wide screen stereophonic motion pictures or for producing live

WHO WILL THEY BE—On P and O's beautiful SS Oriana will sail from San Francisco Aug. 31, enroute to Vancouver, British Columbia. Corte Madera Shopping Center's Merchants' Council and P and O Steamship Lines offer Marin County shoppers the opportunity to be among the passengers through a tour contest to be held tomorrow through Saturday, with all travel arrangements through Northgate Travel Center.

Oriana Is Speediest Liner On Pacific Run

SS Oriana, the fastest passenger ship in the Pacific, made her maiden voyage to San Francisco in February 1961, inaugurating her regular round-world service at that time. The superliner, which has broken every speed record east of Gibraltar, is one of the largest liners to call at West Coast ports.

The 42,000-ton vessel, which carries more than 2,100 passengers and a crew of 900, visits Vancouver, San Francisco and Los Angeles four or five times a year, when she is sailing one of P and O's six basic routes: to or from Europe via the Pacific; to or from the Orient; on a circle-Pacific voyage; to or from Europe via the Panama Canal and Caribbean (Oriana sails from San Francisco June 4 on such a voyage; return from England in August via the Panama); or to Europe via the Pacific and South Africa.

Twin-stacked, the liner is more than two and a half times the length of a football field (804 feet). She is equipped with gyro-stabilizers to minimize roll and a transverse propulsion system enabling her to maneuver directly sideways in either direction, an aid in navigating in close quarters.

One of the most notable features of Oriana is the ship's extensive use of aluminum — more than 1,000 tons of it are used in the superstructure. The ship is also air-conditioned and humidity controlled throughout.

The P and O liner is equipped with television, capable of picking up local programs while in ports and of transmitting closed circuit, taped programs while at sea.

In interior design, Oriana has a number of unique features. The Red Carpet room features television, as well as hi-fi and motion picture projection equipment. An electronic baby sitter monitored by a switchboard operator pages parents should a child awaken and cry. Passenger baggage is handled by fast-moving electrical conveyors and elevators.

Many first class cabins are built around a series of courts which permit each cabin to have a view of the sea and natural daylight. Tourist class cabins are either two or four-berth.

Oriana has a theater two decks high, for showing wide screen stereophonic motion pictures or for producing live

Butler TV, Music Is A Family Affair

A "family affair" is the best way to describe the management of the Butler TV and Music Center located in the Corte Madera Shopping Center.

This remarkable venture first started when Sally (Mrs. Robert) Butler urged her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Max Daoust, to come to California and asked her father to join with her in opening a music store.

Known first as the Harmony Music Center, the store opened in the center in March of 1965, and moved to its new quarters in the center under its present name in 1967.

Mrs. Butler's husband, Robert, became so engrossed in the business he gave up his electrician's trade to join the family shop full time. As the business expanded, other members of the family became involved.

Also employed part time in the Corte Madera shop are the older Butler children, Roberta, 16, and Michael, 14, and a niece, Jackie Perry.

Members of the family join together for activities other than business. The Butler summer home at Clear Lake is the gathering place for those who enjoy water skiing and swimming.

All financial transactions can be resolved at Crocker-Citizen's National Bank or Tamalpais Savings and Loan Association.

Groceries for the family may be purchased at Cala Foods, delicious pastries at Lady Baltimore Bakery, and the weary shopper can be refreshed at Zim's Restaurant or Herbert's Sherbet Shoppe.

Special needs can be handled by Hollie Smith's A Associates Insurance, and Dr. Shuso Kumata, Optometrist, and by a law office.

Montgomery Ward Co. and J. C. Penny Co. provide the myriad necessities of living from sports equipment to childrens' clothing and draperies, which can be cleaned expertly at Peerless Cleaners or Kerns and Walker Cleaners.

Higher Income, Illness Linked

NEW DELHI (AP) — The more your salary the more prone you are to certain chronic ailments, according to an Indian medical survey.

Kentucky Crank Phones Fading

ELIZABETHTOWN, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky's last handcranked telephone system is on the way out.

The state authorized General Telephone Co. to install modern dial equipment by the middle of 1969 to serve the Upton exchange in Hardin County. Upton's 325 customers have been using old-time phones provided by the Farmers Telephone Company.

Upton is a farming community 60 miles south of Louisville.

Oregon Commune Seemingly Like Hippies, But Differs

GRANTS PASS, Ore. (UPI)—Deep in the rolling timber country of southern Oregon a "family" of 60 young people live together in utter simplicity and guided only—as they explain it—by "God and love."

All are droputs from normal society and most came to their haven after deciding that the LSD from which they'd been getting their kicks provided only an illusory escape.

They have returned, they say, to "the natural ways of the earth." Their home is a huge lodge, self-built out of the forest, and most of their food comes from a two-acre vegetable garden.

"The ultimate consideration of everything we do here," said Nancy, a former Radcliffe student and mother of four lovely blonde girls, "is, 'can it get us higher with God'?"

Nancy's "family" came into being last Thanksgiving. Pam, 20, another member and a sprightly brunette from San Diego, said they all joined hands, formed a circle in a clearing, and were married—all to each other "but most to another person."

PIONEER HIPPIES

A few months earlier, the first members of the commune had bought 250 acres of land from the state under a longterm payment plan. Now, with its 60-member family, the commune has the aspects of a pioneer settlement.

The "brothers" and "sisters," as they call each other, have abandoned civilization to become deeply involved with one another. They are close to the earth but not dirty, sensual but not lazy, noncompetitive but not incompetent—and they seem very happy.

Noticeably absent are television, liquor, electricity, meat, drugs of any kind (even aspirin), clocks, shaving equipment and physical modesty in the natural sense.

They are longhaired and mostly denim clad but are not the stereotyped illkempt, smelly hippies. They cleanse themselves daily in a communal sauna constructed of an old tool shed and an oil drum stove.

All the world's deities, they say, are one to them and, in drum beating sessions each evening before supper they gather to chant homage to God—'God is love; I love God." The spiritual high mark of the day is the ritual "om" a Buddhist syllable having to do with the unity of all people and things. The family joins hands around a central hearth and communes in a resonant hum.

MANY CHILDREN

The ultimate test of the commune system could well come when its children—and there are many children in this "no pill" world—leave home to face life as it is on the outside.

"They will have no problem," Ron said, confidently. He is the father of four. He left his job as a computer science professor in southern California for communal life in the Oregon woods. "They," he said of the children, "will have grown up with love. They are universal children at peace with themselves."

With the approval of the local educational authorities, teaching of the children is done by members of the family who include three holders of master's degrees and several B.A.'s. "The children are wise beyond their years," Pam bragged.

All members of the family have taken an oath of poverty and share possessions equally on a communal basis. This family, recognized as a non-profit religious institution, is tax-exempt.

Original funding came from a modest "stash" contributed by each newcomer and some of this remains on account for land payments. Little additional money is needed, even for food, since U.S. government surplus food programs provide such nourishment as does not come from the garden or forest floor.

The family has found acceptance from the surrounding community. About 50 "straights" threw a housewarming potluck dinner for members of the commune, and many return on Saturdays, the visiting day.

"In suburbia when I was a good neighbor as society defines that," Nancy said, "my neighbors were never good to me. But here, where we all live for (vibrations) the neighbors love God and put out love vibes us."

India To Gain More Laborers

NEW DELHI (AP) — Repatriation of people of Indian origin from Ceylon will help boost production of tea and rubber in India, according to official forecasts.

Under an agreement arrived at between the prime ministers of the two countries in 1964, about 525,000 persons will move into India over the next few years. Ninety per cent of them are plantation laborers.

The Indian government has drawn up plans to convert about 20,000 acres as tea and rubber plantations for the rehabilitation of these displaced persons. These will be in the hilly districts of Madras and Mysore states and in the Andaman group of islands in the Bay of Bengal.

$1.776 Million Sewage Plan Outlined

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

A $1,776,750 program for upgrading San Rafael's sanitary sewer system has been recommended by Dan Coleman Associates after a lengthy study of the system's inadequacies.

This would include major construction totaling $1,100,000, minor construction totaling $76,750, and inspection, testing and sealing totaling $600,000.

There might be additional cost for side sewers or other construction found necessary by the inspection and testing programs, warned Dominic J. Selmi, former San Rafael city engineer now on Coleman's staff, in the report to the city.

The report, delivered this week, recommends the upgrading be undertaken in stages. First stage construction, estimated at $573,792, is designed to relieve what Selmi called "an almost intolerable condition in the vicinity of Second Street and Lincoln Avenue." He urged this be started as soon as possible, with the remaining stages to follow "as soon as financing is available."

The first stage would include new sewer lines on Second Street and Francisco Boulevard, a $275,000 pumping station at Second and Irwin streets and a $15,000 ejector station on Francisco Boulevard at the creek.

The "almost intolerable condition" results largely from infiltration of storm water into the sanitary sewer system during rainy weather — a condition which has drawn the wrath of the Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board.

Selmi's report notes that "in the past, it was generally conceded that the effective alleviation of this condition would require reconstruction of the entire system." As this was not economically feasible, he notes, "it was deemed more expedient to provide greater capacity downstream" as portions of the system were reconstructed. "It is now apparent that the effect on the terminal point must be considered," he wrote.

During the rainy season, he reported, the peak flow entering the sanitary sewer system — largely from this infiltration — is estimated at 13 to 14 million gallons per day, and this does not include overflow onto city streets, which "cannot be estimated." The treatment plant capacity is five millions gallons per day.

It is to detect and eliminate the infiltration that the $600,000 inspection, testing and sealing program is recommended. This would be done by smoke-testing throughout the system and examination of all lines by close-circuit television.

Both of these methods were

Lindsay Fails To Win GOP Mayor's Bid

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor John V. Lindsay, defeated in his bid for the Republican mayoral nomination, said today he will form a new "urban party" and appeal to independents and liberals in the Democratic and Republican parties in the fall mayoral election.

Lindsay, who said he would remain a Republican, said that State Sen. John J. Marchi, who defeated him, had been "captured by the forces of the ultra right.

"He stands for negativism," Lindsay said, "and appeals to the forces of hatred and divisiveness."

"My theme in the campaign," he said, "will be 'a mayor for all the city.' We will create an independent line for a new urban party."

The mayor said no name had been chosen for the new party. But he is already on the ballot as the candidate of the Liberal Party.

Lindsay, who lost in a mayoral primary that echoed the results of recent elections in Los Angeles and Minneapolis, warned that any Republican leader who supports Marchi in

One-Way San Rafael Street Pattern Urged

Fourth Street should be made a one-way street eastbound and Fifth Avenue a one-way street westbound to improve downtown traffic flow in San Rafael, in the belief of D. Jackson Faustman, Sacramento traffic consultant.

Faustman, in the latest of a series of traffic and parking studies commissioned by the City of San Rafael, this week recommended this change, along with widening Fourth Street to four lanes from G Street west to its intersection with Second Street at the "Miracle Mile."

He proposed also that A Street be made a one-way street northbound and B Street one-way southbound between Second Street and Fifth Avenue, and that C Street be one-way northbound and D Street one-way southbound between First Street and Fifth Avenue.

The north-south streets are carrying traffic without much congestion now, noted Faustman, but the situation will worsen as traffic increases. He estimated the increase, based on recent years, as 4 per cent per year.

The one-way street pattern would facilitate traffic flow to an underground garage under the courthouse square, Faustman observed. He presented a design for a 510-space two-level underground garage in a report to the city last year, and in his new report declared he still considers it feasible.

Faustman would reverse traffic direction on narrow Julia Street to complete the access-egress pattern for the courthouse square garage.

"Traffic from the west would move on Fourth Street to the garage, or on Second Street to A Street, thence north to the entrance," he wrote. "From the east, movement would be on Third Street to A Street, then north to the garage. Traffic from the east on Fifth Avenue will have some circuitry in that it must go to B Street, thence south to Fourth Street, thence east to the garage. Traffic from the north would follow the same path on Fifth Avenue, B Street, and Fourth Street, or via Third Street and A Street. Vehicles from the south would reach the

Robert Wood Win Gives GOP Control

SALINAS (UPI)—Republican Robert G. Wood easily defeated Democrat Fred S. Farr yesterday in a special election that gives the GOP political control of the Assembly with a 41-39 majority.

With 176 of 178 precincts reporting, Wood had 24,722 to 18,624 for Farr. The three minor candidates in the race failed to influence the election's outcome.

Republicans Mitchell Bedford polled 328, Republican Bertram Rudolph, 120, and American Independent Party candidate Alton Ogborn, 178.

At his victory celebration in Monterey, Wood said he was surprised by his wide margin of victory and added the win resulted from his opponent's absence from the district the past three years.

"I didn't think we would come anything close to this," said Wood who describes himself as a moderate Republican. He noted that Farr had been absent three years from the district working in Washington, D.C., and "I don't think he realized times and people have changed."

Wood, 53, said he intended to vote his own mind and not necessarily follow GOP-sponsored legislation.

"I don't intend to be a rubber stamp Republican," he said. "If it's a good bill by a Democrat I'll vote for it."

Wood apparently ran strong in traditionally strong GOP areas and kept GOP voters in

Clifford For Reducing U.S. Vietnam Fighting

Plea For Complete Pullout

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Defense Secretary Clark M. Clifford says the United States should order a reduction of fighting in South Vietnam and remove all its ground combat troops by the end of 1970.

In a remarkably candid statement Clifford blistered the South Vietnamese government, picturing its leaders as having a big stake in continued war. He says:

"As the Saigon authorities saw it, the longer the war went on, with the large-scale American involvement, the more stable was their regime and the fewer concessions they would have to make to other political groupings."

Clifford, once regarded as a "hawk," served as Pentagon chief for the last year of the Lyndon B. Johnson administration. His statement, appearing today in Foreign Affairs, quarterly of the Council on Foreign Relations, is the most outspoken comment on the Saigon regime to come from a recent U.S. government official at this level.

A MAJOR ROLE?

The article is likely to play an important role in the continuing American debate on the war.

He makes these proposals:

1. As a first step, the United States should announce it will withdraw 100,000 troops before the end of this year.

President Richard M. Nixon already has announced an initial withdrawal of 25,000. The Clifford article was written before the presidential announcement but released Wednesday night.

2. "We should also make it clear that this is not an isolated action, but the beginning of a process under which all U.S. ground combat forces will have been withdrawn from Vietnam by the end of 1970."

3. "Concurrently with the decision to begin withdrawal, orders should be issued to our military commanders to discontinue efforts to apply maximum military pressure on the enemy and to seek instead to reduce the level of combat."

LOGISTIC SUPPORT

4. "While our combat troops are being withdrawn, we could continue to provide the armed forces of the Saigon government with logistic support and with our air resources." Clifford contends that a policy of applying maximum military pressure has resulted in continuing high U.S. casualties "without any discernible impact on the peace negotiations in Paris."

He says a decision to shift the combat burden to the South Vietnamese "would confront North Vietnamese leaders with a painful dilemma."

"Word that the Americans were beginning to withdraw might at first lead them to claims of victory," he wrote.

REPORT TO TRANSIT PANEL

Commuter Buses Seen Operational In 90 Days

A bus system to serve within Marin and to and from San Francisco is feasible and can be started in three months to a year, according to a report on the "optimum bus system" presented today to the Marin County Transit District.

A financial study by R. L. Banks and Associates shows that some subsidy will be required, as is the case with most public transit systems, but the subsidy is less than anticipated, said Seymour Kashin, general manager of the transit district.

The financial study shows an annual operating loss of $279,400, $716,692, or $775,815, depending on the type of bus system chosen.

Plan one is a transitional plan wherein existing Greyhound buses would be leased to the district until a new fleet of district-owned buses can be delivered. This plan would require 160 buses and could be in operation within three months from the time a decision is made to enter the bus business.

Plans two and three would require 132 and 166 buses respectively, and either one could be in operaton in one year from the time a decision is made, Kashin reported.

Under plan one, the initial outlay would be lowest, but the buses would be old Greyhound ones, Kashin pointed out.

Under plan two a capital outlay including bus purchase would be $6,613,000, and under plan three, total outlay would be $8,097,000.

Banks' financial survey shows that under plan two, total revenue would be $3,290,500, and total operating expense $4,007,192, leaving an annual deficit of $716,692.

Under plan three, total revenue would be $3,924,047, and total operating expense $4,699,912, for an annual deficit of $775,815. Together with interest to be paid on the original debt for capital outlay, the annual net loss would come to slightly over a million dollars, according to Banks and associates.

Plans one, two and three represent different levels of service, starting from low to high.

Proposed bus routes in Marin County show feeder runs into Ignacio, Terra Linda, Fairfax and San Anselmo, Santa Venetia, San Quentin, Ross, Kentfield, Larkspur and Corte Madera, Mill Valley, Tiburon, Tam Valley and Sausalito.

Future extensions of routes are proposed from Fairfax to Inverness, and from Mill Valley to Bolinas.

Sonoma State Students To Take Election Challenge To Trustees

By BONNIE BARD

Recent Sonoma State College student elections — center of a widening controversy that now includes the concern of Gov. Ronald Reagan — will be challenged before the California State Colleges board of trustees.

Action will come in the form of an appeal to the trustees, meeting July 2 in Los Angeles, by students who oppose Sonoma State President Ambrose R. Nichols's validation of the fourth in a series of aborted elections.

The students claim they won support on the state level last week. They have been assured of a review of the president's decision by the educational policy committee of the trustees.

In the election process, in which three elections were voided and charges of conspiracy hurled, the students claim the outgoing student government invalidated only the elections in which candidates it supported lost.

In the first two elections, voters were required to present identification to indicate student status. Later, the Student Board of Directors nullified the elections, saying that not all students possessed correct identification and had to pay a fee to secure a duplicate for voting.

No voting identification was required in the final election and resulted in charges that high school students had voted and that ballot boxes had been stuffed.

In the last election the previous winner as student body president, Jon Owen of Novato, was defeated by James G. Gillette, 35, of Cotati. All other former winners also lost.

In a five-hour session with students, Nichols said he found no improprieties in the final election and validated it.

James G. Dierke of Sebastopol, former elections commissioner, said the students representing the slate of defeated candidates will appeal the decision.

Dierke and Timothy McGeachy of San Francisco presented their case in Sacramento last week and will continue the appeal the trustees meeting in Los Angeles.

John T. Kehoe, educational consultant to Reagan, confirmed that he met with the two students and heard from many others concerning the matter.

"The governor, as a member of the trustees, is deeply interested in the problem at Sonoma State." Kehoe said.

Kehoe said it appeared to him there had been some manipulation of the due process system.

"At Sonoma State we have the classic case of problems that could lead to a violent confrontation," he said.

Ross Financial Consultant, Mill Valleyans In Hijacking

Three Marin County residents, including a financial consultant from Ross, were aboard the Trans World Airlines jet hijacked to Cuba yesterday by an armed gunman reportedly carrying Black Panther literature. (See hijack story, page 5.)

The consultant, Richard Scott Smith, 34, was enroute to New York on business. The other Marinites were identified as Stephan M. Peterson and Ardis L. Peterson of Mill Valley.

Smith telephoned his wife from Miami, where the hijacked plane landed after being permitted to leave Havana Airport.

"He said he saw the gun," Mrs. Smith said. "He said there was no panic. The pilot warned them right after it happened. He said that they were on their way to Cuba and there was no reason to be alarmed."

Mrs. Smith said her husband was "surprised at the buildup of military equipment at the airport." He reported seeing MIGs and bombers.

"He said he felt rather relieved when they landed but the sight of a very stern group of soldiers had a rather sobering effect."

Mrs. Smith said her husband reported seeing a squad of the soldiers board the plane and remove the hijacker. "He said that was the last they saw of him," Mrs. Smith related.

She said her husband and the other passengers were held at the airport from two to three hours during which time all were asked their name, address, profession and destination.

"My husband had his passport and he used it for identification," Mrs. Smith said. "They stamped it."

Carnival events will also include a fun house, pony rides and mechanical rides.

Higher Income, Illness Linked

NEW DELHI (AP) — The more your salary the more prone you are to certain chronic ailments, according to an Indian medical survey.

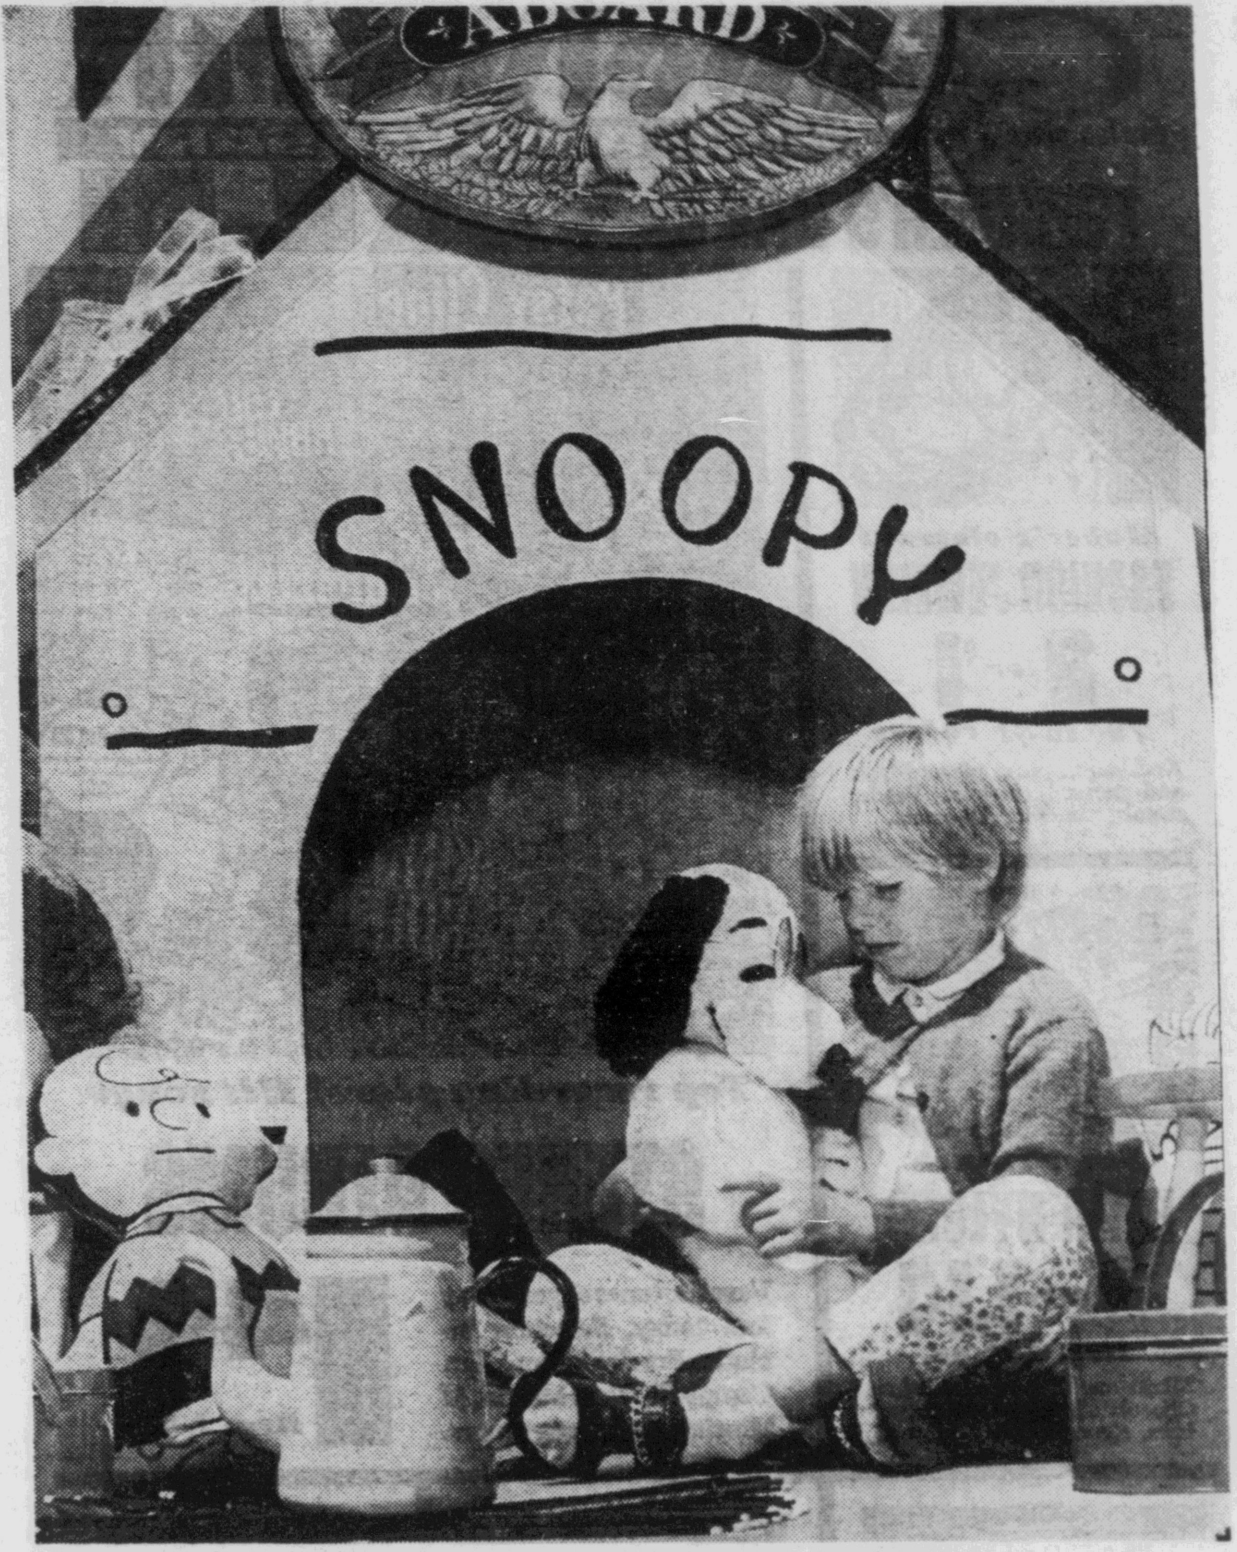
Four out of 10 families with a monthly income of more than rupees 2,000 ($266) suffer from high blood pressure, diabetes, cancer and heart ailments, the survey said.

Kentucky Crank Phones Fading

ELIZABETHTOWN, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky's last handcranked telephone system is on the way out.

The state authorized General Telephone Co. to install modern dial equipment by the middle of 1969 to serve the Upton exchange in Hardin County. Upton's 325 customers have been using old-time phones provided by the Farmers Telephone Company.

Upton is a farming community 60 miles south of Louisville.



SNOOPY'S SUMMER HOME?

While the rest of the Peanuts gang stands around, Snoopy sits contentedly, if a bit scholarly, on the lap of his newest friend, Becky Schubert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gage Schubert. Snoopy's house, minus his pool table and collection of paintings, can be found in front of Kiosk at the Corte Madera Center. Lana's New Husband Arrested

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Hypnotist Ronald Dante, latest husband of actress Lana Turner, was arrested last night on a bench warrant charging grand theft in Santa Ana.

Dante

Earlier yesterday, Dante, Miss Turner's seventh husband, was shot at five times as he parked his car in the basement of an apartment house here.

Santa Ana police said the warrant was in connection with the illegal removal of five motorboats from a sales yard. The warrant was dated June 3, 1968.

The warrant charged he failed to appear to face the charge as ordered July 11, 1968. Bail on the warrant is set at $12,500.

Dante, 49, told deputies he threw himself to the floor of the car when the shooting incident occurred. He suffered a minor cut from flying glass.

Philospher Hit

ROME (AP) — Herbert Marcuse, the German-born philosopher of revolution from California, was shouted down by Italian students yesterday and ended up in an impromptu debate with the German student revolutionary Daniel (Danny the Red) Cohn-Bendit.

Marcuse, 71, a professor from the University of San Diego, appeared before 2,500 students in the Eliseo Theater as a lecturer in a series which brings prominent writers to Rome.

Students of all political persuasions showed up, Marcuse was drowned out by shouts of "Servo!" and "Buffoon!" as he spoke of "permanent revolution" as the only adequate way to change society.

At one point Danny the Red, in Rome on a film-making project, rose up from the audience and held an unscheduled debate with Marcuse on the merits of the student revolution.

New Subway

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The Mexico City subway, the first in Mexico and the second in Latin America, will make its first official test run Thursday and will be inaugurated some time next month.

The subway will have three routes and will be capable of carrying 1.8 million riders a day. The route to be tested Thursday runs seven and three-quarters miles from the airport to Chapultepec Park at the edge of the city's downtown section.

The 26-mile-long system cost $320 million. It was built by French-trained technicians and with French financial aid.

Latin America's other subway is a 16-mile system in Buenos Aires.

Koreans Returned

SEOUL (AP) — Two South Koreans who escaped from the Viet Cong only to be captured and sentenced to six years in prison as spies by Cambodia have been returned to Korea, the Seoul government announced today.

The two men, 2nd Lt. Park Chung-hwan, 27, and Chae Kyu-chang, 39, a civilian, were turned over to the Australian Embassy in Phnom Penh Monday and taken to the South Korean Embassy in Bangkok yesterday, a government announcement said. They returned to South Korea today. The government said Cambodian chief of state, Prince Norodom Sihanouk, released the men at South Korea's request.

Apollo 11 Will Aim For July 16 Launch

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The Apollo 11 man-on-the-moon mission has received a new go-ahead to aim for a July 16 launching.

The Apollo program director, Air Force Lt. Gen. Samuel Phillips, gave the proceed order last night after a nine-hour flight readiness review in which he received reports on all aspects of the mission.

First Troop Withdrawal Unit Selected

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command announced today the first American unit to leave South Vietnam under the plan to withdraw 25,000 troops will be the Third Battalion, 60th Infantry, part of the Second Brigade, Ninth Infantry Division.

Headquarters spokesmen said the battalion will be moved out by air on or about July 8 and will return to the United States for inactivation.

"The remainder of the Second Brigade, which includes the brigade headquarters company, the Third Battalion, 47th Infantry, and the Fourth Battalion, 47th Infantry, will move to the continental United States at a later date.

OTHER UNITS

These units also will be inactivated," the announcement said.

It had been announced earlier that one battalion would be airlifted from the Ninth Division, but the specific unit was not disclosed until today. The First and Second brigades of the Ninth Division will leave Vietnam, while the Third will remain.

The Ninth Division is the only major U.S. ground force in the Mekong Delta.

The U.S. Command also identified four nondivisional Army units, totaling about 2,000 men, that will be redeployed by the end of August.

They are the 86th Engineer Battalion Construction; Sixth Battalion, 56th Artillery (air defense-Hawk missiles); 70th Engineer Company, and the 1097th Transportation Company (medium boat).

The command said their destination in the United States will be announced later.

BOMBING RUNS

On the war front U.S. B52 bombers marked their fourth anniversary in Vietnam today as North Vietnamese troops stepped up attacks on American installations in the areas near Laos and Cambodia.

Spokesmen said the enemy killed 13 Americans and wounded 28 in two fierce assaults early today while 72 North Vietnamese died. U.S. military analysts said captured enemy documents indicated the Communist Command has ordered increased sapper attacks on American bases.

About 200 North Vietnamese infantrymen and sappers assaulted a base of the First Brigade, Fifth Mechanized Infantry Division, three miles south of the abandoned Khe Sanh combat base, with machine guns, rifles and rocket-propelled grenades. The base is four miles from the Laotian border.

The B52 bombers marked their anniversary with 10 missions against North Vietnamese bases and troop concentrations near the Laotian and Cambodian borders. The strikes ranged from 51 miles northwest of Saigon to 281 miles northeast of the capital.

Cong Mission Hit

JAKARTA (AP) — The Indonesian Christian Workers Union has called on the government to shut down the Jakarta mission of the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front and expel its personnel because North Vietnam "does not want peace."

First Lady Hopeful Projects Will Work

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pat Nixon, winding up her tour of 10 West Coast volunteer projects today, says she hopes she is "doing a lot of good by spreading the word of what's being done."

She made the comment after exuberant slum children gave her a display of their talents and projects on her visit last night to the Wesley Social Service Center.

The center's founder, Rev. William Rollins, gave the First Lady an honorary three-year volunteer pin with its symbol of black and white shaking hands and the agency motto, "With Love and Concern in the Inner City."

Volunteers got up one after another to tell Mrs. Nixon of their work.

One was Donald Lewis, a gas company accountant who comes from his white community 15 miles away to help in neighborhood projects because, he said, "I finally realized it was hypocrisy not to become involved."

Michael Stanford, 12, performed with his volunteer teacher duet guitar renditions of "Tequilla" and "Scarborough Fair."

Sid Luft Loses Check Case

FREEHOLD, N.J. (AP) — Michael Sidney Luft, Judy Garland's former husband, has been convicted by a jury of passing a $2,639 bad check.

The jury acquitted Luft yesterday of a second charge of passing a $1,000 bad check.

Luft, who is still Miss Garland's business manager, wrote the checks to a hotel in Asbury Park last June to cover her bill while she was performing at a nearby theater. He said, "I thought I had the money in the bank, but apparently I was overdrawn."

Luft, who said he would appeal, faces a maximum penalty of three years in prison and a $1,000 fine.

Dock Tieup Is Settled

NEW YORK (AP) — Striking deck officers have reached a tentative settlement with a major portion of the nation's merchant marine, ending a two-day tieup at East and Gulf Coast ports.

Agreements reached last night between two ship owner groups and the International Organization of Masters, Mates and Pilots, AFL-CIO, affect more than 400 freighters and passenger liners.

Bargaining was set to resume today on contracts for 150 tankers.

The Maritime Service Committee, representing 220 dry cargo ships, was first to settle with the union. Later, the American Maritime Association reached an "interim agreement" covering 189 dry cargo ships.

Both the AMA, which also represents 42 tankers, and the Tanker Service Committee planned to meet with the master's union today. It was expected they would reach agreement on the basis of the terms agreed to last night.

House Panel Approves Extension Of Surtax

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Richard M. Nixon has scored a substantial gain in his drive for a full year's extension of the income surtax but opponents are continuing their effort to cut it back, if not in the House, then in the Senate.

The House Ways and Means Committee yesterday gave its approval to the Nixon anti-inflation package, practically intact.

It includes continuation of the surtax at its present 10 per cent rate through Dec. 30, with the rate halved for the last six months of fiscal 1970, tax relief for low income taxpayers, repeal of the investment credit and postponement of scheduled reductions in automobile and telephone excise taxes.

The House will vote next week. Rep. Hale Boggs, D-La., acting chairman of the committee, pledged support and cited endorsement of leaders of both parties in the House. But he predicted a tough fight and would not claim victory in advance.

Secretary of the Treasury David M. Kennedy., however, said he expects Congress to pass the bill.

The committee was unofficially reported to have voted 15-10 against an amendment to cut back the surtax extension to Oct. 31.

Five Democrats out of the 15 on the committee joined all 10 Republicans in defeating the shorter period, sources said.

Rep. Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio, a committee member who is pushing for a shorter extension promised to continue the fight in the rules committee and the House. He and his associates fear leverage for early tax reform will be lost if the surtax is extended for a long period.

The provision benefiting low-incomes persons — a "sweetener" that did not satisfy many liberal Democrats — was calculated to relieve about two million poverty-level families.

Oregon Commune Seemingly Like Hippies, But Differs

GRANTS PASS, Ore. (UPI)—Deep in the rolling timber country of southern Oregon a "family" of 60 young people live together in utter simplicity and guided only—as they explain it—by "God and love."

All are droputs from normal society and most came to their haven after deciding that the LSD from which they'd been getting their kicks provided only an illusory escape.

They have returned, they say, to "the natural ways of the earth." Their home is a huge lodge, self-built out of the forest, and most of their food comes from a two-acre vegetable garden.

"The ultimate consideration of everything we do here," said Nancy, a former Radcliffe student and mother of four lovely blonde girls, "is, 'can it get us higher with God'?"

Nancy's "family" came into being last Thanksgiving. Pam, 20, another member and a sprightly brunette from San Diego, said they all joined hands, formed a circle in a clearing, and were married—all to each other "but most to another person."

PIONEER HIPPIES

A few months earlier, the first members of the commune had bought 250 acres of land from the state under a longterm payment plan. Now, with its 60-member family, the commune has the aspects of a pioneer settlement.

The "brothers" and "sisters," as they call each other, have abandoned civilization to become deeply involved with one another. They are close to the earth but not dirty, sensual but not lazy, noncompetitive but not incompetent—and they seem very happy.

Noticeably absent are television, liquor, electricity, meat, drugs of any kind (even aspirin), clocks, shaving equipment and physical modesty in the natural sense.

They are longhaired and mostly denim clad but are not the stereotyped illkempt, smelly hippies. They cleanse themselves daily in a communal sauna constructed of an old tool shed and an oil drum stove.

All the world's deities, they say, are one to them and, in drum beating sessions each evening before supper they gather to chant homage to God—'God is love; I love God." The spiritual high mark of the day is the ritual "om" a Buddhist syllable having to do with the unity of all people and things. The family joins hands around a central hearth and communes in a resonant hum.

MANY CHILDREN

The ultimate test of the commune system could well come when its children—and there are many children in this "no pill" world—leave home to face life as it is on the outside.

"They will have no problem," Ron said, confidently. He is the father of four. He left his job as a computer science professor in southern California for communal life in the Oregon woods. "They," he said of the children, "will have grown up with love. They are universal children at peace with themselves."

With the approval of the local educational authorities, teaching of the children is done by members of the family who include three holders of master's degrees and several B.A.'s. "The children are wise beyond their years," Pam bragged.

All members of the family have taken an oath of poverty and share possessions equally on a communal basis. This family, recognized as a nonprofit religious institution, is tax-exempt.

Original funding came from a modest "stash" contributed by each newcomer and some of this remains on account for land payments. Little additional money is needed, even for food, since U.S. government surplus food programs provide such nourishment as does not come from the garden or forest floor.

The family has found acceptance from the surrounding community. About 50 "straights" threw a housewarming potluck dinner for members of the commune, and many return on Saturdays, the visiting day.

"In suburbia when I was a good neighbor as society defines that," Nancy said, "my neighbors were never good to me. But here, where we all live for (vibrations) the neighbors love God and put out love vibes us."

India To Gain More Laborers

NEW DELHI (AP) — Repatriation of people of Indian origin from Ceylon will help boost production of tea and rubber in India, according to official forecasts.

Under an agreement arrived at between the prime ministers of the two countries in 1964, about 525,000 persons will move into India over the next few years. Ninety per cent of them are plantation laborers.

The Indian government has drawn up plans to convert about 20,000 acres as tea and rubber plantations for the rehabilitation of these displaced persons. These will be in the hilly districts of Madras and Mysore states and in the Andaman group of islands in the Bay of Bengal.

MAYOR

the general election campaign "had better look very carefully."

Lindsay's two running mates in the primary, Fioravante Perrotta and Sanford Garelik, won their primary races but joined Lindsay in the news conference to say they will supported Lindsay rather than their formal ticket leader, Marchi.

The same conservative trend that hit Lindsay also wrecked former Democratic Mayor Robert F. Wagner's comeback bid.

The final unofficial count for Lindsay was 106,358 against the 111,725 for Marchi, a little-known state senator from Staten Island.

Wagner lost to Italian-born City Comptroller Mario A. Procaccina, who rejected the label of "law-and-order candidate" but was the most conservative in a five-man Democratic field. He won with only about a third of the vote.

Bronx Borough President Herman Badillo, who was born in Puerto Rico, ran a close third. Author Norman Mailer and Rep. James H. Scheuer trailed.

The vote was Procaccino 252,283, Wagner 221,605, Badillo 215,381, Mailer 41,136, Scheuer 38,631.

The commissioner of the board of elections, Maurice J. O'Rourke, ordered a police guard placed on all voting machines this morning because of the closeness of the vote.

O'Rourke said the action was requested by Wagner and some candidates for lesser office. Badillo charged there were a large number of voting machine breakdowns in the South Bronx, where he felt he was strong. He said this indicated a "fix" to deprive him of votes.

Official recanvassing of the vote may begin Monday and take four days.

The GOP defeat was a severe blow to the party prestige of Lindsay, who last year was considered a possible contender for the national ticket.

However, it did not knock the 47-year-old mayor out of contention for reelection to a second term in November. In a city that is 7-2 Democratic in voter registration, he will be the most liberal candidate in the three-man field.

Marchi, also 47, is the son of an Italian sculptor who came to New York to build movie sets and became a wax fruit manufacturer.

TRAFFIC

entrance via A Street, etc."

Garage entrances and exits would be from Fourth, A and Court streets. Court Street would be closed between the garage entrance and Fourth Street, becoming a dead-end.

Faustman figured that this street pattern would handle the maximum number of vehicles leaving the garage and on-street parking at peak hours with only 62 per cent of street capacity used.

As additional improvements in handling downtown traffic flow, the Sacramento consultant recommended investigation of installing stop signs on Tamalpais Avenue at Mission Avenue northbound, Stevens Place at Mission Avenue southbound, Second Street at Brooks Street southbound, Lincoln Avenue at Francisco Boulevard westbound, Fourth Street at Tamalpais Avenue northbound, and Third Street at Brooks Street northbound.

He found some deficiencies in railroad crossing protection — a matter not touched in previous studies when the Northwestern Pacific Railroad was not operating through San Rafael. He called the crossing protection at Third Street and Avenue "grossly deficient."

Increased curb radii are needed at various locations also, he noted.

The report is to be discussed by the city council at its July 7 meeting.

Nicasio Board Reviews Budget

Nicasio School District trustees reviewed the preliminary $49,500 budget last night, and set it for final adoption at their next meeting at 8 p.m. on July 15 in Nicasio School.

No changes were made in the budget, up from the current fiscal year's budget of $48,835, reported Beverly Alberigi, secretary-bookkeeper.

A decision on the "kindergarten situation" was postponed to the July meeting. If a teacher's aide cannot be found, then kindergarten pupils will have the option of attending Lagunitas School, she reported.

SYSTEM

used in investigations preparatory to the report. In the smoke-test method, smoke is blown into a dry line to see where it comes out. It came out, in various locations, from catch basins, roof drains, water meter boxes, gutter cracks, pavement cracks, and even a planter — all indicating breaks through which storm water could enter the sanitary sewer lines.

Closed-circuit television inspection is done by running a camera through a sewer line, taking pictures which are projected onto a television screen. This shows up the breaks from the inside.

These two detection methods would make possible sealing of the many leaks in old lines. In addition, Selmi wrote, "complete control of new construction by competent inspection, comprehensive construction standards, and air-testing before final acceptance" should be instituted.

"It could very well be that the existing treatment plant will be quite adequate" when this is done, he concluded.

The same is not true of all the existing lines, however. Besides the improvements in the Francisco-Second Street area, the report recommends the following new lines.

Stage 2: D and Bayview streets to Second Street and Francisco Boulevard, $138,980.

Stage 3: Irwin Street between Second and Third streets, $9,765; Third Street from Irwin to Mary streets, $20,962; Mary Street from Third Street to Mission Avenue, $11,600; Mission Avenue from Mary Street to San Rafael High School, $16,400; Park Street from Mission to Belle avenues, $5,225. Total, including engineering and contingencies, $76,743.

Stage 4: Fourth Street from Greenfield Avenue to Santa Margarita Drive, plus engineering, $23,795.

Stage 5: Grand Avenue from Third Street to Belle Avenue, plus engineering, $95,382.

Stage 6: Highway 101 frontage road and Stevens Place, $31,050; Paloma Avenue, $5,400; Lincoln Avenue from Paloma Avenue to Linden Lane, $17,122; total, with engineering, $64,286.

Stage 7: Mountain View Avenue from Grand Avenue to Sienna Way, with engineering etc., $34,215.

Stage 8: Fourth Street, F Street and Fifth Avenue, $16,848, including engineering, etc.

Stage 9: Sea Way, with engineering, etc., $18,678.

Stage 10: Fifth Avenue from K Street to Sirard Lane, with engineering, etc., $42,174.

Selmi commented that in the inspections it was found that the sewer lines generally were in better condition than supposed. Much of the system requires no replacement, he concluded.

The study was based on ultimate population in the area of 67,299.

SONOMA

Ross said he had also been told by students and members of the adult community about improprieties in the election process and thought the matter would be of concern to the trustees' committee and to the entire board of trustees.

Hart said he had been approached to meet with both interested adults and students next week so that he might become fully aware of the Sonoma State situation before the trustees meeting.

Gene Benedetti of Petaluma, president of Friends of Sonoma State, said his group is also looking into the dispute.

"Our organization is very much concerned about the election maneuvering," Benedetti said. "In fact, I'm just sick about it."

Owen, the defeated presidential candidate, said he was also pursuing the matter, but would not attend the trustees meeting because the case might appear as a personal vendetta.

Not singling out the previous election, Owen said he would request an investigation of the operations of student government officers for the entire year. He said he was concerned with "certain inconsistencies" in the government operation and was not attacking Gillette.

"If it's given a thorough review, it's likely the students may lose control over some portions of student government," Owen said.

The students maintain they wish to appeal to the trustees as individuals so as not to damage the image of the college and give the trustees the impression that Sonoma State is in the midst of decay.

"It's unfortunate the matter has to go to the trustees," Dierke said. "But something must be done."

Acknowledging that such an appeal will put great pressure on Nichols, he said, "We must save the college even if it's at the expense of Dr. Nichols. He should have sensed which way the wind was blowing."

Nichols's office said he is on vacation this week. He could not be reached for comment.

IDABELLE LEWIS MAIN
Missionary to China

OBITUARIES

Idabelle Lewis Main Rites Set

Memorial service will be held for Dr. Idabelle Lewis Main, former Mill Valley resident and a missionary for 39 years in China, at 3 p.m. Saturday at the Methodist Church of Mill Valley.

Mrs. Main, 82, died Saturday at a retirement home for missionaries and deaconesses in Pasadena after a brief illness.

Born in a Methodist parsonage in Blairstown, Iowa, Mrs. Main had wanted to become a missionary since she was 7. She was graduated from Morningside College in Sioux City, Iowa, in 1909 and taught school for one year.

Her late father was elected a church bishop in 1908 and had also served in China.

Dr. Main went to Tientsin, China, in 1910 as a missionary teacher, returning in 1915 to study for her doctorate in education at Columbia University.

She returned to China as assistant secretary of education for the Methodist Church and, from 1926 to 1928, was president of Hua Nan College for Women in Foochow. She went to Shanghia in 1930 and became editor of the China Educational Review.

In 1932 she married Rev. William Artyn Main, who was in charge of Methodist funds in China, and both continued missionary work until 1941 when World War II forced them to leave.

The Mains moved to Mill Valley and remained there until Rev. Main's death in 1945. In all, Mrs. Main lived 12 years in Mill Valley, residing at 157 Lovell Avenue.

She returned to China in 1946 to teach at Hua Nan College but was forced to leave again in 1949 because of war. In 1950 she took a teaching job at Bennett College in Rio de Janeiro, where she taught until 1955.

She had lived in Pasadena since 1961.

Mrs. Main is survived by her sister, Mrs. J. H. Berkstresser of Chula Vista, and three stepsons, Orrin W. Main of Jekyll Island, Ga., Comdr. Artyn L. Main of Tiburon and George Main of Providence, R.I.

Private inurnment will be held Monday at Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael.

The family requests that tributes be in contributions to either the Methodist Church of Mill Valley or the Tamalpais Valley Methodist Church.

WOOD

his column to deny Farr the crossover ballots he had hoped to collect.

The Democrat voter turnout also was low compared to the Republicans who went to the polls in this Monterey County district in which Democrats hold the registration edge 51 per cent to 44 per cent.

Farr, a former state senator, had sought to win the seat for the Democrats and knot up the lower house in a 40-40 deadlock.

But Republicans won their third straight special legislative election this year and sixth since 1965 to give the GOP its first clear majority in both the Assembly and Senate in more than a decade.

The Assembly vacancy was created when Alan Pattee, R-Salinas, was killed in an automobile accident last April. He had held the seat since 1954.

Gov. Ronald Reagan telephoned Wood to congratulate him and said the election "again shows that the Republican Party is on the move."

The victory regained the Assembly majority Republicans had won in last November's general election.

Last month, voters elected Clare Berryhill, R-Ceres, to fill the seat left vacant when Assemblyman Republican John G. Veneman resigned to join the Nixon administration.

In March, the GOP captured a Senate seat by electing Sen. John A. Nejedly, R-Walnut Creek, in a district that had gone to the Democrats for more than 20 years.

Contessa Maude Fiorentino-Valle, musician, painter, poetess, countess and centenarian, is dead.

The countess, who up to the time of her death at age 100 led a zesty life "doing my thing" in the arts, died at the Mill Valley home of a niece Saturday after a short illness.

"I enjoy everything so much, I can't say what I like to do most now," Mrs. Valle said shortly after her 100th birthday last November. At that time, she advised, "do your bit and your best" and "throw your troubles over your left shoulder."

Until shortly before her death, Mrs. Valle still played the piano daily and the guitar occasionally.

Educated by private tutors in Europe, she met her husband, Italian cavalry officer Count Ricardo Fiorentino-Valle while she was painting in a studio in a convent on the Tiber River in Rome.

They lived for many years in Rome and Manhattan before they were separated and Mrs. Valle moved to Denver. She lived with her niece, Mrs. Nathalia Walker Richmond, at 390 Eldridge Avenue, Mill Valley, the past five years.

Oakland Plane Is Hijacked To Cuba

MIAMI (AP) — An armed Negro carrying literature of the militant Black Panthers forced a Trans World Airlines jet with a crew of seven and 80 passengers to fly to Cuba.

The gunman, tall, well-dressed and bespectacled, took control of the scheduled Oakland-to-New York nonstop flight yesterday over Wilson Creek, Nev.

Except to describe himself as "a desperate man who had to get to Havana," he gave no reason for his action. Eldridge Cleaver, a Black Panther leader who is a fugitive from U.S. justice on a parole violation charge, is reported to be living in the Cuban capital.

The hijacker carried a copy of a Cleaver book.

He was not identified, but Lynn Bell of Piedmont, a passenger, took moving pictures of him as he left the plane in Havana. Bell said the film was taken from him by an FBI agent when the plane reached Miami.

Nora Hampton, fashion editor of the Oakland Tribune and a passenger aboard the Boeing 707, said the hijacker left his luggage at his seat after being admitted to the flight deck at gunpoint.

Navy Inquiry Excuses Evans Deck Officer

SUBIC BAY, Philippines (AP) —Lt. (j.g.) Ronald C. Ramsey, deck officer of the U.S. destroyer sliced in half by an Australian aircraft carrier, was permanently excused today from testifying before a board of inquiry.

U.S Rear Adm. Jerome H. King Jr., chairman of the board of six American and six Australian officers, said the panel "will be happy" to hear from Ramsey later if he changes his mind.

Ramsey, who was deck commander of the destroyer Frank E. Evans when it collided with the aircraft carrier Melbourne on June 3 and 74 Evans crewmen lost their lives, said his lawyer had not been granted the right to cross-examine witnesses, review all previous testimony and recall witnesses, and that testifying under such conditions would violate his constitutional rights.

The board agreed to excuse Ramsey because U.S. military law allows witnesses in investigative hearings to refuse to answer questions.

Ramsey, who other witnesses said ordered the turn that led to the collision, was told when he first appeared before the board that he was "suspected of negligence."

After the board excused Ramsey, it called Lt. (j.g.) Roland T. Bowler III, who turned the bridge of the Evans over to Ramsey about three hours before the accident.

Wrecked Barge Feeds Oil Slick On Mississippi River

ALMA, Wis. (AP) — An ugly film of oil spread for 25 miles along the scenic upper Mississippi River from a wrecked barge today as Minnesota and Wisconsin conservationists wrung their hands over its impact on wildlife.

"It's like living in a refinery," said James Everson, a Wisconsin conservation warden. "A lot of people are pretty unhappy. All of a sudden we get a big slug of petroleum right in the middle of some of the clearest water on the Mississippi."

The diesel oil slick began floating downstream between tree-clad bluffs Monday from a barge which struck a current-diverting wing dam about a mile above Alma.

The barge carried 567,000 gallons of oil. Its captain, Chester Forkum, said about 400,000 gallons escaped into the river.

The river current quickly thinned the film in the main channel. But winds pushed the slick into bayous and left it stranded in still water containing plant and insect life needed by fish, waterfowl and other wildlife.

Teachers Say Close Schools

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Oakland Teacher's Negotiating council proposed yesterday that the school district close half of the city's schools and put all pupils on double sessions.

The proposal, presented to the Board of Education, was intended to save the district $1 million. The board expects to be $830,000 short of balancing its budget next year.

Ed Case, chairman of the negotiating council, said a total of $3.3 million could be saved by the school closing plus drastic cuts of administrators, maintenance employees and security guards. As a result, no teachers would lose their jobs and funds would be available to raise their pay.

Chaplian's View Of Man's Needs

ASPEN, Colo. (UPI)—Man has learned to fly like a bird and navigate the seas like a fish—it is time he began to walk the earth like a man, the chaplain of Yale University said yesterday.

The Rev. William Sloane Coffin Jr., controversial chaplain at Yale, told 700 persons at the 19th annual international design conference they "must find a moral alternative to war."

"We must play down ideological differences. Man has more in common than in conflict, and any increase in armament insures a decrease in national security," he said.

Federal Spending Ceiling Nears Approval In Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is headed toward approval of a federal spending ceiling of $191 billion, some $1.9 billion below both President Nixon's budget and a ceiling passed earlier by the House.

Both ceilings are flexible, however.

The issue is likely to provide the major conflict between the two houses as Congress strives to complete action by June 30 on a supplemental appropriations bill, the final money measure for the fiscal year ending on that date.

The Senate's $4.4 billion version of the bill is about $700 million more than the House measure.

The $191 billion spending ceiling was devised by the Senate Appropriations Committee under the leadership of Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., chairman of its supplemental subcommittee.

An effort by Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., to tighten the ceiling was defeated yesterday 79 to 16.

Williams also planned to try to eliminate from the bill a provision repealing the ceiling enacted last year on federal employment. The Nixon administration favors repeal.

Several other amendments also remained for consideration today, including one by Sens. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., Alan Cranston, D-Calif., and Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., to add $47.5 million to the $7.5 million approved by the Appropriations Committee for the Neighborhood Youth Corps' summer jobs program in urban ghettoes.

The spending ceiling in the bill starts at $187.9 billion—$5 billion below the House and administration figures—but brings this up to $191 billion by exempting a number of programs where actual spending is either uncontrollable due to law or unforseeable such as the Vietnam war.

The exemptions include such things as farm price supports, public assistance and medicaid, social security and other retirement programs, vocational rehabilitation payments, costs of Congress and the federal judiciary, veterans benefits and interest on the national debt.

Services Board Discusses Budget

Tamalpais Community Services District directors last night discussed the 1969-70 budget in general terms, but no figures will be set until current property valuations are received from the county assessor, Director Gale E. Bishel reported.

The budget will be in the vicinity of $50,000, Bishel said. The board set a preliminary budget meeting for 7 p.m. July 15 at 305 Bell Lane.

The board also discussed the district master plan and property acquisition it will require, Bishel said.

Queen Mary A Rust Bucket?

LOS ANGELES (AP)—County Supervisor Kenneth Hahn calls Long Beach's acquisition of the liner Queen Mary "a monument to stupidity."

During debate yesterday, Hahn said, "Long Beach bought an old bucket—a rust bucket."

He moved that supervisors urge that no more public funds be allocated to convert the ship into a combination convention center, museum and tourist attraction.

Supervisor Burton W. Chace, a former Long Beach mayor, said he couldn't understand "why Mr. Hahn thinks this board should meddle in City of Long Beach . . . actions."

The motion lost 4-1.

The truth about 5% Passbook Accounts.

The truth is our 5% is better than our 4%. By 1%. And that's all.

For some people that's plenty. Especially since Wells Fargo Bank gives you a five-year guarantee on that 5% interest rate. And most banks don't.

But aside from the obvious advantage, there are some disadvantages attached to 5% Passbook Accounts. You can only make a withdrawal at the end of the quarter. Or after giving us 90 days notice. For people who are used to making long term investments that's no trouble. But for others it might spoil spur of the moment spending.

All banks require a minimum deposit of $500 to open a 5% Passbook Account. And deposits of $100 or more.

So a Wells Fargo 5% Passbook Account offers you only one big extra. 1% to be exact. On the other hand, Wells Fargo 4% Passbook Savings also offers you one big thing. Your money can come and go as you please. That's because we think there just may be more to saving money than interest.

Maybe.

Wells Fargo 4% Passbook Savings.

Conflicting Restaurant Reports Prompt Sausalito Investigation

Given conflicting information about remodeling costs for a proposed restaurant, the Sausalito City Council last night asked for a staff investigation and report July 1 on Edgewater Yacht Co.'s proposal.

An attorney charged Edgewater has illegally spent at least $50,000 in remodeling its yacht sales building at Bridgeway and Turney Street, far exceeding allowable modifications for the nonforming building. Attorney Richard V. Bettini produced an engineer's sworn statement estimating that $150,000 had been spent on the site in all, with at least $50,000 in structural work.

Bettini said this was far over the 50 per cent allowed, citing an appraised value on the improvements of $33,000.

But Eric Groneman, a partner in Edgewater, produced a statement from his engineers certifying the structural work was less than 50 per cent.

Councilmen were impressed by photos Bettini produced showing the alterations, but an Edgewater spokesman said much of the visible work on the building was not considered structural change.

Only structural modifications are limited under the pertinent ordinance, City Atty. Leland H. Jordan told the council.

The council asked Jordan to report on legal aspects of the case and told Norman Wohlschlaeger, public works director, and building inspector William L. Hynes to report on value of the work.

Bettini, representing restaurant owner Sam Zakessian, again asked the city to halt Edgewater's project. "Our pimrary interest . . . is that special benefits . . . and a violation of the waterfront plan are not allowed here."

He called the project a "blatant violation" and said it was inconcievable it could be done "under the very nose of the city" with no city inspection of the job in the two weeks since he asked for one.

If the city does not halt the project, "we'll have no alternative but to go to a court of law," he said.

Another Edgewater partner charged Zakesstan had used legal harassment to delay the Edgewater project for more than a year.

The council also asked for a report July 1 from consultant William T. Spangle and Associates on Edgewater's encroachment application to build a boardwalk on the shoreline of the property in a city right-of-way, after City Mgr. George M. Patterson suggested the boardwalk might conflict with the one in the central waterfront plan.

Elephant Statue Cleaning Offer To Be Eyed Further

Sausalito was offered a pair of free white elephants last night, but turned the offer over to the Community Appearances Advisory Board.

John L. Anker of Tiburon offered to sandblast and seal the city's two elephant statues in Vina Del Mar Plaza, along with the war memorial, free of charge.

Tied to the offer was a bid by Anker to clean and seal the plaza fountain for $2,100 and to do the steps on Excelsior and El Monte lanes for $2,400.

City engineer Norman Wohlschlaeger said the steps are structurally sound but the fountain needs the repair and patching which Anker also offered in his bid.

The Sausalito City Council Also:

COMMISSION — Appointed Margaret T. Meeks, physical education director at Tamalpais High School, to the recreation commission.

PARK — Read a complaint from George F. Carney of the Sausalito Rotary Club that Carl Gabrielson Park is a "junkyard" because of lack of maintenance since the Rotary Club donated it to the city last year. Acting Mayor Alexander R. Imlay agreed with the complaint. Wohlschlaeger said more summer maintenance help started work Monday and the park is clean now. The city will also have one more maintenance man in the new fiscal year, he said, which will improve cleanup.

VARIANCE — Set a July 1 public hearing on a variance sought by Mobil Oil Corp. for a gas station at Second and Main streets.

HEARINGS — Set a public hearing July 1 on a use permit, variance and encroachment permit sought by Robert Engman to allow rebuilding a fire-damaged residence at 63 Central Avenue.

SIDEWALK — Authorized Wohlschlaeger to start proceedings to complete a sidewalk on Spring Street between Bridgeway and Pearl Street.

TREES — Approved a request by John M. Davis to retain four pine trees he planted on city property at 101 San Carlos Avenue but ruled against two redwoods he planted. The redwoods should be replaced by smaller trees, the council ruled.

PARKING — Adopted an ordinance altering off-stree parking requirements for educational uses.

Jury Considers Fate Of Eight

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The fate of eight persons on trial for disturbances at San Francisco State College was back before a Municipal Court jury today.

The five woman, seven man jury was unable to reach a verdict last night. Jurors were taken to a hotel before resuming deliberations today.

They are considering charges of failure to disperse, unlawful assembly and disturbing the peace against the defendants.

On trial are Steven L. Harris, Susan C. Hano, William J. Helmer, Douglas W. Helppie, Michael D. Huber, Frederick T. Kearney, Frank D. Kee and Nancy L. Koenig.

The jurors, before retiring, asked Judge James J. Welch to reread instructions on two of the charges, unlawful assembly and disturbing the peace.

Burn Ban Is Expected To Cleanse Air

An end to backyard burning will make a significant difference in reaching hope-for levels of air pollution control, a pollution expert told the Sausalito City Council last night.

Backyard burning in the six-county Bay Area Air Pollution Control District pours 350 tons of pollutants a day into the air, Milton Feldstein told the council.

Feldstein, director of technical services for the district, said it has already cut industrial emissions by 50 per cent, agricultural burning emissions by 90 per cent, and with the Jan. 1 ban will cut backyard burning pollution by 90 per cent.

Control of auto emissions, not under district control, will be cut 75 per cent by state rules, Feldstein said.

Taken all together, the steps are to eliminate 80 per cent of Bay Area air pollution to return to air purity levels of 1950. Without banning back yard burning, the reduction would be only 65 per cent, he said, while with it pollution would be cut 75 per cent.

A fourth of the district's back yard burning pollution comes from Marin, Feldstein said.

He said the district produces 500 tons a day of organic gases from industry, 250 tons from agricultural burning and more than 1,000 tons from cars. A ton of burned yard clippings produces 875 pounds of pollutants, he said, more than half that in carbon monoxide.

The council agreed to consider naming a citizens' committee at the July 1 meeting to develop plans for disposal of garden clippings now burned.

Bridge Crossings Up During March

A total of 494,514 vehicles crossed the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge during March, up 32,098 from the same month last year, the state Division of Bay Toll Crossings reported today.

The net operating revenue was $340,470 for the month, up from $335,488 in March, 1968.

New Parking Lot's Meters By Weekend

Sausalito's fourth downtown parking lot will be finished and metered by this weekend, adding 128 spaces to the city's parking capacity, Norman C. Wohlschlaeger, public works director, said yesterday.

The lot is in use now, but some parking meter posts and the meter heads are yet to be installed.

Part of the lot, which lies between the U.S. Post Office and the Sausalito Yacht Harbor, will be nonmetered and reserved for boat owners. So far the city has received 55 applications for the nonmetered spaces, which will cost $10 a month. Until a few weeks ago the lot was free, but was also crowded, unpaved, unmarked and rutted, A city hall clerk said only a few complaints have been received about the change and the accompanying parking fees.

Sausalito will have 506 spaces in four parking lots with the new addition.

The city has made several changes in recent months to shift more of the parking cost to visitors. Residents can get stickers good for two hours free parking in lots one, three and four. Meter costs have been boosted to 20 cents an hour in high-use sections of the parking lots and on downtown streets, and several unmetered 12-minute spaces have been located downtown for one-stop shoppers.

The Thirty Years War lasted from 1618 to 1648.

Hikers Taken Off Mountain

SUNRISE, Wash. (UPI)—The four surviving members of a climbing expedition stranded by a rock slide that killed one climber Sunday on 14,419-foot Mount Rainier were rescued today by helicopter.

George T. Dockery, 37, Tacoma, was killed by the slide of crumbly rock and ice at the 12,000-foot level.

Gary Fredrickson, 26, Federal Way; his brother, Glenn, 19; Carl Moore, 34, Tacoma, and Peter Sandstedt, 22, Seattle, were reported in good condition following their airlift to Sunrise Camp.

Souza Ranch Firing Range Wins Approval

A firing range on the William Souza ranch near the Sonoma County border won a unanimous go-ahead from the Marin County Board of Supervisors yesterday, over the objections of a neighbor who argued that the firing range would endanger his horses and property.

On a motion by Supervisor Louis H. Baar, supervisors granted a five-year use permit for the firing range, to be located on the west side of Alexander Road between Fallon-Two Rock Road and Tomales-Petaluma Road.

The Marin County Planning Commission approved the use permit on May 19, but neighbor Ben Rothbard, who owns 44 acres adjacent to Souza, appealed.

Pearl Rasimas of Martinez, who represented Rothbard yesterday, reported that vandals had wrecked an equipment shed on the property. She said she fears the gun club would bring more vandalism to the Rothbard ranch.

Supervisors Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. and Michael Wornum declared that a public firing range would tend to reduce indiscriminate firing in other areas of the county.

James Marsico Jr. of Novato, president of the United Conservationists and Sportsmen of Marin, assured the supervisors the firing range meets all regulations of the National Rifle Association, and the 1,500 feet distance from Rothbard's ranch is more than adequate to keep noise from being a nuisance.

Howard Johnson High-Rise Held Lacking Open Space

Builders of the Howard Johnson motel-restaurant at Richardson Bay Bridge, in front of Fireside Motel, should cut down its seven-story high-rise building and provide more open space, the Marin County Board of Supervisors decided yesterday.

"I don't want to knock this thing," said Supervisor Michael Wornum. "But I for one would like to see the height reduced. I think this can stand another review on the congestion and on the height."

Supervisors Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. and William A. Gnoss agreed that the height should be lowered. Chairman John F. McInnis and Supervisor Louis H. Baar saw no objection to the height but agreed that at least one of the two two tennis courts could be eliminated to provide more open space.

On a motion by Baar, supervisors continued the matter until 3 p.m. next Tuesday and asked the county planning staff and architect E. C. Heine to reconsider the height and the layout.

Mill Valley Planning Commissioners Paul Rosenthal and Robert Burton objected to the seven-story high-rise and density of the buildings on the five-acre parcel.

Hugh G. Lawrence, attorney for the developers, protested that further delay on the plans would kill the project altogether. He argued that the seven-story structure had the approval of the planning staff.

The Marin Board Of Supervisors Also:

DAMAGE CLAIMS — Rejected a $52,500 claim by Gardner Baldwin, who charges that a defective storm drain caused runoff waters to inundate his property at 38 Reed Ranch Road, Tiburon, and another claim for $8,000 by Mrs. Anne Geraldine O'Neill of 10 Woodland Road, Kentfield, who alleges that a wooden bridge in front of her property was removed because of the Corte Madera Creek flood control project, and she can no longer park in her garage.

KENTFIELD PARKING — Authorized parking restrictions on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard in the vicinity of the Kentfield Fire Station and at Maple Avenue.

SUTRO BRIDGE — Awarded a $39,215 contract to Mountail States Construction Co. of Concord to widen Sutro Avenue Bridge in Novato between Novato Boulevard and Center Road. It was the lowest of three bids, but higher than the engineer's estimate of $36,800.

JUVENILE HALL PARKING — Awarded a $4,057.60 contract to William K. McLellan of San Anselmo to overlay existing parking areas and add 16 parking spaces at Juvenile Hall. This was the lowest of six bids and lower than the engineer's estimate of $5,300.

FIRE DISTRICT — Asked the Marin Local Agency Formation Commission to form a fire protection district in the unincorporated areas of Marin County which are not served by cities or fire districts. McInnis pointed out that the formation of the district merely enables communities which want better fire protection to set up sub-zone and vote for improved service instead of going through the elaborate red tape of forming special assessment districts.

COMMENDATION — Voted a resolution of commenation to Peter F. Rothermel IV, who will leave for a new job in Rhode Island after six years as headmaster at Marin County Day School. Wornum and Arrigoni jointly moved for the commendation.

NEW CAREERS — Approved a job description for the coordinator of the New Careers Program, with a salary range of $892 to $1084 per month.

TRIMMING — Instructed the parks and recreation department to trim hedges along the shoulder area of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard in Greenbrae between Eliseo Drive and Manor Road.

TRAILER — Gave Mrs. Lucile D. Shoemaker 60 days in which to clean up debris on her property at 100 South Dream Farm Road in Inverness and get a variance for a house trailer on the property if it is to be used as a dwelling.

ABATEMENT — Gave Jack Tefft of 23 Lomita Drive, Mill Valley, until the first of September to complete his unfinished home and comply with dwelling requirements. Otherwise, he must move out of the home, which he is occupying.

RADIO MAINTENANCE — Approved new rates which the county will charge cities and other public agencies for maintaining radio equipment. The new rates will not go into effect for 30 days, during which time cities may present valid objections if any.

CONFERENCE — Authorized Austin J. Thompson, director of the human rights department, to attend conferences in Hartford, Conn., at a cost of $413.

BELVEDERE — Approved Belvedere's request to extend the city limits west of Belvedere Island to the middle of Richardson Bay. Belvedere officials want the annexation so that the city will have control over potential drydock and houseboat problems.

COURTHOUSE MEETING — Agreed to a joint meeting with San Rafael at 8 p.m. June 30 in San Rafael City Hall to continue discussions on the Courthouse Square sale and on the widening of San Pedro Road.

Ex-Panthers Claim Party Now Exploiting The Slums

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two former members of the Black Panther Party testified in a heavily guarded Senate hearing room today the militant Negro force has spurned its original purpose of self-defense and now exploits the people of the slums.

Larry Clayton Powell and his wife, Jean, both clad in black, wearing berets, eye shades and carrying the quotations of Mao Tse-Tung, told the Senate subcommittee on investigations the Black Panther party is now directed by people who only want money for themselves.

"The party began with the idea of helping black people," said Mrs. Powell. She said it originally began with approximately 40 men in Oakland.

"The members have either been assassinated, set up to be killed, set up to be arrested, or expelled, which leaves only one person to run the Black Panther Party at present, David Hilliard," she testified.

Mrs. Powell said she defected from the Panthers when the party refused to provide bail money for her husband who, she said, was arrested while attempting an armed robbery on the orders of the party.

Powell said he was expelled from the party and termed a counter revolutionary after his arrest because the party did not want to spend its funds in his defense.

Both witnesses testified the Black Panthers are financed by rallies, donations, sale of propaganda and armed robberies. They estimated collections of the party total $50,000 to $100,000 a month.

Earlier, a police captain furnished the subcommittee evidence that Black Panther chieftains have called for destruction of American industry.

Capt. John E. Drass of the Washington, D.C., police department gave the Senate permanent subcommittee on investigations transcripts of statements made by Black Panther leaders in foreign countries and radio interviews broadcast from Cuba.

He quoted George Mason Murray, the party's minister of education, and Joudon Ford, a Panther leader in New York as saying in Cuba last August:

"So long as we are alive there will be no industry, factory, bank, or company that is safe. We do not guarantee the lives of their congressmen, candidates, generals or businessmen who control power. We shall use bullets, birdshot, kitchen knives and everything at hand to destroy imperialism."

Picket Fence Sought Along Creek Culvert

A four-foot high picket fence will line both sides of Tamalpais Creek when the textured concrete culvert is completed in Kent Woodlands.

Public Works Director Donald R. Frost won the approval of the Marin County Board of Supervisors yesterday on a picket fence which he will suggest to the Army Corps of Engineers to replace the six-foot chain link fence originally planned.

On May 19, Col. Frank C. Boerger, district engineer for the Army engineers, offered to use simulated stone textured concrete to line the walls of Tamalpais Creek between Goodhill Road and Kent Avenue, at no extra cost.

At the same time, the colonel suggested that reducing the height of the fencing might help reduce "the impact of the project in this area."

The Supervisors endorsed the textured concrete concept and asked Frost to make a study on the fence and come back with a recommendation.

Asst. Director of Public Works William L. Hess said the Corps suggested a split rail fence (two horibontal bars), but this was ruled out in favor of a picket fence because children can easily slip through a split rail fence.

County superisors yesterday approved the four-foot picket fence but wanted Frost to make sure that there is no space at the bottom where children can squeeze through.

Parents Ask $100,000 In Girl's Death

The parents of a 16-year-old girl inmate of Marin Juvenile Hall who died March 14 have charged county officials with negligence in allowing their daughter to obtain drugs and filed a $100,000 claim against the county.

Robert and Beverly Hopps of 120 San Rafael Avenue, Belvedere, said that the staff at Juvenile Hall allowed their daughter, Cynthia, "to obtain and ingest so-called 'peace pills,' consisting of a combination of hard drugs such as LSD, STP, methedrine, strychnine and arsenic."

They further alleged that the staff failed to give the girl adequate care when she became ill.

A coroner's jury on April 25 found that the youngster probably died because her nervous system was so damaged by the use of such drugs as LSD that her normal responses were gone.

The jurors found that death was due to asphyxiation on vomit brought on by a neurological disorder.

Other teen-agers from juvenile Hall testified at the inquest that Cynthia had taken a "peace pill" during an outing to the beach chaperoned by Juvenile Hall counselors.

The claim filed against the county is a legal forerunner to any civil suit that may be filed in Marin Superior Court if the claim is denied.

Apollo 10 Astronaut Describes California

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—From the moon, according to those who have been there, the San Joaquin Valley looks as if "somebody had taken a big shovel and just spooned it out."

The Sierra appears to be "beautifully snow capped"—which it is.

The state—a best selling book to the contrary—doesn't seem ready to "slip into the ocean."

And the California Aqueduct just can't be seen, disproving a myth promulgated by state water projects publicists.

Apollo 10 astronauts described what California looks like from the moon yesterday during a Capitol press conference—their only official one of a three-day formal state visit. Col. Thomas P. Stafford, Cmdr. John W. Young and Cmdr. Eugene A. Cernan and their families flew here from San Francisco after a downtown tickertape parade in the Bay city.

Today, the astronauts appeared before a joint session of the Legislature. "For once," Young told the lawmakers, "we could look down and see Los Angeles as clear as a bell. And we didn't see any fog over San Francisco."

Stafford, the spacecraft commander, said the problems legislators face are "more political and social than technical" and revolve around "how to take this (scientific) technology and put it to effective use."

Also on their schedule today were tours through Aerojet and McDonnell Douglas aerospace facilities and a flight to Los Angeles. They'll be in San Diego tomorrow.

Gov. Ronald Reagan accompanied the astronauts at every public appearance, acting as emcee.

"These three are a product of what so many would malign and amend—our society," said the governor. "Too many are telling our young children that heroes are a thing of the past. Well, these are authentic heroes."

What does California look like from up there?

"You know, one of the amazing things that we saw when we were out at the moon," said Young, "was California...

"During 'earthrise' you could see it with the naked eye. It is really something. The San Joaquin Valley stands out like somebody had taken a big shovel and just spooned it out. And you could see it from 250,000 miles away."

Publicists for the state Water Project a couple of years ago contended, somewhat jokingly, that when man reached the moon two public works he could see would be the California Aqueduct down the west side of the Central Valley and the Great Wall of China.

Not so.

It "would have taken a mighty powerful telescope to see anything" beyond the valley itself and the Sierra, said Cernan.

State employees were given time off to watch a downtown Sacramento motorcade carrying the astronauts. Later, the astronauts were guests at a father-son-daughter banquet attended by 1,100.

In San Francisco, the space voyagers were presented by Mayor Joseph Alioto with a miniature likeness of "Snoopy." The lunar vehicle was named after the comic strip dog.

The trip is being paid for by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA).

Jack Watson Is Relected

Jack Watson was reelected to a second term yesterday as president of Carpenters Union Local 35 in San Rafael in the union's biannual election.

About 20 per cent of the 1,400 members voted, reported financial secretary Bill Wilson, who declined to give the vote count.

Seeking to unseat Watson were Al Long and Art Roscoe.

Results in other contested elections saw Charlie Howe defeat Lou Faverio for vice president, and Jim Adrian defeat Hank Torget for business agent.

Elected trustees were incumbents Paul Crumley and Scotty MacKay, and Pat Miller. Defeated were Ted Benson, Pete Petrakis and Bill Stritmatter.

Council Cuts Parks Budget

The Novato City Council cut $1,300 from the $108,940 parks and recreation budget making it $107,640, during a study session last night, reported City Mgr. Charles A. Brown.

This was not a cut in the total city budget, however, but a transfer of $1,300 profit from some of the self-paying recreational programs to be applied to salaries, Brown said.

The council agred to apply $33,000, carried over from this year, for a spray pool at Pioneer Memorial Park, to next year's budget as the work cannot be done until then, Brown said.

The council discussed the purchase of the Rodoni property just north of the community house as a teen center. It appointed Councilmen J. Wayne Womack and Babe Silva to investigate the purchase of the property.

The council adjourned to 8 p.m. today when it will hold its first public hearing on the budget.

Fairfax Man Hurt In Auto Mishap

Theodore Randolph Workman, 48, of 322 Forest Avenue, Fairfax, was treated for a cut knee and bruises at Marin General Hospital last night after he failed to turn his car at the intersection of Front Street and Medway Road, San Rafael, and ran into a chain-link fence owned by Albert Bidegain of 20 Mercury Avenue, San Rafael.

Police cited Workman as being drunk in and about his vehicle.

Passenger Hurts Neck In Collision

Susan Rubin, 24, of Philadelphia, Pa., was treated for back sprain yesterday at Marin General Hospital after an accident in which a car driven by Bilie Ruth Bertrand, 27, of Inverness struck the car in which Mrs. Rubin was a passenger with her husband, Marshall, on Red Hill Avenue at Sequoia Drive, police reported.

Miss Bertrand reportedly told officers that her foot apparently slipped off the brake as she was stopping behind the Rubin car at about 9:40 a.m.

Classified Employees Reject Pay

A proposed 6.67 per cent salary scale increase was turned down last night by the classified employees research and salary committee of San Anselmo School District.

Committee chairman Barbara Nilsen said that a counterproposal is being discussed and will be submitted today in time for discussion by the school board at its 7:30 p.m. meeting today in Red Hill School.

A board committee, meeting with the classified employees committee, made the 6.67 per cent offer plus an 8.3 per cent increase for nine teacher library aides.

Classified employees are seeking a 7.5 per cent increase.

Supt. Stephen L. Parodi said today that the board committee's 6.67 per cent proposal is in addition to the automatical annual 5 per cent rise in pay. Under the board committee's proposal salaries plus increments — now $181,751 — would be $198,910. This would be a $17,159 increase.

Tiburon Teen Center Gets Design Nod

The design for a proposed Tiburon teen recreation center was unanimously approved yesterday by the Tiburon Design Review Board.

The proposed center would be located near the lagoon on Tiburon Peninsula Club property and would be run by Tiburon Youth.

The center still must obtain a use permit from the city before it can be built. Plans approved yesterday included renovation of the Ark which is already at the site, construction of an outdoor deck area, brick entrance paving, landscaping and parking for 20 cars.

The design review board attached a number of conditions to its design approval, among them a 35-foot limitation on a flag pole, a requirement that the outside of the center be painted white and controls over lighting and landscaping.

The board also approved sign permits for Triangle Builders for an identification sign for Tiburon Knolls and for Marinero Residence No. 1 Inc., for an identification and sales sign.

Disco Store Gets Bomb Scare

Disco department store at 1 Larkspur Plaza in Larkspur was evacuated at 1:19 p.m. yesterday after an employee received a telephone call from a man who said a bomb in the building was about to go off and "we're not foolin'."

Police and firemen searched the premises but found nothing. About 50 people were forced to leave the store, said police Sgt. Jerry Mattos.

Planners Hear Open Space Report

The Petaluma Planning Commission last night heard a review of the general plan and the various means of developing open space.

William C. McGivern, city planner, said the city can apply open space concepts in three manners, each complementary to the others.

He said one concept would be to increase the size of lots in selected sections of the city, while maintaining regular lot sizes in others and incorporating the neighborhood park plan.

McGivern said small parks, possibly four acres in size, could be used as "green belts" in subdivision areas and provide play equipment areas for youngsters.

In the open space concept of large areas of greenery, McGivern suggested that the plan for rural development in the area northeast of the Sky Ranch Airport should be retained. He said the development of farms should be encouraged to provide an atmosphere of an open expanse of land adjacent to the fully developed residential areas.

Discussion on updating the general plan will continue at the July 1 commission meeting.

The Petaluma Planning Commission also:

WAREHOUSE — Denied the request of Robert E. Smartt to operate a distribution warehouse and office in a highway commercial zone at the intersection of Petaluma Boulevard North with Old Redwood Highway and Stony Point Road. The commission said it needed more information about the proposed operation and what opinion the Sonoma County Flood Control District would have on development along a tributary of the Petaluma River.

VARIANCE — Granted the request of Commissioner Robert L. Koenitzer to allow a reduction in setback for reconstruction of a garage at 311 Keller Street.

REZONING — Considered the possible rezoning of the area between Schuman Lane and Cherry Street to the city limits to redesign larger lots.

AUTO WRECKING — Reviewed conditions of auto wrecking businesses on Lakeville Highway and gave operators 30 days in which to begin bringing their operations up to city standards. Complaints had been received that operators are burning cars, stacking autos over the fence tops and creating a public nuisance.

Trustees In Fairfax Plan New Tax Vote

The Fairfax School District board decided last night to hold another election to increase the district's general operating tax rate.

No date for the vote was set, according to Dist. Supt. H. Reginald Hammond, although the board indicated it might be held in late January or early February.

Voters on June 3 rejected a proposed 95-cent increase in the general purpose rate to $3 per $100 of assessed valuation.

Hammond said the board expressed interest in forming a citizens advisory committee on the new election.

Because of the June 3 failure, the board was compelled last night to adopt a preliminary 1970 fiscal budget of $822,218, about $85,000 lower than the current budget and some $146,000 less than one the board had hoped to adopt for 1969-70.

Bus transportation and field trips for students are eliminated under the new preliminary budget, Hammond said. The district tax rate—now totaling $3,015, including overrides — probably will not be changed, he added.

The Fairfax School District board also:

SALARIES — Approved a resolution enabling a change in employee salaries during the school year. The board has promised teachers an additional raise if more funds are provided from state sources or a tax election.

TEACHERS — Hired Mrs. Erika Zettl to teach seventh and eighth grade at White Hill School at $10,700 a year.

CONFERENCE — Nominated Thomas J. Kelly, principal of White Hill School, and Theresa Scheppleman, a student at the school, as delegates to the State House Conference on Children and Youth, to be held in Sacramento Nov. 10-11.

UNIFICATION — Supported a resolution passed by the Marin County Committee on School District Organization favoring AB 2102, which would end the requirement for school district unification elections every four years.

ENROLLMENT — Learned that year-end enrollment was 1,113 or 25 less than at the start of the school year.

HAMMOND — Learned that Hammond will attend a National Academy of School Executives clinic on "Administrative Strategies in the Face of Strikes and Sanctions" in San Diego, Nov. 10-14. Hammond, whose trip will be sponsored by the county schools office and the Marin Association of School Administrators, will report to school officials upon his return.

TEAM TEACHERS — Was told that the team teaching program would be conducted next year in the third and fourth grades at Manor School. It was held this year in the second and third grades.

Tijerina Seeking $1.5 Million For Credit Damage

Charles Tijerina of Belvedere on the past two years operation former chairman and president of Tiburon National Bank, yesterday filed a $1.5 million libel suit against a San Francisco credit information service charging that false information has damaged his credit rating.

Tijerina is asking at least $1 million in general damages and $500,000 in punitive damages from the Retail Credit Co., which he said provided credit reports on him to three persons.

The reports alleged that his mismanagement of the bank caused it to be sold to Sierra National Bank, according to the suit.

Tijerina claims this is not true.

Tiburon National Bank was purchased by Sierra National Bank in 1967 after Tijerian had resigned as chairman.

Liquidation of the Tiburon bank is still continuing, according to William O. Weissich, president and chairman, who is also Tijerina's attorney. Weissich said that so far stockholders have received $5 a share.

Board Approves Fill Sale

The Richardson Bay Sanitary District board last night approved the sale of 6,000 to 7,000 yards of fill from its property near Trestle Glen to Soil Service of Tiburon.

Board secretary Douglas De La Fontaine said the board approved the sale at 10 cents a yard.

District Engineer J. Warren Nute said the sale will provide some of the needed leveling of the district's land for future expansion of its Trestle Glen plant.

Trio To Be Honored For Saving A Youth

Three Marin youths tomorrow will receive certificates of recognition for "extraordinary personal action" in saving the life of an 18-year-old Corte Maderian youth on May 1.

The Marin County Chapter of the American National Red Cross will award the certificates at a meeting of directors at 10 a.m. at the First Presbyterian Church in San Rafael.

Certificates will go to Kerry Kelly, 17, of 515 Tamalpais Avenue, Corte Madera; James Robinette, 18, of 5 Greenfield Court, San Anselmo; and Gary Semrau, 20, of 67 Ross Avenue, for saving the life of Donald Rodriquez, 18, of 73 Golden Hinde Passage.

On May 1 Rodriguez slipped near the top of the Kent Lake spillway and slid down the length of the spillway to the rocks below and into the water.

Robinette and Semrau, who were at the base of the spillway, pulled the unconscious Rodriguez ashore while Kelly, who had been walking with Rodriguez, ran to a store in Lagunitas and called for an ambulance.

Robinette and Semrau tended the victim until the arrival of the ambulance.

Hearing Set

A preliminary hearing was set yesterday in Marin Municipal Court for Monday for Richard T. Kaemmer, 29, of Boyes Springs, who was arrested by the California Highway Patrol Saturday. He is accused of possessing marijuana.

Weed Control In Novato Lots

A program to control weeds in vacant lots should be worked out between the city of Novato and the Novato Fire Protection District, it was suggested Monday night by the Novato Beautification Committee.

The committee's proposal was that the city staff work out the program with the fire district, said secretary Frances Miller.

Chairman William J. Olsen suggested that the city staff investigate the possibility of getting approval from the state Division of Highways to landscape more islands on Highway 101. This would include filling in the ditch between the north and southbound lanes of the highway so that these islands could be planted, Mrs. Miller said.

Both proposals must go to the city council before any definite action could be taken on them.

Youth Pleads Guilty To Hitting A Deputy

A College of Marin student arrested during a protest of flood control work at Tamalpais Creek on April 28 pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to hitting a sheriff's deputy who was attempting to arrest him.

Judge Peter Allen Smith fined Gary Stark, 21, of San Anselmo, $50.

He also warned the youth, who said he was an art student, that "if you are ever brought before the court again charged with a similar offense you will be looking at a long jail sentence."

Judge Smith also told Stark "there is a vast difference between dissent and violence" and that "this kind of behavior will not be tolerated."

Stark was the only one of the 38 persons arrested during the demonstration who was charged with battery.

Trials for the others are due to be set soon in Marin Municipal Court.

City Pair Plead Innocent

Delbert C. Clark, 29, and Richard L. Givens, 28, both of San Francisco pleaded innocent yesterday to various felony charges stemming from their arrest Sunday by the California Highway Patrol. A preliminary hearing was set for Monday.

Clark is charged with possession of methamphetamine and another persons' credit card as well as a misdemeanor count of possessing a hypodermic needle.

Givens is accused of auto theft.

Open Space Law To Be Discussed

Is the law establishing agricultural preserves actually saving open space from development or is it just a tax dodge for land speculators?

The effectiveness of the Williams Act of 1966 — which permits landowners to put their property in an agricultural preserve without possiblity of development for 10 years in return for a lower tax rate — will be discussed at 8 p.m. today when the Alliance for Conservation meets at the Marin Rod and Gun Club.

Dealing with the question — conservation, or tax dodge? — will be Asst. County Counsel Richard V. Godino and John Chambers, chief appraiser in the Marin County assessor's office.

$30,000 Cut From School Bus Program

About 1,000 more students in San Rafael City Schools are going to have to hike to school during the next school year as the result of an economy move last night by the San Rafael Board of Education.

Board members voted to cus bus service, extending the pickup limit for middle school and junior high school pupils and revamping bus schedules.

Eight buses would be eliminated at a saving of about $30,000, under the reduced program, trustees reported.

Board members increased the pickup limit for junior high and middle school pupils from a mile-and-a-half to two miles, and said the high school limit, temporarily at two miles, be enforced at the three-mile limit.

Supt. John F. Plank said the moves are expected to reduce the number of students being bused from 2,700 to 1,700.

He felt the $30,000 cutback in transportation would "impress upon all of us the financial crisis" faced by the two districts.

Under the revised schedule Terra Linda High School and Davidson School will operate from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. and San Rafael High School from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

At San Pedro School grades one through three will be in session from 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. and grades four through six from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

At all other schools in the elementary district, grades one through three will be in session from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. and grades four through six, 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Board members also approved use of one of the surplus buses as a mobile classroom for Terra Linda High School field trips on an experimental basis for six months. Other surplus buses are slated to be sold.

McCarthy Asks Recreation In Flood Planning

I-J Special Repgt

SACRAMENTO — A resolution appealing to the federal government to include recreation and beautification in planning for flood control projects has been introduced by Sen. John F. McCarthy, R-San Rafael.

Streams and channels "should be considered in relation to their multipurpose uses and not simply as flood discharge conduits," his resolution (SJR 30) said.

Recreational uses could include walkways, pathways, access points, view areas and areas for boating, fishing, swimming and other outdoor activities, it said.

McCarthy also has a bill (SB 426) that would authorize the state to participate financially in recreational features of federal flood control projects. It has passed the Senate, and is awaiting hearing in the Assembly. Gov. Ronald Reagan vetoed a similar measure last year by McCarthy.

Jersey City Reelects Whelan As Mayor

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP) — Mayor Thomas J. Whelan, running on a "law and order" plank, won reelection as mayor of New Jersey's second largest city yesterday.

He defeated former Mayor Thomas Gangemi in a runoff election with what Whelan called "an overwhelming mandate." The final unofficial tally gave Whelan 50,234 votes to 33,831 for Gangemi.

Radio Talk On Regional Police

Law enforcement officials will discuss whether a regional police force should be formed on radio station KTIM's Sounding Board program at 9 a.m. tomorrow.

Speakers will be Oakland Police Chief Charles R. Gain, a member of the Criminal Justice Advisory Board of the Association of Bay Area Governments, Novato Police Chief Robert DiGrazia, Marin County Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos, Lt. Lincoln M. Borba of the San Rafael Police Department, and Robert Mullen, coordinator of ABAG's Criminal Justice Advisory Board.

Listeners can telephone in questions, and the program will be repeated by tape recording at 10:05 a.m. Sunday.

Budgets Carry Possible Hike In Tax Rates

San Rafael Board of Education last night approved tentative budgets for the coming school year, expected to carry hikes in tax rates.

Approved were the tentative elementary district budget of $4,590,135 and a tentative high school district budget of $4,879,092.

The tentative high school district budget is $241,048 higher than the past year and the tentative elementary budget $143,264 lower.

Supt. John F. Plank claimed there are too many variables, including state aid, not settled to predict tax rates.

The budgets are based on levying the maximum general operating tax rates, $1.75 per $100 assessed valuation in the high school district and $2.25 in the elementary district, he said.

The total tax rates for the past school year, including overrides and bond redemption, were $3.06 in the elementary district and $2.265 in the high school district.

There will be a seventh-eighth grade override tax possibly up to 22 cents per $100 assessed valuation that wasn't levied during the past year.

Plank noted there probably would be override tax increases in both districts to cover increased health insurance payments.

There was no discussion of the budgets as such, since previous discussion covered salaries, the major part of each budget, and board president Herman L. Childress pointed out that the tentative budget is subject to changes.

Plank explained after the meeting that major capital outlay projects have been eliminated from each budget, and there have been some staff reductions.

There will be double kindergarten sessions rather than single sessions and the outdoor education program has been eliminated, he said.

'Youth-O-Rama' Carnival Set

Senator Lauds Medical Students

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Gaylord Nelson praised today medical students at several universities who have rejected free equipment and doctors' bags offered by drug manufacturers.

In remarks prepared for a hearing of his Senate small business monopoly subcommittee, the Wisconsin Democrat said the rejections were "a symbolic protest against what they termed an 'unhealthy relationship' between the drug industry and the medical profession."

The senator said, "there is growing concern . . . that the increasingly close financial relationship between the drug industry and the medical profession may be contrary to the best interests of the profession and public."

Sex Education Included In Proposed Health Program

A wide-ranging family health education program including sex education for San Rafael City Schools from kindergarten through high school was recommended to the San Rafael Board of Education last night.

The program, about two years in the making, was presented by the family health education committee, a group of parents, teachers, social service workers.

James Nelson, assistant superintendent, instructional services, described the recommendations "as the beginning of a program, not the final product."

He said the final program should reflect the wishes of parents, and that teachers must be prepared to undertake the program, and materials must be reviewed continuously.

"The Time of Your Life," a film with controversial portions on sex education is listed as a "suggested film" for grades four and five. Virgil M. Birdsall, principal at John MacPhail School, said that children can be excluded from viewing it if parents object.

Marilyn Juncker, a school nurse, said the schools "need a more complete" health program. Many of the pupils questions go unanswered and "there is a great deal of misinformation," she said.

The schools are aware of the importance of sharing the responsibility "of this phase of education with the family," he said. Nelson pointed out that the responsibility of sex education should be shared with the home, church and community.

Israeli Planes Hit Guerrilla Posts

TIBERIAS, Israel (AP) — Two Israeli war planes skimmed low across the Jordan River today to blast suspected Arab guerrilla positions inside Jordan.

Witnesses said the planes strafed and bombed targets facing Tirat Zvi in the Beisan Valley, 12 miles south of the Sea of Galilee. They said the air attack came after Arabs fired at an Israeli army patrol on the Jordan River cease-fire line.

San Rafael Teachers Due 6 Pct. Increase In Pay

San Rafael Board of Education last night approved a 6 per cent hike in the teachers' salary schedule and a 5 per cent pay raise for nonteaching employees for 1969-70.

Under the new schedule teachers' salaries will range from $6,678 to $13,356.

Board members also agreed that if additional state funds are forthcoming they would consider additional pay hikes if there were at least $100,000 in undistributed reserve in each district. Any further increase would be retroactive to July 1.

Teacher salary costs for the coming year, including the salary schedule increase and the annual step increment, are slated to increase $161,123 in the elementary district and $217,683 in the high school district.

The pay schedule hike is in addition to the annual step increases.

Board members also voted to grant all employees full health insurance for dependents, now only partially covered. Business Mgr. Charles L. Condrotte reported that new health benefits plus an increase in the insurance rates would cost an additional $94,000 in 1969-70.

The health insurance vote was 3-1 with board member John C. Pfeiffer dissenting. Board member Lawrence I. Kramer Jr. was absent.

Pfeiffer favored the plan agreed upon in negotiations with the teachers negotiating council that would have given single employees the option to have income protection instead since they didn't need health insurance for dependents.

Pfeiffer moved that the income protection option be offered, but there was no second.

Plank reported the income protection plan would cost an additional $20,000, and through a quirk wouldn't cut health plan costs but increase them.

Alan Hopkins, a member of the teachers negotiating council, protested saying the income protection option was part of the package agreed upon in negotiations.

He said he had received "reams of letters" from single teachers who were strong for having a benefit equal to the medical coverage for dependents. The matter should be left open for further negotiation, he contended.

There was no salary proposal for administrators since they were covered under a two-year pay program last year, but Plank urged that their salaries be reconsidered if additional funds are available.

The procedure used in granting the increases was challenged by John E. Cascone of 9 Elkin Court.

Pfeiffer, the board's representative to negotiating sessions with teachers, explained he was instructed by fellow board members in closed sessions, and "didn't make the decision on his own."

"The board isn't trying to hide anything or put anything over," Pfeiffer said.

Board president Herman L. Childress said the 6 per cent figure resulted from conferences and Supt. John. F. Plank noted that teachers originally had requested a 19 per cent increase.

Cascone contended there still wasn't enough information available at the board's last session to enable a citizen to discuss the proposal at the board's open session.

Pfeiffer pointed out that last week the board postponed the matter for one week after Cascone's objections.

"I think I echo the feeling of many people who think it's a waste of time to come here," Cascone said.

Hopkins said the proposal was accepted by the negotiating council. "The board made an offer and we accepted it," he reported.

Bus, Boating Strike Front Still Bleak

No improvement was reported yesterday in Marin's troubled transportation outlook.

The Marine Engineers and Beneficial Association, representing ferry, sightseeing and tub boat captains on San Francisco Bay remained on strike, while officials representing striking Greyhound machinists claimed they have halted operations at the bus company garages in Northern California, Reno and Los Angeles.

Federal mediator Jerry Finley met yesterday with tug boat representatives and the MBEA, but recessed the talks without setting a date for another session.

The MBEA is also on strike against Harbor Tours, which operates sightseeing boats on the bay and the Tiburon to San Francisco ferry.

Meanwhile, Fred Martin, chief spokesman for the International Association of Machinists, said Greyhound buses are "beginning to break down and they won't be able to operate much longer."

Greyhound officials denied the claims, saying the garages "are not shut down" and that "service is continuing."

Ankles Sprained In Auto Accident

Ronald E. Krudop, 16, of 1629 San Anselmo Avenue, San Anselmo, was treated for sprained ankles yesterday at Marin General Hospital after a car driven by Edward Weller Schulz, 20, of San Rafael, hit the motorcycle on which Krudop was riding at 1124 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard at about 5:50 p.m., police reported.

Schulz, who lives at 19 Eucalyptus Lane, was cited for following another vehicle too closely, police said.

San Anselmo Council Hears Call For A New $60,000 City Plan

The San Anselmo City Council last night considered a planning commission proposal that the city put up $20,000 — one-third of the cost — toward a new general plan aimed at solving many of the city's problems.

Council members made no decision at a budget session but several of the members seemed favorably inclined.

City Engineer and Public Works Director Charles R. Leitzell and Planning Commission Chairman John F. West spoke of the need for the plan, saying that the 1960 plan was not only outdated and impractical but had not dealt with many problems.

The commission asked that the city put up one-third of the cost of a new plan with the remaining money — $140,000 — to come from federal funds if approved.

An additional $1,000 was asked to put together a "reconnaissance report" done by citizen volunteers which dealt with numerous conditions and problems in the city such as transportation, social conditions, public buildings, storm drains, parks and fire protection.

This extensive report, Leitzell said, could be used as background information for planners and is required for the federal funds.

Leitzell went on to say that the plan idea evolved from his initial move toward updating the city's nonfunctioning and nonexistent storm drains.

"In order to plan for storm drains, one must know how many houses — how many roofs, patios and street are going to be built, necessitating more drains," he explained.

Further, Leitzell thought that the 1960 plan did not relate land use to other problems and provided for a heavier density than is now anticipated.

The downtown section of the plan was not "economically feasible" Leitzell said, since it would have cost $1 million in public funds, and the town's creek was not even considered in the earlier plan.

Judy Emis, representing the Irate Taxpayers, asked how much the 1960 plan had cost. No one could answer her question without looking it up.

West mentioned that city problems were building up as more houses are built on hills where the streets are inadequate. He added that the city has no plannign staff to deal with such problems and that the planning commission wants professional help.

Leitzell said $5,000 from this year's budget which was not spent by the planning commission would be used toward the $20,000 cost of the plan.

Mrs. Emis said she was not against planning but felt that long range expensive plans were a waste of taxpayers' money.

Mayor Woodrow V. Capurro suggested spending only $5,000 a year for such a plan, adding the city had been wanting to buy a new fire engine for a long time.

Leitzell said it is not possible to buy a plan piecemeal.

Councilmen James F. Reed and Kenneth L. Anderson indicated they view favorably such a plan.

In other discussion last night, the council learned from an insurance man, Joseph Sher, that rates for the current health plan for employees will rise prohibitively next year.

He advised councilmen to offer employees a choice of three plans under the state retirement system, all of which are cheaper than the present plan and offer more benefits.

With the money saved the city could offer a dental plan, Sher said.

Councilmen did not commit themselves on this suggestion but suggested Sher meet with city employees before the next budget session, June 26.

Fairfax Council's Budget Mood: Avoid A Tax Raise

Item by item, the Fairfax City Council picked its way last night through the 1969-70 preliminary budget, speaking in penny-pinching tones most of the way.

No action was taken but at 11:30 p.m. Councilman Frank J. Egger put a nightcap on the talks saying, "I have no intention of voting for a tax increase."

He supported this by saying the city has had a 7½ per cent increase in assessed valuation and has no major capital improvements other than on Forrest Avenue.

There was no comment from other councilmen, perhaps because of the late hour, and the council adjourned to Monday at which time it plans to discuss the police and fire budgets. A meeting set for Friday was canceled due to illness of Councilman Cornelis Van Vliet who could not attend last night.

A 6-cent tax increase was proposed June 9 to the council by City Administrator Frances R. Lestanguet. The 1969-70 budget of $539,403 is up $77,491 from the current year's $461,912 and would require increasing the tax rate from $1.74 to $1.80 per $100 valuation.

Total operating revenues for 1969-70 are estimated at $517,939 as compared with 1968-69 estimated revenues of $459,611. Total city expenditures for 1969-70 are $539,403 compared to $454,379 for 1968-69.

Mrs. Lestanguet said she does not recommend any change in the business license ordinance until financial reports come in January, from all licensees paying on a gross basis. Revenues from licenses and permits for 1969-70 are estimated at $22,790 as compared with $22,710 for 1968-69.

Sales tax is estimated in the new budget to increase from $59,000 to $60,000 and cigarette tax from $18,300 to $20,800.

The proposed budget shows $40,000 for restoration of a portion of Forrest Avenue which was damaged in a slide during winter rains.

It also has $16,400 earmarked for resurfacing of San Gabriel Drive, San Gabriel Court, Vista Way, Olema Drive from Sir Francis Drake Boulevard to the city limits and a portion of Cypress Drive.

Councilmen said they plan to set aside $1,100 in the budget as its share of the cities of Marin increase in county-wide animal control, although Councilman Egger commented: "If we do this, we're asking for more double taxation."

Egger said that, of the moneys the county is paying toward animal control, 67 per cent is city money.

The council voted 4-0 to return $130 to the Congress for Community Progress from its current budget on a plea from Joseph Walla in the audience who said the Congress treasurer, who had returned it to the city, had no right to do so.

Councilman Adelaide P. Wilson urged that the two part-time employees who have worked for more than a year be considered for two weeks vacation pay, and Mayor Frank J. O'Connell directed Mrs. Lestanguet to bring back cost estimates on this.

A sum of $960 is in the budget for a secretary for the planning commission and design review board to be paid $20 per meeting and $2,500 for an office secretary for 21 hours per week at $2.25 per hour. The latter would be an added half-time employee.

The budget includes $1,000 for city office floor tile, $403 for police riot control equipment and $1,000 for a city map book. A $100 fan for the Women's Club, where the council meets, was omitted when the council was told the present wiring systems couldn't handle it.

The senior citizen director is to receive $75 per month, a hike of $15 monthly.

North Bay Campus Endorsed

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A resolution urging the University of California to make development of a North Bay campus "an immediate subject of inquiry" won unanimous endorsement yesterday by the Assembly Ways and Means Committee and went to the lower house floor for a vote to send it to the Senate.

The measure (ACR 122), by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, previously was endorsed by the Assembly Education Committee.

Similar measures have been defeated in past years because of opposition by the university, but it is supporting the proposal this year. In previous years, the university reportedly feared such legislation could upset its negotiations for land in southern Sonoma County, but these negotiations apparently were unsuccessful.

Under Bagley's resolution, the campus could go either in Marin, Sonoma, Napa or Solano County. Marin, however, generally is not regarded as a likely location because of the lack of a large parcel of land at a price the university would accept.

Young Cyclist Suffers Fracture

Timothy E. Elliott, 19, of 277 Arias Street, San Rafael, was treated at Marin General Hospital yesterday for a broken ankle and cuts on both hands cuffered when his motorcycle skidded while dodging a car in Terra Linda, the California Highway Patrol said.

Officers said Slliott was on the Terra Linda off-ramp from Highway 101 at 7 p.m. when a car driven by Patricia M. Conway, 34, of 20 Sierra Vista, Novato, pulled into his path from a crossroad.

FAIRFAX PLANS TO SOCK PESTS IN DEER PARK

Yellow jackets in Fairfax's Deer Park area may have a taste of Hawaiian punch this summer.

Fairfax City Councilmen last night approved installation of six yellow jacket bait dispensers in the residential area of Bolinas Road by the Marin County Mosquito Abatement District.

The bait will contain concentrated Hawaiian punch, City Administrator Frances R. Lestanguet reported in addition to other ingredients, "not as strong as DDT."

Fairfax is being used as an experimental city in this trial control, the council was informed.

Officials Get Four Demands In Sacramento

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—City officials today reviewed four demands made by black leaders in the aftermath of violence which hit the city's mostly Negro Oak Park area.

The area continued peaceful last night and early today. Violence Sunday night left a score of persons injured and wounded by gunshots, including 13 police officers.

Demands included:

Changing the name of McClatchy Park, a center of the violence, to Brotherhood Park.

Reducing bail for some of the 37 persons arrested Sunday night and dropping charges for some others.

Replacement by the city of food which Black Panthers said police destroyed in a raid on Panther headquarters.

Policing of Oak Park on an equal basis with other parts of the city.

Collegian Links SDS Officials To Red Line

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A federal Subversive Activities Control Board hearing into the alleged Communist Party connections of two Southern California members of the Students for a Democratic Society entered its second day today as the SDS opened its 1969 party convention in Chicago.

William Tulio Divale, 27, a University of California at Los Angeles anthropology student, told the board yesterday he infiltrated the Communist Party for the FBI and identified the two, Clifford Fried, 26, and David Mares, 22, as elected officials of the Southern California District Communist Party.

The U.S. attorney general has charged Fried, a graduate student at San Fernando Valley State College, was youth chairman of the party in 1968 and that Mares, a student at East Los Angeles Junior College, was active in the party's youth division in 1967 and 1968.

Attorney John Abt of New York, representing Fried and Mares, charged the issue was not whether the two belonged to the Communist Party.

"The important thing is that these people are branded publicly as persons who have renounced allegiance, who are disloyal and subversive, who are seeking the violent overthrow of the government—all of this without any searching inquiry whatsoever," he said.

Abt said the two have engaged in acts "designed to make American democracy work for all people."

He sought unsuccessfully to have the hearing postponed until a Washington, D.C., court case decided the constitutionality of the board.

Divale testified the two held the posts as charged by the attorney general and that Fried was elected a delegate to the party's national convention last April. He said Mares was elected as an alternate delegate.

Divale admitted getting $14,596 from the FBI for his four years as a Communist Party member.

Another witness, Valley State student body president Lawrence B. Labovitz, 22, said he accused Fried of being sent "as a Communist agent to cause violence on the campus" shortly after reading that Fried was being called before the board.

Fried has told newsmen he was a party member but said he would refuse to "tell that damn board up there" that he was.

Mares, who at first said he would boycott the hearing, said he would refuse to tell whether he was a Communist on grounds the board doesn't have the right to ask the question. He said any answer he gave would aid the government in "its campaign to repress the Chicano movement throughout the Southwest."

"No matter what I say, I will be automatically labeled," he said.

An unprecedented number of security officers, some 150 men from six agencies, patroled the federal building where the hearings were being held.

About 300 persons held an orderly demonstration outside the building to protest the hearings. There were no disturbances.

Operation Of Middle School Told

A report on the starting of a middle school was given Monday night to Tomales Bay Union School District trustees by Supt. Ralph E. Nixon.

It was the last meeting of the elementary school district board as it will become a part of the new Shoreline Unified School District on July 1.

Nixon reported that the middle school had English, social studies, mathematics, science, health and Spanish taught to the seventh and eighth grades. Those students also received band, French, art, ceramics, music and journalism at Tomales High School through the cooperation of the high school, he reported.

Next school year, the middle school will be housed in the usable buildings at the present Tomales High School he said. (The Tomales High School will occupy its new building due for completion in July).

The school also started an initial reading research program in kindergarten this year, Nixon reported. This will give the children a head start in reading, he said.

The district, which paid the county counsel $100 for legal work to recover the Bloomfield School bell, has billed the Bloomfield Community Club for its expenses, Nixon said.

A balance of approximately $18,500 will be turned over to the Shoreline District, Nixon said.

HOUSING STUDY

Many Marinites Are Living In City Named Elsewhere

"Teachers city employees, and other workers" in Marin County's 11 cities "live in 'a city named elsewhere' somewhere in Marin County."

This is one of the findings of a county-wide housing study by the Leagues of Women Voters of Central and Southern Marin. From it was drawn the seemingly fanciful name, "A City Named 'Elsewhere'," which the leagues gave to a report of the study delivered this week to city councils.

Most of the report consists of a digest of what has been done on federal, state and local levels toward providing housing for those least able to buy or rent in a steadily inflating home market. This is supplemented by a small section drawn from replies to a questionnaire used in interviewing city government members. It is from the latter that the "City Named Elsewhere" conclusion is drawn.

The league notes that, except in San Rafael, which recently had a special housing census, most city officials and employees know little about the housing problems in their own communities.

"Most cities look at themselves as consisting primarily of single family homes," the leagues report. "Each city sees itself as a stable family community . . .

"The cities recognize that the needs of the elderly and youth are often overlooked. They express great concern for old-time residents who bought when land was cheap and who are in danger of being forced out by high taxes."

Despite this concern, the report shows nothing the cities have done toward alleviating this distress of the "old-time residents."

The only program attacking the need for housing for the elderly has been that undertaken by the Marin County Housing Authority, which has built 36 units in Santa Venetia, 28 units in Homestead Valley, is building 40 in Northgate, and has plan for 40 more just outside Novato. Both the Santa Venetia and Homestead Valley projects have waiting lists, the report notes.

It mentions that San Rafael voters in 1964 approved in a referendum construction of 100 units for the elderly on city-owned land as a strictly city project, but—his was never carried through. The city still owns the land.

Some relief for the elderly is being offered by the leased housing program, also run by the Marin County Housing Authority but with cities cooperating, the report notes. Forty-one elderly couples and 79 other families were housed in such leased units in February of this year.

Housing for minority groups has been dependent principally on Marin City redevelopment, the report shows. It comments that this redevelopment has not gone forward as planned.

Other low-income families have found little help from any program to date except the recently inaugurated leased housing, the study indicates.

Summarizing the housing situation in Marin, the leagues' report says:

"1. There is an imbalance between housing supply and demand.

"2. Whites are moving into Marin County and nonwhites are not.

"3. Costs of housing and land are high and increasing.

"4. Lower income people must commute into Marin to work.

"5. Poverty exists in Marin but it is not obvious."

Library Board Considers Pay

The Petaluma Library Board of Directors last night discussed the possibility of increasing the salary of the head librarian to attract a larger number of applicants.

The board is seeking a replacement for Edna Bovett who retires this month. John W. Cavanagh Jr., a board member, said that in seeking applicants for the position, the board found the salary range of $600 to $831 to be below the Bay Area average.

He asid the board may ask the city council to increase the library budget for next year to accomodate the salary increase.

Reed Trustees Eye Increase In Budget

The Reed Union School District board last night approved a tentative 1969-70 budget totaling $1,960,797, up $143,000 from this year's budget.

Supt. Robert B. Gaw said no increase in the district's $3.53 per $100 assessed valuation tax rate is anticipated in the proposed budget which was sent to the county schools office for review.

The increase, according to Gaw, reflects salary increases and revenues to pay for the added expenditures will come from increased assessments in the district.

The board also received a report from its year-old citizens committee which recommended that the board appoint standing citizens advisory committees on school programs and finances.

The committee, headed by John McChesney and Robert Imel, also recommended a management survey of district operations by an outside firm and called for the district to continue its educational research.

Gaw said the board will schedule a special session to study the report.

Gaw and his staff gave the board a lengthy detailed report onhthe past two years operation of the middle school pilot project and the board set its July 15 meeting for discussion of plans for the middle school next year.

The Reed School District Board Also:

SALARIES Referred to Gaw for further study a classified salary schedule calling for an across-the-board pay increase of 8 per cent for most employees.

JOINT POWERS — Approved a joint powers agreement with the city of Tiburon and authorized advertising of the agreement.

DATE — Affirmed July 2 as the date for opening bids for reconstruction at Reed School.

LOAN — Approved a $510,790 loan request to the county of meet the district's operating costs until tax revenues are available in December.

HIRING — Authorized Gaw to seek an additional science teacher for Del Mar School and hired Stephen Cederborg as an intern counselor at Bel Aire-Reed School at an annual salary of $7,200.

Water Budget Is Adopted; $775,014 In Income Sought

A budget calling for $775,014 income for fiscal 1969-70 was adopted last night by the North Marin County Water District board, according to Eugene Churchill, manager.

The board voted 3-2 to keep the current tax rate of 15 cents per $100 assessed valuation with Commissioners Frank Baccaglio and Franklin Gustafson voting against. They wanted to lower the rate by two or three cents, Churchill said.

The board deleted a $1,300 item for a water tank from capital expenditures cutting that item from $13,607 to $12,307. It also deleted $16,000 for an additional warehouse building from the capital improvements, cutting that budget from $545,930 to $529,930.

The North Marin Water Board Also:

PIONEER PARK—Received a request from David Price Jones, president of the Novato Civic Foundation, that the district donate labor to install the 1,800 feet of water pipes in Pioneer Memorial Park. Frederick Bold Jr., the district attorney, told the board that he thought it was illegal for the district to spend its labor funds on anything that was not district owned. The board asked the staff to study the problem to see if there was any way the district could legally help the Novato Civic Foundation install the pipe in the park.

EXTENSIONS — Approved extensions to the Seventh-day Adventist Church for the north end of Simmons Lane and for Marrett Boissevain for two lots on Laurie Drive.

WATER USE — Heard a report that water consumption was up from 165 to 183 million gallons in May of this year over May of last year, an increase of 11.1 per cent and that water users had increased from 8,308 last year to 8,704 this year, a hike of 4.8 per cent.

WATER — Received a report that aeration recently put into Stafford Lake has shown a better quality of water and lower use of chlorine to purify it.

Reading Of Viet Dead Completed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Antiwar protesters completed this morning the reading of the list of military dead in Vietnam after spending most of the night on the lawn in front of the Pentagon.

Working in two shifts, the group sponsored by Clergy and Laymen Concerned About Vietnam read off the last of more than 35,000 names without incident.

Police guards stood on the Pentagon steps and kept an eye on the proceedings but left the group, varying in size from six to a dozen, to its own activities.

The "read-out" started at 2 p.m. yesterday inside the Pentagon concourse, an area largely occupied by shops, banks, bus terminals and other facilities for the benefit of Pentagon employees.

Unrest Again In Negro District

PORTLAND Ore. (UPI)— More than a dozen fires were set and scattered incidents of violence occurred early today as Portland's largely Negro Albina District experienced its fifth consecutive night of disturbances.

Two of the fires did substantial damage. Firemen temporarily withdrew from one blaze when shots were fired, and returned after police cleared the area.

150 Scientists Urge Ban On DDT Pesticide

STANFORD (AP) — A group of 150 physicians and biologists from six schools is urging that use of the pesticide DDT be banned.

Five other scientists are defending the pesticide, but agree that its use should be minimized because of possible damage to fish and wildlife.

A statement by the larger group of scientists was released yesterday by Dr. Norman Kretchmer, chairman of Stanford University's department of pediatrics, and Dr. Robert Schimke, a Stanford pharmacologist.

It was signed by scientists at Stanford, the Salk Institute in San Diego, the UC Medical School, UCLA, UC San Diego and San Francisco State College.

At the University of California in Berkeley, the DDT defenders urged against banning the pesticide, saying it is vital to food production, essential in the fight against insect-borne diseases, and a must for California cotton crops.

State's Consumer Counsel Says She's Content With Small Office

California's consumer counsel, operating with a skeleton staff and budget, insisted yesterday she was content with the way her office is run under the Reagan administration.

Mrs. Kay Valory, Lafayette mother of six, said she and Gov. Ronald Reagan were in complete agreement in the role government should play in solving consumers' problems. (During his 1966 campaign, Reagan indicated he doubted the necessity of the office of consumer counsel.)

Mrs. Valory noted that she operated with one assistant and an annual budget of $33,000, compared with a staff of 13 and a $120,000 budget during the Brown administration.

She was appointed in January 1967, replacing the state's first consumer counsel, Mrs. Helen Nelson, formerly of Mill Valley.

Mrs. Valory, in a press conference at the Novato home of her brother, Keith C. Craig, an investigator in the county coroner's office, spent most of her time defending her failure to take a position on an Assembly bill to increase interest rates.

She said she was on top of all legislation affecting consumers, but that AB 1850 was "sneaked through."

The bill by Assemblyman Walter W. Powers, D-Sacramento, would hike the maximum interest rate on purchases under $1,000 from 10 to 12 per cent a year. Last Tuesday, however, Powers shelved his bill because of strong opposition by voters throughout the state.

Mrs. Valory, claiming she had not been able to obtain any additional information about the bill, which was introduced on April 7, said "it would be ludicrous" to testify against it without first discussing it with the governor's office.

The 50-year-old Republican noted she commutes to her Sacramento job from her home in Contra Costa Country, but often works at home. She is paid $18,000 a year.

Mrs. Valory said she is working on a film to teach ninth grade pupils about "buying on time," and is considering creating of a bureau to regulate repair of all electric appliances.

Asked her advice to housewives on high beef prices, she said, "Don't buy it for a while." Consumers should not buy poor quality or high-priced food, she said.

King Tap Had RFK Nod–FBI

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A top FBI official said today that a government wiretap put on telephone calls of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., in 1964 had the specific approval of Robert F. Kennedy, who then was attorney general.

Clyde A. Tolson, associate director of the FBI, made the statement in a letter to syndicated columnist Carl T. Rowan and the Washington Star, objecting to a column by Rowan which appeared Sunday in the Star.

Rowan's column was titled "It is Time for J. Edgar Hoover to Go." In it, he cited the wiretapping of King as an example of why Hoover should resign.

Four Youths Arrested In Burglary Case

Four Mill Valley youths have been arrested as suspects in the burglary Sunday of the home of Raymond F. Douglas at 125 Stanford Avenue, Mill Valley, sheriff's deuptles said today.

Booked into Marin County jail on suspicion of burglary were Gary Phillip Walter, 19, of 206 Chapman Drive and James Robert Underhill, 21, of 110 Evergreen Avenue.

Eric Brian Saterlie, 17, of 312 Starling Road and Steven John Roll, 16, of 107 California Avenue were turned over to juvenile authorities.

Deupties said neighbors saw the youths near the house, heard a window break and saw two of the young men leaving the house. Armed with baseball bats, two neighbors looked for the youths, who were arrested the next day by deputies after their truck was seen in Mill Valley.

Missing from the Douglas home were liquor, a clock radio and cash.

Walter and Underhill were released from jail on their own recognizance to appear in Marin Municipal Court today.

Former Music Chest Artist Found Dead

The body of Brian Sullivan, an operatic tenor from Oakland who had appeared several times at the Marin Music Chest summer series, was found by police in Lake Geneva, Switzerland, according to the American embassy in Bern, which did not specify a date of death.

Sullivan, 49, had gone to Geneva to sing the role of Siegfried in Wagner's "Gotterdammerung"; however another singer received the part.

Sullivan performed 16 years with the New York Metropolitan Opera. He sang in 1959, 1960 and 1966 in concerts at the summer series at Forest Meadows.

His musical career ranged from Wagnerian opera to the Broadway musical "Show Boat" and "Street Scene." He also appeared in the early 1940s in two movies, "Courage of Lassie" and "This Man's Navy."

Having studied voice at the University of Southern California, he sang in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer chorus.

Thought It Was Just A Hard Sell

REDDITCH, England (AP) — Housewife Maureen Leopard, 21, thought it was a stunt when Anthony Reynolds, 26, a fire extinguisher salesman, grabbed one of his samples, knocked on the door and told her the roof was on fire. Reynolds finally convinced her to let him in to put out the blaze he had spotted from his car.

"I hadn't seen any flames," Mrs. Leopold said.

When the British advanced upon Washington in 1814, and burned the capitol, Mrs. Dolly Madison, wife of President James Madison, did not leave the White House until she had removed a portrait of George Washington and the Declaration of Independence.

Impasse In Talks On Teacher Pay

The Novato Teacher Association has announced salary scale negotiation with the Novato Unified School District board has reached an impasse. The association has not decided on a course of action, Donald White, president, said today.

Whate said he could not outline a course of action for the teachers until he had conferred with John A. Townsley, representative of the California Teachers Association with which the NTA is affiliated.

The teachers might ask that arbitrators be appointed to settle the differences between the strikes but in sanctions, he said.

The CTA does not believe in strikes but in sactions, he said.

Lost Boy, 6, Found Alive In Snow Patch

SAN BERNARDINO (AP) A 6-year-old boy missing in mountains since Saturday was found today lying in a snow patch. Authorities said he stopped breathing while being taken by helicopter to a hospital and was given mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

Upon arrival, a team of doctors worked over Matthew Joseph Zimmerman. They said he was in serious condition suffering from exposure.

Two youths, volunteer searchers from San Bernardino, found the boy about 9 a.m. at an altitude of more than a mile high near Barton Flats, where snow still lingers in patches from a record winter fall.

At first the lad's condition was reported as good, and tears came to the eyes of men at a base camp for a four-day search. Later, however, came unofficial word his condition was "not good."

Sheriff's Sgt. Ollie Gray, traveling in the copter with the boy, gave the mouth-to-mouth resuscitation in the copter and continued until he was taken to a clinic at Norton Air Force Base.

The boy wandered away Saturday from a campground where his family was on an outing.

GIFTS FOR THE VICE PRESIDENT

And what did the nation's No. 2 office holder do yesterday? Well he traveled to Tarpon Springs, Fla., a city founded by immigrant Greek sponge divers. There he received some gifts and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew is holding one of them — a giant sponge. Agnew, of Greek-American lineage, also was given a model sponge boat, which he said would go on display in his Washington office. (AP Wirephoto)

'42's Bearded Rebel Is 1969's Proud, Conformist Executive

By LEO SOROKA

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—What a difference 27 years make.

In 1942, William Farrelly was a rebel on the campus of St. Louis University. Today he is a 46-year-old executive in a St. Louis sportswear firm, father of four children and a proud social conformist.

The fact is that what made him a "rebel" in 1942 would have him simply a conformist in 1969.

Farrelly's revolt against the Establishment was that he grew a beard.

Assistant Dean Wilfrid Mallon told the youth to get rid of the beard or get out of the university.

It stirred quite a storm.

The then first lady, Eleanor Roosevelt, and Bernard Baruch, the noted adviser to presidents, wrote letters of encouragement to Farrelly. The St. Louis Post-Dispatch championed his case. "Growing a beard," the newspaper said, "is not a minor freedom but a major masculine prerogative, like chewing tobacco."

"When I was in school," he says, "there were certain guidelines which were not unreasonable to students to follow. If one goes outside those guidelines and they ask you to conform . . . why, then it's incumbent upon students to do so; otherwise, to go somewhere else."

Yet back in 1942, Farrelly remembers, "it was springtime." In the spring of earlier years, some young men swallowed gold fish. Farrelly just felt like growing a beard.

While Dean Mallon frowned upon the bearded Farrelly, the Post-Dispatch was editorially eloquent in his defense.

"If smooth-shaven cheeks were made an entrance requirement" at the Jesuit institution, the Post-Dispatch said, "a varied but great company would be excluded."

It listed George Bernard Shaw, several of the apostles, Buffalo Bill, Michelangelo, U. S. Grant and the late King George of England as undesirables who "would have had to turn regretfully from its gates."

"And research reveals that, on the dean's terms, Ignatius Loyola himself, distinguished founder of the Jesuit order, would have to enroll elsewhere," the Post-Dispatch's editorialist wrote.

The writer was not to be deterred by Mallon's claim that the Farrelly beard was "scraggly."

"A beard, like grass in springtime, often comes out 'scraggly,'" he wrote. "Careful cultivation and currying, however, make all the difference in the world. In time, it becomes soft, as luxuriant, as glossy as beaver fur or a blue grass lawn."

It was the assistant dean, nonetheless, who won the argument, and these days Farrelly feels no kinship with campus rebels, bearded or otherwise.

"I hope to teach my children to respect the rules and regulations they voluntarily subscribe to in going to school," he says.

"Every unit of families has its rules and regulations, the same with communities and businesss corporations, and we learn to live with a set of rules all our lives.

"To try to change these rules by force is not the proper way. There has to be a rapport between students and the administration to assure any change in orderly fashion."

Still, the bearded rebel of 1942 has words of comfort for the fathers of the rebels of 1969:

"Every generation of students will have some sort of fad that will be decried by the public at large as frivolous or even seditious. The nonconformist today will be the corporate executive of tomorrow, looking askance at his youngsters."

IN DELI AND DAIRY CASES.

1 Polynesian Sandwiches. Mix together 1 can tuna, drained; 1 hard-cooked egg; ½ cup Rod's Thousand Island Dressing. Spread on 4 onion rolls. (Rod's gives you 1¼ cups in every jar—not the usual 1 cup.)

2 Rod's Ice-Breakers . Open 1, 2, 3, or 4 different Rod's Dips. (They're all ready to dip into!) Surround with favorite dippers—raw vegetable sticks, crackers or toast rounds, potato or corn chips.

3 Apple Pie Orientale. Top your apple pie with Whip-O, garnish with slivers of candied ginger. Easy, generous topping.

4 Sauce Royale. Mix together ¾ cup Rod's Imitation Sour Cream, 2 teaspoons tarragon vinegar, 2 egg yolks, ½ teaspoon paprika. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly, until thick. Serve over hot vegetables—green beans, limas, asparagus, broccoli.

5 Hero's Reward . Slice French bread in half lengthwise. Cover both slices with Rod's Garlic Spread. Fill with layers of roast beef and Swiss cheese, cut into serving pieces.

Dong Kingman Stands Tall As U.S. Artist

NEW YORK (UPI)—In Hong Kong they consider artist Dong Kingman a native son. San Franciscans believe he lives in Chinatown and spends his time just painting the city's million views.

In New York, where he does live, his watercolors are sold out before every exhibition.

He turns up in Buenos Aires, Madrid, Lima, Paris, Acapulco, Tokyo, New Delhi. He stands behind the cameras when movies are shot on location, sketchbook busy and tongue firmly in cheek. His art graces major art museums and the covers of top magazines. His prices are four figures and up.

Kingman is a quiet, five-foot-one-inch dynamo who combines talent with a sly sense of humor and an ability not to take the term "art" too seriously. The results are a highly mobile life style that includes talking a film company out of $80,000 for rent of a 90-foot-long Times Square billboard with the name Dong Kingman 10 feet high, and that of the movie company a good deal smaller.

His various financially fattening activities—including that of technical advisor to movies—get a quick explanation: "I only work for people who pay me a lot of money."

At 58, Dong appears in his early 40s. During a recent interview he listened intently to questions while his eyes swept the crowded restaurant. He quickly sketched an animated type at the bar, marking the coat sleeve "brown."

"Maybe I'll use this later," he said. "Then I can remember the color."

In his paintings Dong combines his knowledge of Western cities and tempo with his natural talent for Oriental detail and lavish color. The results are impressions of city life, often filled with a subtle whimsy some persons find hard to understand when it comes from someone who can be inscrutably Oriental at times.

His first one-man show in 1935 in San Francisco was praised by the art ctitics, but it didn't put bread on the table in the depths of the depression.

"The WPA helped me get established as a painter," he explained. "With one wife you were entitled to $88.75 a month, with a child, $90, or something like that. All you had to do was report to the federal project, pick up paper and paints and go home, them come back the next day and say, I painted for eight hours."

After World War II, Kingman paintings became collectors' items.

"The first painting I sold—of three apples—went for $1.50. Later I sold a painting with 11 apples for $500—that's inflation," he said with a smile. "It's also good advice—buy paintings when the artist is unknown."

Would-Be German Heart Donor Much Alive Today

BERLIN (GF) — Werner Ullrich, a 36-year-old postal official here, nearly became Germany's first heart transplant donor last Dec. 20. But now, nearly six months later, Ullrich is very much alive, his condition improving.

Much of the credit belongs to Prof. E. S. Buecherl, the heart surgeon who was preparing to transfer Ullrich's heart to a recipient at West Berlin's Neukoelln Hospital. Buecherl is the director of West Berlin University's Surgical and Outpatients' Clinic.

Ullrich was delivered to Neukoelln after being struck by a car in the city. He was tossed 65 feet through the air in the accident and had already been pronounced clinically dead before arrival at the hsopital.

Had Buecherl have operated he would have become the first German doctor to have performed a heart transplant. But he and his team of assistants decided to hold off just a while longer after noting Ullrich still showed very slight, irregular and nearly indetectible brain activity. For Ullrich, whose death was all but 100 per cent certain even with such minimal brain registrations, the decision was to prove crucial.

Heart massage and a heart-lung machine were applied to the post office official while the prospective recipient was given an injection of antibody serum preparatory to the heart exchange. Soon Ullrich began to show stronger signs of life and two weeks later Buecherl and his team were able to report a decided improvement in the man's condition. At that point Ullrich lost all qualification for becoming a heart donor.

And Buecherl had lost a chance of becoming the first German surgeon to follow in Dr. Christiaan Barnard's footsteps. A few weeks later a team of surgeons at Munich University became the country's first to perform the feat.

Still, Buecherl now has two famous patients to his credit: a potential heart donor who's on the road to recovery and a potential heart recipient — who incidentally has also shown improvement more recently.

Trustees Get Budget For Schools

A tentative budget of $9,286,543 for fiscal 1969-70 was submitted Monday night to the Novato Unified School District trustees by Supt. James G. Bunker.

This budget is $59,626 more than the $9,226,917 preliminary budget submitted on May 26.

It adds approximately $225,000 for increased salaries and cuts other items in the budget to compensate for part of this increase, Bunker said.

The board received the budget for study but took no action on it, Bunker said.

The Novato Unified School District board also:

AUDIOVISUAL — Approved the annual contract for audio visual service at $1.75 per average daily attendance with the Marin County schools office.

SUBSTITUTES' PAY — Received a request from the Marin County Substitute Teachers Association that they receive the equivalent of a beginning teacher's salary. The substitutes are now paid $25 per day.

GIFT — Accepted a gift of racks for records and paper back books for the Marion School library from the Marion School Parent-Teacher Association.

YEARBOOKS — Received copies of the first yearbook from San Marin High School from teacher John F. Yardas.

Tiny Elk Grove, Los Angeles Facing Same Problem—Money

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Whether you use new math or old math, there's only one answer to the basic arithmetic facing California's local school districts: more money. But the taxpayer is balking. Here is a report.)

By JAMES BOW

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Sprawling Los Angeles and tiny Elk Grove share the same problem this year: they can't find enough money to run their schools.

Paying for public schools in California is becoming a problem so grave, so persistent that leading educators and some legislators say state financing is the only hope.

"The real answer to the problems of Los Angeles schools—indeed to the problems of education in all of California—can be found only in Sacramento," says Supt. Jack Crowther of Los Angeles city schools.

Raising local taxes or selling school bonds isn't the answer this year in Los Angeles or in the Sacramento County town of Elk Grove, or in many cities where voters also have rejected spending more on education.

Since mid-April, 28 school finance ballot proposals have been rejected in the state's seven largest counties. Twenty were approved.

Back in 1967-68, the California Teachers Association reports, there were many failures at the polls, but the total score was better: 160 tax increases or bond issues approved, compared to 138 failures.

For school bonds alone, however, failures have outnumbered successes for some time. The local bond issues require approval by two-thirds of the voters, while tax increases over the routine legal maximum require a simple majority.

Why does the rate of unsuccessful school tax or school bond elections seem to be increasing?

"I think it's high taxes, if you ask me," says Paul Hoyenga, a school construction finance specialist who is doing a study of the problem for the state Education Department.

Despite state support expected to rise above $1.6 billion next year, local property taxpayers still bear the biggest burden for school costs—more than $2 billion.

Hoyenga and some educators complain that school finance elections are the only chance taxpayers have to take a direct stand against the high cost of government.

"The kids are getting the brunt of that attitude," says Supt. Glenn R. Houde of Elk Grove.

Some taxpayers won't admit they oppose school construction bonds, but vote against them at the polls. Some complain priorities for school spending are wrong: some want better buildings and less busing to achieve integration; others want more busing and fewer frills on buildings; some gripe about the salaries paid administrators.

And, in Los Angeles, some opponents to school spending cited recent public school student demonstrations and said the city should learn to run its existing schools before building new ones.

Some men who operate California schools say the problem would be solved if the state would return to its former tradition of paying half the cost of local education. The state foots less than half the bill now — $1.6 billion of a total $4.2 billion.

Others want more sweeping changes, revising the whole system of collecting and distributing school money.

Most agree the pressures are mounting.

"It is our unpleasant task to confront parents unhappy with the quality of their children's education, militant students disillusioned with the educational system, distressed taxpayers opposed to the level of their property taxes and well-organized employees determined to whiplash us into the best possible set of salary and fringe benefits," says Brooks Lockhart, a Monterey school board member and president of the California School Boards Association.

School pressures, and school finance problems, aren't new in California, or in the nation since a so-called "taxpayers' revolt" began four or five years ago.

But this year, for the first time in state history a school board has voted for deficit financing. Los Angeles schools will go $5 million into the red next year, unless they get more money from the state.

After a series of unsuccessful school finance elections, Los Angeles schools also face $22.1 million in budget cuts. Even with spending beyond the budget, Los Angeles expects to cut 150 to 175 teachers from the payroll next year.

Sacramento voters last winter rejected spending more money on schools. Several younger teachers are expected to be fired to keep the district within next year's budget.

In Elk Grove, voters last week rejected a 75-cent tax rate increase by 1,989 to 1,813. The new money would have provided $600,000 to meet an expected $200,000 deficit next year and carry out improvements recommended by a citizens' group.

The new Elk Grove tax rate would have been $2.95 per $100 of assessed valuation — about average for the state. This means that if a family owns a $25,000 home and it is assessed at $6,250 — one fourth of market value — the school tax would be $182.58.

Houde says that a special problem for his district was the opposition by owners of highly-taxed agricultural land.

Each failure offers variations of the "taxpayers' revolt:"

Opponents of replacing old school buildings which don't meet earthquake safety standards set by the Legislature say state government should pay the cost.

Opponents in Sacramento questioned the priorities for spending new tax money as much as the tax increase itself. Should the city have a new educational park, a complex of schools in one location? Should teachers' salaries keep going up?

But in San Diego, Hoyenga reports, "We couldn't find anybody who would admit to voting no" on school bonds, although the measure was defeated.

Hoyenga's figures show $470 million in school bond proposals defeated so far this year, including elections in San Diego, Los Angeles, Pasadena, Alhambra, Salinas, San Jose, Oroville and Marysville-Yuba City.

The school money crisis doesn't mean an imminent deluge of illiterate, totally unprepared graduates in 1970. It does mean that some schools can't plan ahead, can't keep the best teachers, can't give the best education possible in a wealthy state and can't meet the pressures and demands of parents, students, ghetto leaders and teachers.

To some, the problem isn't so grave. State Finance Department forecasts have predicted for some years a leveling off of the annual school population increase. Migration to the state is slowing down and the generation of the wartime and postwar baby boom is finishing its schooling.

Max Rafferty, state school superintendent, reports that these trends may lead to a surplus of teachers in the next few years.

The real problem, according to Republican Sen. John G. Schmitz of Tustin, is "the education lobby ... By constant pressure, it has persuaded many legislators that every year there must be a special extra spending bill, over and above the budget bill, to give tens of hundreds of millions more dollars to the schools, and to set up new programs providing more lucrative school jobs."

Both Sacramento and Los Angeles school boards have included teacher pay increases in their budgets, despite cuts in music, art or athletics. In Sacramento, top pay for a tiny percentage of teachers would be $15,000—closing in on a journeyman plumber's wages.

Gov. Ronald Reagan proposes to spend $105.5 million in extra school aid next year. Rafferty and the CTA want to spend an extra $378 million.

Other school aid proposals in the Legislature call for a statewide property tax to take money from rich school districts and distribute it among poorer districts — and reduce local property taxes.

The school boards association backs a bill providing a statewide property tax for schools plus $360 million in direct state aid.

Supporters of most innovations for paying school costs admit they don't have much hope of immediate success. In the meantime, school boards will have to cut and balance budgets and count on more resentment at the polls.

Resentment by voters questions higher teacher salaries at the expense of programs in music or language; new auditoriums rather than new classrooms, or higher administrators' pay at the expense of teacher pay.

The circle of resentment never quite straightens out. The priorities can't satisfy most of the voters, much less all of them.

Attempts at school busing to achieve racial integration occasionally anger Negro parents, whose own children must travel to other neighborhoods while white pupils continue to go to school near home.

Busing and other integration plans anger some white parents — prejudiced or not — who want money for their own schools.

"I don't think the public really realizes what it's asking through the schools," says Republican Assemblyman Victor V. Veysey of Brawley in the Imperial Valley.

"We used to educate only one-half of our young people through high school," he adds. "Now we demand a no-reject type of education."

And the demands are much more: integration; no integration at the expense of neighborhood schools; job training to keep young persons off the welfare rolls; no job training if it interferes with quality education; sex education; no sex education without strict moral guidelines.

"I'm on the problem," Hoyenga says of school construction costs. "I don't have the solutions yet."

Dodd's New Gun Measure

WASHINGTON AP) — Sen. Thomas J. Dodd today introduced firearms legislation that would require certifying all the owners of an estimated 200 million guns in the United States.

The intent of his Gun Certification Act of 1968, the Connecticut Democrat said, is to prevent gun ownership by known felons, addicts, mental defectives and would-be assassins.

Dodd's bill would require every gun owner to apply for a "Certificate of Eligibility to Possess a Firearm," to be issued by the Secretary of the Treasury. The certificate would cost $1 and be good for life.

AN ELITE WARD

'Idiot Savants' Remain Mystery To Psychologists

POMONA (AP) — Think you're a good checker player?

Take on Willy.

He plays two or three games a day—and hasn't lost in nine years. He has an IQ of 60.

Pretty good at dates and calculations? So is Paul, who has an IQ of 28.

He'll tell you instantly on what day of the week your birth day fell as far back as a decade ago—and on what day it will fall as far forward as 1979.

Play a musical instrument?

Clement, with an IQ of 30, has to listen but once to any song and he can play it on his guitar. He can fix small radios, too.

These three middle-aged men are patients in Ward 18 of Pacific State Hospital here, one of the largest mental institutions in the state.

They belong to an elite class of psychological contradictions known as "idiot savants"—mentally retarded genuises.

There have been scattered reports of idiot savants since the 18th Century. Not technically "idiots," these mental defectives are usually imbeciles, the medium grade of intelligence deficiency. Idiots are lowest on the ladder.

Pacific State, psychologists say, is the first institution to have three idiot savants at one time.

Incapable of living in the outside world, they have some phenomenal talent or aptitude comparable to some of the brightest members of society.

This talent may be in calendar calculating, mathematics, drawing, music, mechanics, or memorization.

How do they do it?

Doctors and psychologists chalk it up to a computer-like capacity for memorization and repetition, but they don't know how this ability develops.

They say, though, that an idiot savant's talent — whatever it is and however it originates — owes much of its development to constant exercise.

"Some retarded people have the ability to channel all their mental capacity into one function," said Pacific State psychologist Hiromu Nakamura.

"Free from distractions, they become better at that one function than those who have much higher intelligence."

Nakamura added that a special talent must be discovered, encouraged, and exercised — or it will fall by the wayside.

Checker-whiz Willy, 53, has a simpler explanation for his abilities — "It's in my head." This reason is echoed by Clement and Paul

Five feet tall, hard of hearing, blind in one eye, Willy snaps his suspenders and giggles when you challenge him at checkers.

"Ahhhhhhh . .wanna get beat, huh?" he asks in a cocky tone. "I beat you. I beat you real good in less than 25 moves."

He quickly arranges the checkers, takes the reds, and moves first. He doesn't stop talking:

"A woman taught me to play. I was 2 years old, 4 feet.

"Ahhhhh . . . wanna get beat, a lot of money playing checkers ... $5 million! But what's the use. The women all take it!

"All women want is money. Money. Money. Money. Money... ahhhhhhh!"

He jumps one of the reporter's blacks.

"Ahhhhh, you have one of mine, I have four of yours," he chuckles. "Nobody beats me. They come here, but nobody beats me."

He makes moves clumsily, like a robot, but without hesitation. He doesn't concentrate. In fact, he doesn't seem to be paying attention. His chattering goes on:

"You look worried. Are you worried? Ahhhhh, look at the swings outside.

"See what swing over there? That's mine. I help in the laundry. I don't smoke, I don't drink, and I don't chase women..."

It takes him 21 moves to end the game. He has seven checkers left.

Another game. He again chatters incessantly, now and then slapping his khaki work clothes as he jumps one of your checkers.

This time he wins with only 20 moves. The wrinkles at the corners of his eyes squeeze back in glee like little accordions.

Willy plays the doctors, psychologists, visitors, psychiatric technicians, and other patients. He asks for 25 cents when he wins and treats himself to chocolate donuts at the hospital snackbar.

"The amount of people who come to play Willy!" exclaims Mrs. Lola Garcia, one of the ward's psychiatric technicians. "But nobody ever wins."

Clement is a tall, quiet, ever-grinning man of 47. Mrs. Garcia discovered his talent when she passed his room last September and heard him plucking out "Winchester Cathedral" on a toy guitar. (He now has a full-size guitar, donated by a local family.)

"He knows scores of songs," she says. "He's learned them from the radio and from records.

"All he has to do is hear a song once and he'll remember it— the tune, the melody, and the words, too.

Clement is a fastidious dresser. "He always likes to have on a clean white shirt, pressed pants, and a tie," says Mrs. Garcia.

But he has a vice. He steals transistor radios from fellow patients and tinkers with them.

"He hides them under his mattress, in the cupboards," sighs Mrs. Garcia. "If they don't work, he fixes them with his hands. I don't really know how he does it—he just does.

"Unfortunately, if a radio does work, he'll break it just so he can fool around with it. He loves to tinker."

Paul, the calendar calculator, came shuffling toward the TV room of the ward. He is 55, heavy-set and dressed in coveralls. He's an addict for afternoon soap operas.

He was about to sit down when Mrs. Garcia called to him from her office.

"Paul," she asked, "could you tell me the day of the week that June 19, 1958, fell on?"

"Huh, huh," he grunts, "Thursday."

"This man's birthday is October 24. What day will that fall on in 1975?"

"Huh, Friday."

"What day did my birthday fall on in 1963?"

Paul picked at a small scab on his forearm. "Wednesday."

A check of a perpetual calendar proved him right on all dates. But when Mrs. Garcia asked, "Paul, how much is two and two," he was silent.

MRS. EDWARD Schulman prepares some of the Polynesian sweet and sour beef balls she will serve at the Mai Tai party to be held Saturday. It is sponsored by the Oleander chapter of the Marin Foundation and Mrs. Schulman is food chairman for the party. (Independent-Journal photos by Bob Hax)

Members Share Recipes For Patio Party Hors D'Oeuvres

Looking for some hors d'oeuvres ideas that are great for a patio party this summer?

Polynesian hors d'oeuvres will be served at the mai tai party planned for Saturday evening by the Oleander Chapter, Marin Foundation, at the Oakview Club in Terra Linda, and the North Marin chapter members have shared some of the recipes they'll be using.

Mrs. James Dodd will serve a Tahitian fish recipe in which lime juice acts as the cooking agent:

Cut in bite size pieces 2 lbs. of boned and skinned halibut, and mix with one tablespoon of salt and ⅔ cup lime juice. Chill in the refirgerator three hours or overnight. Drain and add 4 green onions, chopped, ½ green pepper chopped, one large tomato peeled and chopped and 2 tablespoons parsley. Mix all well and cover with ¾ cup coconut milk or a dressing made with ⅔ cup oil, ⅓ cup vinegar and 1 and ½ teaspoons dry mustard.

Chill for an hour, garnish with one grated hard boiled egg and serve on lettuce. This finger-food serves eight, says Mrs. Dodd.

MRS. EDWARD SCHULMAN will serve Polynesian sweet and sour beef balls. Mix 10 oz. jar of Concord grape jelly, 14 oz. bottle of chili sauce and the juice of ½ lemon and place in pan and cook for 15 minutes. Season two pounds of ground chuck with salt and form meat balls (about 20 to the pound.) Drop in pan and simmer in the sauce for 45 minutes.

These can be cooked and frozen ahead of time and then reheated when desired, Mrs. Schulman says.

TAKING A LITTLE more time to prepare are the fillshells that Mrs. James Sullivan will take to the party.

(A special patty shell iron number 81 can be purchased from Bonley Products Co., 111 West Armitage Avenue, Chicago.)

Mix together slowly 1 cup milk, 1 tsp. sugar, ½ teaspoon salt and 2 unbeaten eggs into 1 cup sifted flour. Air bubbles will make holes in the shells, so let set until all bubbles have vanished. Heat irons by dipping into hot oil (365 degrees). When heated remove from oil and dip into batter so that batter is absolutely level with top or irons. Return to oil, cook until a delicate brown. Drain on paper towel.

Store in airtight container. The shells freeze well and can be stored up to six months. The recipe makes approximately 75 shells.

Following is the filling for the shells. Mix together 1 cup fresh or canned crab meat, 1 cup shrimp, fresh or canned, 1 cup good grade white tuna, 1 small can diced pineapple, 1 cup diced celery, 2 T. pickel relish or chutney, ½ cup chopped cashew nuts, ½ cup diced onions or chives, ¼ cup sliced stuffed olives or green ripe olives and 1 cup diced tart apple.

Add a dressing of 1¼ cup mayonnaise, ½ cup sour cream and 1 to 2 tsp. curry powder, according to one's taste. Fill the shells just before serving.

MRS. RICHARD SCHLOBOHM, decorations chairman for the Mai Tai party, and Mrs. James Dodd, co-chairman, sample the filled shells that Mrs. James Sullivan will be serving. A variety of Polynesian hors d'oeuvres will be prepared and served by members of the Oleander chapter.

Ideas For a Bridal Shower Menu To Please Parents And Young Set

There are two schools of thought about desserts, one inhabited by mothers of the bride and groom, aunts, and their friends; the other by the bride, bridesmaids, and their contemporaries.

The first school believes the perfect party menu is always climaxed with a rich dessert and after-dinner coffee, while the young people prefer a fancy coffee beverage for dessert.

To please both groups at a bridal shower buffet, offer perfectly brewed coffee — hot or cold, plain or fancy; and a choice of two elegant fruit and wine desserts. A fruit compote of pear halves and frozen strawberries generously laced with white wine and their own syrup is a delicious middle-of-the-road compromise. Appealing to the young and young-at-heart are these "Lake Country Jewels" of cherry flavor gelatin accented with red dinner wine of a delicate and fruity flavor and bouquet.

The coffee is rich, creamy and frothy in Coffee Alexander, a dessert in a glass that quite handily becomes an after-dinner drink with the addition of brandy.

Start with extra-strength coffee, freshly brewed. Then pour it into a blender. Whip up the concoction with hot coffee, cracked ice, coffee ice cream, and if you please, a splash of brandy. Pour into a carafe and serve in punch cups or stemmed glasses.

PEAR AND BERRY WINE COMPOTE

1 can (1 lb. 13 oz.) Bartlett-pear halves
1 cup white dinner wine
2 pouches (10 oz. each) frozen strawberry halves

Drain pears, arrange in shallow serving dish. Pour wine over pears, chill at least 1 hour. Just before serving, thaw berries as directed on package; add to pears. Serve at once. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

LAKE COUNTY JEWELS

2 packages (3 oz. each) cherry flavor gelatin
2 cups hot water
½ cup cold water
1½ cups red dinner wine
½ lb. white seedless grapes
1 egg white, unbeaten
Granulated sugar

Dissolve gelatin in hot water. Add cold water and wine. Pour into crystal wine glasses. Chill until firm. Garnish with clusters of sugared grapes.

Sugared Grapes: Wash grapes, snip into small clusters. Dip each cluster of grapes first into egg whites and then into sugar, turning to coat evenly. Dry on waxed paper.

COFFEE ALEXANDER

3 cups freshly brewed coffee, extra-strength
4-6 ice cubes
1 pint coffee ice cream
¼ cup brandy

Place coffee and ice cubes into blender and blend at medium speed. Add ice cream and brandy; then blend at maximum speed. Pour into an attractive carafe and serve in punch cups.

To make extra-strength coffee: Use only 4 oz. water to each coffee measure of coffee.

Lamb Chops And Zucchini Combine For A Barbecue

An early cookout requires a hearty dish and what could be better than thick, meaty lamb shoulder chops. Light the fire and depend upon briquets for hot, even heat.

You'll want to allow enough time for them to come to the ashen-gray stage for the best heat. Then brown the chops and continue on with the seasonings. Tomatoes and thinly sliced zucchini make this a one-dish meal.

LAMB CHOPS AND ZUCCHINI
(Makes 4 servings)

4 shoulder lamb chops, 1-inch thick
2 tablespoons salad oil
1 large onion, sliced
1 clove garlic, minced
Salt
½ teaspoon marjoram leaves
¼ teaspoon celery seed
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 can (1 pound) tomatoes in puree
1 pound zucchini, thinly sliced

In large skillet, brown chops on both sides in oil over glowing coals. Remove chops; drain off drippings. Cook onion and garlic in skillet 1 minute. Return chops; sprinkle with 1 teaspoon salt and other seasonings. Add tomatoes and simmer, covered, 30 minutes, or until meat is tender.

Add zucchini; cook 10 minutes longer, or until zucchini is tender. Place chops in serving dish. Add salt to taste to zucchini sauce and pour over lamb chops. Serve with French bread, rice or potatoes, as desired.

Salad Slimmer

A cottage cheese and egg mixture makes a nourishing, low-calorie salad slimmer. Combine 2 cups of cottage cheese with 1 hard-cooked egg, finely chopped; 2 tablespoons of chopped canned pimiento and 1 tablespoon of chopped chives. Spoon into 4 cooked cold artichokes and serve with fresh lemon juice or low-calorie french dressing.

Fruit Salads

Subtly sweet maple cheese dressing is a natural for fruit salads. Soften a 3 ounce package of cream cheese in a bowl. Add 1 tablespoon of orange juice and ¼ cup of maple-blended syrup, beating until smooth. Makes about ¾ cup.

An Apple Salad With Zippy Taste

Have you ever tried a good hearty salad, with soup served alongside in a big cup, to be sipped like a beverage? With a hot roll, well buttered, this makes a perfect luncheon or supper menus for the family or even for an informal occasion when guests are present.

This piquant salad is packed with flavor and contrasts in texture. The sweet-sour tang of herring pickled in wine sauce, the crunchiness of walnuts, the flavor of dill and, the mellow tartness and visual beauty of red-skinned apples add up to something special.

DILLY APPLE-WALNUT SALAD

1½ cups cubed cooked potatoes
1 cup drained diced pickled herring packed in wine sauce (6 oz. jar)
2 cups diced unpeeled red apples
¾ cup coarsely broken walnuts
½ cup mayonnaise
2 tablespoons Italian dressing
1 tablespoon fresh dill or ½ teaspoon dried dill

Combine first four ingredients. Combine remaining ingredients and pour over salad. Toss gently to mix. Serve on salad greens. Makes 4 servings.

Juice Sparks

Use a bit of canned grapefruit juice to spark salad dressings. Stir it into cream cheese, mayonnaise, yogurt or sour cream.

HERE'S AN apple-walnut salad with a difference—potatoes and pickled herring.

COAT, SUIT AND PANTS

The little coat is still big news for fall, according to New York Couture Business Council, and there is lots of shaping in the brown double button coat, left, from Originala, who adds a regency collar and slanted patch pockets. Davidow shows the bronze tweedy check, center. The hip-riding jacket is shaped and trimmed with gold buttons and four flap pockets, matched to a stem of a skirt. From Nat Kaplan's collection, right, a white silk shirt tunic over gray pants can be worn together—or the dress alone—a new direction for the pants concept.

Bridegroom Chooses Appropriate Clothing

So, you're going to get married. You have set the date, made all the arrangements, invited the guests and now — the bridegroom wants to know, "What am I supposed to wear?"

He'll get a wide variety of supposedly authoritative answers to that question. Unfortunately, much of the advice is either all wrong or only partially correct.

There's a right outfit for the rites, and it is determined by the bride's gown and by the time of day of the ceremony.

OBVIOUSLY, THERE is no law that says a wedding isn't legal if the bridegroom isn't outfitted correctly.

However, the bridegroom can save a lot of embarrassment for all concerned by paying his bride the courtesy of wearing the proper outfit. He may be an innovator as far as business and sports clothes are concerned, but his wedding kit should follow the rules.

There are three types of wedding ceremonies: formal, semi-formal and informal. The degree of formality is determined by the bride's gown. Likewise, the degree of formality determines the type of outfit worn by the bridegroom. Another influencing factor is the time of day. If the ceremony takes place after six, evening attire is the obvious choice.

The ushers, the father of the bride and any other men who are members of the wedding party, dress the same as the groom. The only difference — and this applies to daytime outfits only — is that the bridegroom's tie or ascot may vary slightly in design from the others. That and his boutonniere, which is a sprig of lily-of-the-valley, supposedly taken from the bride's bouquet, are the only distinguishing marks of the bridegroom.

He never wears a black tie with a tailcoat or a white tie with a tuxedo. Neither does he do anything else that is original or distinguishing without fracturing the rules.

After all, the bride is the star of the show.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Woman Waits Too Long, Regrets Not Making Decision Earlier

DEAR HELEN:

I was one of those who waited until the children were grown before making the break. My marriage was miserable. Three months after the wedding my husband had made it plain I didn't count, that he'd do as he pleased. By that time I was pregnant and hoped he'd change.

He did — for the worse.

During the next 20 years I went from hurt to hate and finally to indifference. He had his girl friends, I had our two children and a roof over our heads. Later on I got a good job, which made life bearable.

But when our daughters actually begged me to get a divorce because they couldn't stand their father's meanness, I quietly went to see a lawyer. My husband was away on one of his many "business trips," and I planned to tell him I was filing for divorce as soon as he returned home.

All three of us were so relieved, we had a celebration dinner — such was the extent of our disgust with this man who had never really been a husband or father.

Our relief was premature.

He was in an accident that night. The woman with him wasn't hurt badly, but my husband will live the rest of his life in a wheelchair, a complete cripple with partial brain damage.

I can't leave, of course. My conscience would never quit. I only hope that I won't show by my actions how much I regret having waited too long. Had I divorced him years ago, perhaps he wouldn't have needed liquor quite so much. He might have found a woman who could handle him. And I wouldn't be weighted down with debts, caring for — and pretending I care for — a man I despise.

You can't help me, Helen. I know what I must do. But perhaps some of your readers have had experiences similar to mine. Could you ask them to tell you how they lived through them? — TRAPPED

DEAR TRAPPED:

You have already received my personal letter offering encouragement and hope. I'm sure you'll hear from others who have also learned that God seldom closes one door without opening another.

Note to readers: Please send each of your letters to me inside a blank stamped envelope, and I'll forward them to TRAPPED. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Cy, this man I'm dating, says he likes me very much but I think he lives with another woman. When he gets his divorce, I'm afraid he'll marry her, although he says he doesn't want to get married right away. I hope this is true as I am separated from my husband but can't afford a divorce presently. He deserted me four years ago so there's no chance of a reconciliation, and I don't want one.

Cy and I see each other every day at work and eat lunch together, but he doesn't take me out much. He isn't on the make — after all he has a girl — but he says he likes me better than her and is trying to find a way of breaking up without hurting her. Should I hang on and hope? — C. D

DEAR C:

Unless you have a divorce, you can't hope for anything more than Cy's present girl has — which is nothing to hang your life on. See a lawyer, even if you must borrow the money — or dun your deserted-husband for it. When you're legally free, you'll at least have a fighting chance for that ring — should you still want it. — H.

Cherry Sauce

Pork loin roast or fresh ham is more delightful than ever with a hot cherry sauce, easily made: combine one can (16 ounces) cherry pie filling with one-fourth cup of orange juice, one teaspoon grated lemon rind and one fourth teaspoon allspice. Cook, stirring constantly, until heated through. Yield: two and one-third cups.

Pair Choose Home In City

Our Lady of Mount Carmel Church in Mill Valley was the setting for the wedding Saturday of Alberta J. Couderc to Michael J. Yalon of San Francisco.

Deborah Wachs of Mill Valley was maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Alice Couderc, the bride's sister, and Erika Rutherford of Cotati.

Stuart Heard of Mill Valley served as the best man, and escorting guests to seats were John Yalon, the bridegroom's brother, and Kenneth Englund, both of San Francisco.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Couderc of Mill Valley, Alberta was graduated from Marin Catholic High School and is a junior nursing student at the University of San Francisco. She is the sister of Mrs. Lloyd Rutherford of Mill Valley and Edward Couderc of Sausalito.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerome M. Yalon of San Francisco are parents of the bridegroom, who is a graduate of St. Ignatius High School and is a policeman in San Francisco. Michael also attends San Francisco State College. He is the brother of JoAnne, John Vincent, Jerry, Mary and Jeanne Marie Yalon of San Francisco.

The couple will live in San Francisco.

Outdoor Girl Heads Branch Of Hospital Volunteers

An "outdoor girl" who enjoys pheasant and duck hunting, skiing, and tennis is the new president of the Raccoon Branch of Marin General Hospital Volunteers.

Mrs. Fenimore Cady Jr., who also lists playing the piano, sewing and knitting as favorite leisure activities, has been a member of the Raccoon branch for eight years. She has been treasurer and secretary for the organization, which she now heads.

Major events of the branch, which benefit the hospital, are an annual boating party on a chartered boat the opening day of the bay yachting season, and a membership tea each fall. Membership is limited to residents of the Tiburon Peninsula.

Community Group Promotes Friendship Among Neighbors

An experiment in promoting friendship among Homestead Valley neighbors was off to a good start last week when a drop-in coffee was held Wednesday at the Homestead Valley Community Association clubhouse in Mill Valley. All members of the community regardless of age were invited to attend.

The idea originated with Mrs. Kenyon Spalding, a former vice president of the association, as a get-acquainted plan for persons in the new Homestead Terrace area, especially young mothers who might like a change of scene.

At the first meeting plans were made to continue the get-togethers each month on the second Wednesday with the next one set for July 9 at 11:30 a.m. when games will be featured. There are no dues or admission charges, and coffee and cookies are provided through small donations.

For later meetings there may be programs consisting of lectures and travelogues by community members.

Mrs. Spalding emphasized that anyone interested is invited to drop in.

AT THEIR final meeting of the club year members of the Volunteer League of Kaiser Foundation Hospital will present certificates of appreciation to John A. Rauschkolb and Juanita Bond.

Gene Ackerman, hospital administrator, will present the awards at the gathering at Kaiser Foundation Hospital Monday at 1 p.m.

A BLUE ribbon certificate of achievement has been awarded the Novato Garden Club, Inc. by the California Garden Clubs, Inc. in recognition of outstanding work done in the promotion of Garden Club objectives, according to Mrs. Keith Cowan, president.

The certificate was signed by Mrs. Milton R. Bell, state president, and Mrs. F. E. Gillette, awards chairman for the state club.

BROOKSIDE PARENT-Teacher Association has awarded honorary life memberships to Mrs. Walter Busse and Mrs. John Holm. The Marin women were honored at a founders day meeting held at the home of Mrs. Charles Methany.

Mrs. Busse, a past president and member of the P-TA board of directors, is a trustee of the San Anselmo School District. She is a graduate of the University of California and serves on the board of the American Red Cross, a post she has held the past 10 years. She helped to establish the Volunteer Bureau of Marin and is especially interested in developing volunteer programs for the public schools. She is the mother of four children.

Mrs. Holm was a president of P-TA and served on the board for seven years. She was instrumental in establishing the Educationally Handicapped program in the school district and works as a volunteer aide. She is an elder in the San Anselmo Presbyterian Church and a member of the League of Women Voters. Mr. and Mrs. Holm serve on the Citizen's Advisory Committee to the school board and are the parents of two children.

THE VOLUNTEER BUREAU of Marin is conducting a program to place young people in volunteer jobs this summer. Among the jobs available are: aides to handicapped children in summer school, art aides in Southern Marin schools, office assistants in poverty programs and health and welfare agencies, assistants for city-sponsored recreation, child care, day camp aides, theater work and many more.

Interested young people may obtain a brochure from the Bureau with a complete listing of jobs. Interview appointments may be made any day of the week between nine and five. The Volunteer Bureau is located at 725 A Street in San Rafael.

RECENTLY ELECTED to membership in the Outdoor Art Club in Mill Valley were Mmes. Ralph Livingston, Dean Meyer, Meta Spirz, Albert Connelly, Susan Tanner, John Collins, Joseph Tobin, Robert Mountjoy, M. Steven Green, Thomas Smiley, Edward Bassett, Richard Sloan, William Hogan, Carl Waldeck and Miss T. Diane Heaney. Mrs. William Perka was reinstated.

Try Ring First

Superstitions that have gone out the window—that it is bad luck to try on or wear briefly the wedding ring before the actual ceremony. More sensible is for each party to try on the rings, slipping them on and off to make sure this can be done quickly and easily at the wedding.

Formula A Cars To Provide Action

They'll be playing follow the liter in Sonoma County this weekend with some of America's foremost sports car drivers gunning for gold and glory in the Continental 49er Championship at Sears Point.

Headlining the two-day program will be some of the hottest machinery ever to set rubber on Northern California asphalt, the Formula A cars whose relatively new Continental Championship Series is rapidly capturing the fancy of America's motorsports buffs.

Developed by Sports Car Club of America in answer to the astronomical costs of Indianapolis championship cars and Canadian-American series cars, the Continental series of 13 races started in Riverside in April and will wind up in Sebring, Fla., in December. Sears Point is fourth stop on the agenda.

Cost Is Somewhat Lower

While the Indy cars cost anywhere between $60,000 and $100,000 and the Can-Ams from 75 to 100 Gs, you can pick up one of these Formula A jobs for a piddling $25,000 (driven only on Sundays by a little old leadfoot).

But don't think the bargain rate means 50 to 75 per cent less action. At Riverside, for example, winner John Cannon's Eagle-Chevy averaged 112.988 mph and posted a record lap speed of 121.6 mph, beating the Indy car lap mark of 118.556 by Dan Gurney and the 119.683 Trans-Am record by Bruce McLaren.

The Formula A's also provide for exciting races as the first three cars at Riverside finished within 56 seconds of each other.

While the Formula A's weight about the same as the Indy and Can-Am cars, the difference is in horsepower. Indy cars are limited to three-liter (255 cubic inch engines) while the Can-Am'ers (seven liter) have unlimited horsepower. Formula A cars have five liter engines (305 cubic inches).

Airfoils Are Allowed

The sleek, single seat, open cockpit, open wheel, rear engine Formula A's look similar to Indy cars except, of course, for the airfoils which are allowed by the SCCA but banned by the United States Auto Club. (A malfunctioning airfoil can be quite hazardous.)

If you have young'uns with you at the races and they are puzzled by the "spoilers," as airfoils are sometimes called, you can explain that their downward angle pushes down on the car to increase its traction, making for surer handling in turns and increasing lap speeds. Were the foil slanted upwards it would lift the car and the race that began at Sears Point could very well finish at Penngrove — as the Eagle-Chevy flies.

Domination By Chevy

Chevy-powered cars thus far have completely dominated the Continental Series, led by Sam Posey's Eagle Chevy with a first at Laguna Seca and second in Colorado, George Wintersteen's Lola T142 Chevy second in point standings, John Cannon's Eagle-Chevy and Rich Simons' Lola Chevy tied for third. Cannon won at Riverside and Simons at Colorado.

Sears officials expect between 30 and 35 Formula A's and a like number of Formula B and C cars that will race Saturday and Sunday. Saturday's feature attraction, in addition to Formula A practice and qualifying runs, will be the 100-mile Formula B/C championship race at 2:30 p.m. Sunday's 49-lap, 123-mile main event will begin at 1:15 p.m.

All told, there will be $24,000 in prize money. And that, my friends, is a lot of Sears Road Bucks.

Posey's Second Time Around

Incidentally, the boyish-looking, 24-year-old Posey will be the only Continental driver seeing Sears Point's tricky, 12-turn, 2.5-mile road circuit for the second time.

A few days after his Laguna Seca victory last month Sudden Sam tested the Sonoma County track and set a lap record of 1 minute, 42.8 seconds, or 89 miles per hour.

The track since then has been slightly altered to increase speed, so the Formula A's could average close to 100 mph on Sunday, according to Sears publicist Steve Castoldi. Far short of the Riverside records, but Sears is a much "tighter" circuit that will give the pros all they can handle.

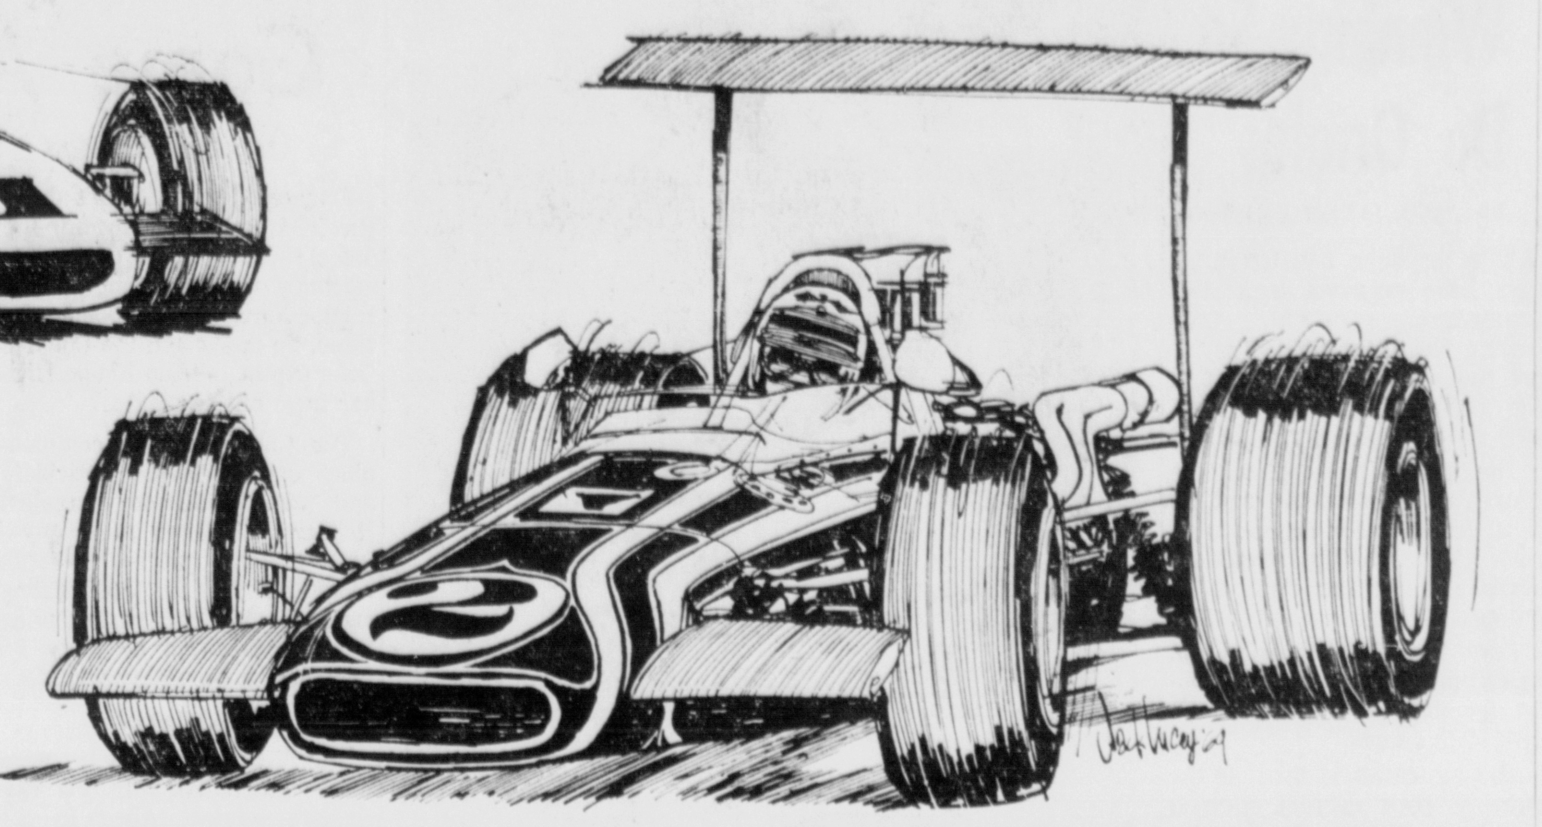
Champ Skaters In Pro Ranks

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—U.S. pairs champion iceskaters Ron and Cindy Kauffman have turned pro and are under a three-year contract to Shipstads & Johnson Ice Follies, it was announced yesterday.

Financial arrangements were not disclosed.

The brother-sister team placed first this year in the national senior pairs, first in the North American competition and fourth in world competition. They have been skating together for 13 years.

Ron, 22, and Cindy, 20, will make their professional debut July 16 at San Francisco's Winterland, joining Olympic gold medalist Peggy Fleming on the show roster.



SCREAMING EAGLES — John Cannon in his No. 2 Chevy-Eagle and Sam Posey in his No. 1 Classic Wax Special Chevy Eagle will be among the Formula A drivers gunning for top prize in this weekend's Continental 49er headliner at Sears Point International Raceway. ROZELLE OUT OF TOWN

Namath Wants To Meet

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Namath, the controversial New York Jets quarterback, has agreed to meet with pro football Commissioner Pete Rozelle but whether there'll be a meeting of the minds remains to be seen.

The meeting will probably be next week. Rozelle is fishing off the coast of lower California and Namath will be out of town until next week, too.

Namath and Jets President Phil Iselin had their first face-to-face meeting yesterday since June 6 when Namath tearfully announced he was quitting football rather than follow Rozelle's orders to give up his third-interest in a Manhattan restaurant allegedly frequented by undesirable characters.

News of an imminent Rozelle-Namath confrontation was the only item to emerge from the one-hour meeting between Namath and Iselin. There was no word on who's calling the plays.

Rozelle has said Namath must sit down with him before he will be allowed to play again even if he sells his interest in the restaurant, Bachelors III.

In Toronto, meantime, Jake Gauduar, commissioner of the Canadian Football League, dismissed a report that Namath might play in Canada.

Gaudaur told the Toronto Telegram that there was no way a CFL team could deal with Namath since he is under contract to an American team.

The Telegram quoted an unnamed personal friend of Namath as saying in a telephone interview from New York that a CFL team had invited Namath to play in Canada "but he's not saying which one."

NCAA 'WORLD SERIES'

Dolinsek Gets A Key Blow

COMBINED AP & UPI

OMAHA, Neb. — Three triples, one of them by former Novato High School star John Dolinsek, started a four-run explosion in the fifth inning to carry Arizona State to a 4-2 victory over Massachusetts and keep the Sun Devils alive in the NCAA double-elimination baseball championships yesterday.

Dolinsek, who was drafted by the Houston Astros last week, joined teammate Roger Detter and John Ray Powell in the triple barrage, an outburst that was abetted by a double by Lenny Randle and a single by Ralph Dick.

The Sun Dvils thus face the dubious situation of facing Tulsa, the only unbeaten team in the tournament, at 8 o'clock tonight.

Tulsa blanked New York University, 2-0, to give the Golden Hurricane a series record of 3-0. In the day's other game, Texas blasted Mississippi, 14-1, to eliminate the Rebels. Texas and NYU were to clash today.

EARLY LEAD

Arizona State overcame an early 1-0 Massachusetts lead with its big inning and hung on to win behind hurler Craig Swan, who got his ninth win of the season without a loss.

Reserve pitchers Reg Rowe and Jay Weinheimer combined for the Tulsa victory.

Texas pounded out three doubles, two triples and homers by Pat Brown and David Hall to crush Mississippi. The Longhorns totaled 13 hits.

Longhorn freshman righthander Bert Hooton won it for his second verdict in the series. He had an opening day shutout to his credit and now has a 12-0 season record.

Laver Is Wimbledon Top Seed

LONDON (UPI)—The Wimbledon Seeding Committee agrees with tennis fans the world over. Rod Laver is the man to beat.

The red haired Australian has been top-seeded for the Wimbledon event June 23-July 5, in which he will be the defending champion.

Laver will be seeking his fourth Wimbledon crown, and also striving to keep alive his hopes for a second "grand slam," a feat never accomplished.

Tony Roche, of Australia, who bowed to Laver in Wimbledon's inaugural open in 1968, is second seeded and Tom Okker of Holland third. Ken Rosewall, who lost to Laver in the final of the French open, is placed fourth.

U.S. Open champion Arthur Ashe is slotted fifth. Ashe, who whipped Okker in the U.S. final, has been having his troubles on the European circuit, but is dangerous on grass.

The honor of the top spot among the women did not go to the defending champion, Mrs. Billie Jean King of Long Beach. Mrs. King, who will be seeking her fourth consecutive Wimbledon title, has been placed a notch below Mrs. Margaret Smith Court of Australia.

Mrs. Court, too, is seeking a grand slam. Like Laver, she won the championships of Australia and France. Prior to her marriage, she won at Wimbledon in 1963, defeating Billie Jean in the final and again in 1956 over Maria Bueno.

Only three Americans other than Billie Jean and Ashe are in the top 10 seeds. Davis Cup star Clark Graebner of New York was placed seventh, and Nancy Richey of San Angelo, Tex.and Julie Heldman of New York are fifth and seventh, respectively, in women's listing.

Two Rec Softball Teams Triumph

The Hurricanes and Marin Supply were winners in a pair of C-II division games in San Rafael Recreation Department softball play at Albert Field yesterday.

The Hurricanes stopped the Refectory, 8-4 and Marin Supply trounced the Post Office, 16-5.

San Jose Remains In Meet

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The NCAA charged yesterday that nine schools violated track rules by allowing athletes to participate in uncertified meets. But San Jose State and Louisiana State — two of the schools involved — said they plan to compete in the NCAA track and field championships anyway.

FAVORED

San Jose State, triggered by controversial sprinter John Carlos and Olympic champion Lee Evans, is one of the favorites for the team title in the NCAA meet that starts tomorrow on the Tennessee track. Louisiana State has entered Al Coffey, who has the nation's fastest time in the 440 this spring with a 45.6 clocking.

"I have every confidence that we will compete," said Robert Bronzan, athletic director of San Jose State.

"Coffey will run as scheduled," Carl Maddox, athletic director of Louisiana, said from Baton Rouge.

UCLA

Officials at UCLA, another team listed among the violators by the NCAA, were not available for comment but meet officials expect the Los Angeles school to compete.

Other schools that had athletes in uncertified meets last Saturday, the NCAA said, were Southern Methodist, Baylor, Prairie View, A&M, University of California at Santa Barbara, Northeast Louisiana and Texas Southern.

Marichal Heads For Doctor's Office

Juan Complains Of Cold, But Reds Think He's Hot

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—One way to muffle the awesome Cincinnati Reds' batting attack is to throw Juan Marichal against it—even when the San Francisco Giants' ace is ailing.

Marichal, suffering from a severe cold he caught in Montreal two weeks ago, shackled the Reds, 4-0, on five hits last night, notched his 40th career shutout and improved his record to 8-2.

SADECKI

The Giants sent Ray Sadecki, 3-5, against the Reds' Jim Merritt, 6-3, today.

Reds' Manager Dave Bristol sat on his clubhouse step stool in disbelief after the game. The Reds have yet to defeat Marichal since he took over as skipper in 1966. The great righthander has won nine straight over the Reds since Sept. 22, 1965.

"I should be in the hospital," declared Marichal. "I think I had a temperature today, so I'm going to the doctor for a checkup."

Marichal's third shutout of the season lowered his earned run average to 2.08.

SLUGGERS

Cincinnati entered the game with a .287 team batting average and four batters above .332. They hadn't been effectively smothered since the Phillies' Rick Wise hurled a five-hit shutout May 15 winning 7-0.

"This shutout should make Marichal feel a lot better," offered defending National League batting champion Pete Rose, who entered the game batting .308.

"My screwball was working real well," added Marichal, who struck out eight.

"I don't know how he throws that pitch — I couldn't follow the spin," said Rose, who struck out twice.

'MASTER'

"Marichal is just a great control pitcher who's a master of every pitch," explained Bristol. "That screwball seems to just fall off his fingers—as if he's pulling a yo-yo."

Ron Hunt and Dick Dietz each had two runs batted in for the Giants. Dietz walked with the bases loaded off loser George Culver, 4-5, in the first and belted a run-scoring double off reliever Pedro Ramos in the seventh.

Hunt, on a tear since returning to the lineup, cracked a two-run double in the fourth. The scrappy second baseman also doubled in the eighth. In the seven games since his return, Hunt has reached base 19 times and scored eight runs.

'YOU BET'

"You bet I'm happy to be back," he said. "I'm trying real hard to keep the job. For awhile I felt I might be traded, but things worked out.

"I think my problem earlier this year was having too good a spring—I probably got overconfident when the season started," Hunt added.

Profitable Day Off For A's

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Oakland Athletics took over the American League Western Division lead and got a much-needed day of rest yesterday.

They took over the lead because Minnesota lost to the division's cellar team, California, and fell a half-game off the pace.

RAINED OUT

The A's got an unscheduled day of rest because their game with Kansas City was rained out. It will be played this evening as part of a twi-night double header.

A day of rest was what the Athletics and Royals needed too after a Monday doubleheader that totaled 25 innings.

The A's won the first game of the marathon 7-5 in 13 innings. The Royals came back in the second with a 3-2, 12-inning victory.

Chuck Dobson, 6-5, and John Odom, 8-3, are slated for Oakland mound chores today. Kansas City will use Jim Rooker, 0-3, and Dick Drago, 3-5.

While nothing was happening on the playing field yesterday, there was some business office activity for the Athletics.

Carl Finley, cousin of owner Charles O. Finely, confirmed he has resigned as A's business manager.

He said he submitted his resignation in mid-April and will open his own public relations, advertising and marketing firm in Oakland.

NOT UNHAPPY

"My decision was not reached out of any unhappiness with Charlie," he said. "My experience with Charlie has always been very congenial, and I can only praise his efforts to acquire first-quality players and to produce a winning baseball team."

He has been with the Athletics front office longer than any — 6½ years.

Can 'Moo Cow' Spark Oakland To Pennant?

OAKLAND—We journalistic geniuses who watch the A's with regularity had doped it out to our sophisticated satisfaction. All that remained to happen was for Mister Finley to corroborate our wisdom.

There were these two very, very young outfielders, two Joes name of Rudi and Keough. The former was seemingly awkward, embarrassingly green afield. At the plate there loomed a potential for power but a halting swing. Keough, on the other hand, stroked smoothly at the dish and handled himself with grace and aplomb out there in the pasture.

BOTH WERE sort of local boys — Rudi from Modesto, both as a resident and California Leaguer, and Keough from Lafayette, just over the hills from the Oakland Coliseum. So there was a press box hope back there in late 1968 that these local kids would make good the following season. Alas, we knew it could never be. Keough yes, but Rudi not for a long time. In our hearts, we knew we were right.

Thus there was massive amazement on our part when Finley let Keough slip away to K.C. in the expansion draft — and kept Rudi. Oh well, France had given Jefferson the Louisiana Territory and the world survived.

OUR JUDGMENT was temporarily upheld when Keough led the Royals in batting in spring training and Rudi was sent down by the A's to Iowa. Humph, we humphed; and continued to snicker with pompous self-satisfaction as Keough slammed at a near .400 pace for the first three weeks of the season.

But suddenly the Great Commissioner in The Sky ordered the air let out of our balloons. Humble them, the thunder demanded. And in the sealed orders that followed, Keough was reduced to futility — and farmed to Omaha — while Rudi demolished the American Assn.

IN JUST over a month, Rudi hit .395 and drove in 56 runs. Had he stayed in Des Moines the entire season, Joe could have become the most potent minor leaguer since Steve Bilko, or even Rocky Nelson. Not to mention Lou Novikoff.

The Oakland brain trust had Rudi playing at first in Iowa, the thought being he might eventually serve the big club as a backup man to Danny Cater — and suffer less fielding embarrassment at the initial ottoman than in left. Also, the A's seemed secure — sort of — in leftfielders with Tommy Reynolds and Mike Hershberger. And the way Cater was hitting, it was unlikely there'd be a need to call up Joe at all in 1969.

BUT REASON IS not the way of baseball. Reynolds was hot and cold; Hershy, who's probably the highest-paid player on the A's, never did hit satisfactorily, and Cater lost 40 points on his batting average in three weeks.

Enter Joe Rudi, whom his teammates call "Moo Cow." Why. "Because he looks like a cow," says Rick Monday.

JOE STARTED in left in Washington during the current road trip and tripled home a run his first time at bat. Three nights later in Boston he made a couple of marvelous defensive plays—yes, in left—that saved an Oakland win. And Rudi was hitting the ball well, although not for average. Best of all, the A's were winning and, for a while, back in first place.

Can this 22-year-old lad with the large ears and bovine eyes be a harbinger of a pennant year? Well . . .

WHEN HE was called up for a brief time last season, Joe was instantly inserted in left field. And on that very night in his first A's game in '68, Rudi watched Jim Hunter throw a perfect game.

Joe Keough wasn't even here for that.

A.L. ROUNDUP

Tigers Keep Winning; So Do Orioles

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

All of a sudden, the Detroit Tigers have regained their 1968 championship form. Only there's one little hitch. They're not making much of a dent in the red-hot Baltimore Orioles' 1969 championship form.

The Tigers polished off the New York Yankees 8-0 and 6-3 in a doubleheader last night to run their winning streak to seven straight and eight in 10 outings.

But, the Orioles also won again, turning back Washington 5-1 for their fifth straight and 11th in 13 games.

The net result is this: At the start of their current winning streak, the Tigers were in third place, 9½ games behind the Orioles.

ONLY ONE GAME

Seven victories later, they're still third, and they've gained only one game on the American League's East Division leaders.

The Tigers have a 34-23 season mark. At this point a year ago, Detroit was 37-20 and led the league by 4½ games.

The Orioles, meanwhile, have lost only 17 of 62 games this year, an amazing clip.

"They're playing .725 ball," said Tiger Manager Mayo Smith. "There's no way they can keep that up all the way. But we'll just have to keep on our own pace until we meet them. You can't do anything about them when you don't play them."

In other A.L. activity, California trounced Minnesota 13-1 and Cleveland whipped Boston 4-2. Oakland at Kansas City and Seattle's doubleheader at Chicago were rained out.

SIX-HITTER

John Hiller checked New York on six hits in the opener, then Dick McAuliffe smashed a three-run homer and Ike Brown made his first major league hit a homer as the Tigers completed the sweep.

"I was kind of shaken," said Brown of his two-run shot off Mike Kekich in the fourth. "I guess everyone is when he gets into his first major league game."

Brown, a veteran of eight years in the minors, was called up only Monday from the Tigers' Toledo farm club.

Left-hander Mickey Lolich picked up his seventh victory in eight decisions in the nightcap, although he needed some help from Don McMahon after the Yankees pushed across three runs in the eighth.

Mike Cuellar, 7-5, stopped Washington on four hits, striking out 12 and walking only three.

BIG HITS

Paul Blair had a pair of doubles, driving in one run, and Dave Johnson homered and had two singles to pace the Orioles.

Andy Messersmith hurled a three-hitter and Rick Reichardt and Bill Voss backed him with homers as California knocked the Twins out of the West Division lead.

The Twins, who took the top spot on Monday night, trail idle Oakland by only .002 percentage points.

AN EDGE FOR THE GOP

Former major league baseball pitcher Wilmer "Vinegar Bend" Mizell, now a Republican Congressman from North Carolina, pitched during the annual Congressional Baseball game at Robert F. Kennedy Stadium last night, giving the GOP a distinct professional edge. Mizell pitched two scoreless innings as the Republicans beat the Democrats, 7-2, for their seventh straight win. Mets Play 4-Man Outfield Game Against Phil's Allen

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Four outfielders didn't keep Richie Allen from going for the home run, and three outfielders certainly weren't going to stop Hank Aaron from doing the same. So how could the Chicago Cubs expect to keep Richie Hebner from hitting singles?

The Cubs tried the commonplace defense of four infielders and three outfielders against Hebner and failed miserably—twice—when the Pittsburgh rookie singled in the winning runs in both games yesterday as the Pirates swept the Cubs 1-0 and 4-3 in a twi-night twinbill.

IMAGINATIVE

The New York Mets were most imaginative with four outfielders against Allen in the ninth inning of their opener against Philadelphia. And while the strategy had little effect on Allen, he did strike out going for a tying homer and the Mets won 1-0, and then dropped the nightcap 6-3.

Houston probably wishes it had tried the unusual defense against Aaron. It couldn't have done any harm because Aaron hammered a homer in the ninth inning to give Atlanta a 6-5 victory over the Astros.

In other National League games, nothing could stop Los Angeles as the Dodgers swept San Diego 7-3 and 11-0, Juan Marichal pitched San Francisco by Cincinnati 4-0 and St. Louis tripped Montreal 2-0 behind Steve Carlton and Joe Hoerner.

.319 MARK

Hebner, one of the surprises of the league with a .319 average, has only three home runs among his 67 hits, but singles were enough to drop the West Division leading Cubs twice.

After Matty Alou, the league's leading hitter, doubled in the seventh inning of the opener against loser Ferguson Jenkins, 8-4, Hebner decided the contest with a run-scoring single.

Bob Veale, 4-7, relieved by Bruce Dal Canton in the eighth, got the victory.

Then, in the ninth inning of the nightcap, Hebner rubbed salt in the Chicago wound when the Cubs walked Alou intentionally to fill the bases and Hebner delivered another single to break a 3-3 deadlock.

His other hit, another single, came when the Pirates tied the game with two runs in the eighth inning, undoing the damage caused by Chicago homers by Don Kessinger, Willie Smith and Billy Williams in the third inning for a 3-1 lead.

THREE PITCHES

Another rookie, Gary Gentry, 6-5, of the Mets, proved more effective than Manager Gil Hodges' strategy as he stopped the Phillies' five-game winning streak with a two-hitter. When Hodges chose to move second baseman Al Weis into the outfield with two out and none on in the ninth and the slugging Allen at bat, Gentry responded by striking out Allen on three pitches.

Ken Boswell's single, a balk and J.C. Martin's single in the seventh inning beat rookie Billy Champion, 1-2, who gave only four hits in eight innings.

Hodges, following the same strategy Cincinnati tried against San Francisco'w Willie McCovey Monday, explained that he wanted to keep Allen from getting an extra base hit. And Allen called it "a darn smart move," but admitted he still was up there going for it (a home run)."

Oddly, Allen homered his first time up in the second game and rookie Larry Hisle hit two behind Grant Jackson's six-hitter as the Phillies salvaged a split.

18TH CLOUT

Houston, in contrast, stuck with three outfielders and Aaron led off the ninth of a 5-5 game with his 18th homer for the Braves' fourth consecutive victory.

Andy Kosco capped a seven-run seventh inning for Los Angeles in the opener with a two-run homer and the Dodgers erupted for six runs, three on Willie Crawford's homer, in the fourth inning of the nightcap. Kosco also drove in three runs in the second game as Alan Foster, 2-4, scattered seven hits and extended his scoreless string to 21 innings.

COMBINED AP & UPI

LONDON —Denise Carter of Los Altos and U.S. Davis Cupper Charles Pasarell of Santurce, P.R., took advantage of the opportunity to play on a hardwood floor and advanced to the final 16 of the London Grass Court tennis championships.

When rain forced play indoors, Miss Carter, the 18-year-old U.S. junior hardcourt champion, quickly disposed of Australian Kerry Melville, 6-2, 6-0, and Pasarell defeated 1953 Wimbledon champion Vic Seixes of Philadelphia, 6-3, 3-6, 6-1.

The only other American victories were by Earl Buchholz of St. Louis, Mo., Stephanie Grant of Beverly Hills and Torny Ann Fretz of Los Angeles. Buchholz defeated South Africa's Bob Maud, 6-2, 8-6, and Miss Fretz downed England's Shirley Brasher, 7-5, 6-2 and Miss Grant beat England's Alex Soady, 6-2, 7-5.

Banner Waterfowl Season Predicted For Cal Hunters

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Duck hunting could be on the upswing in California this year. Reasons: More water; more ducks.

JUNE 18, 1929
BILL TERRY OF THE GIANTS HAD NINE HITS IN ONE DAY AGAINST THE DODGERS... BUT NEW YORK LOST TWICE AT BROOKLYN, 8-7 AND 7-6. THAT SEASON TERRY BATTED .372.

So far the 1960's have been frustrating for waterfowl shooters. But now U.S. Department of the Interior, long noted for its pessimism over the future of ducks, believes this could be a banner year.

A recently completed aerial survey by pilot - biologists showed heavy rains have left an abundant water supply in just about every area of North America where ducks and geese breed in quantity. Large populations of the birds also were noted.

"This could be an excellent production year," said Dr. Leslie L. Glasgow, Assistant Secretary of the Interior for Fish and Wildlife, Parks and Marine Resources. Dr. Glasgow could have much to say about the number of shooting days and bag limits which will be allowed this fall.

EARLY NESTING

A uniformly early season of favorable weather has set in after one of the wettest, snowiest northern winters in recent years. This makes it possible for massive early nesting in the areas of the key Canadian prairie provinces which have been drought stricken for nearly 10 years.

Of special interest to California hunters is news that Alberta, which normally funnels the bulk of its ducks into the Pacific Flyway, boasts so much water and so many ducks the census takers are having a tough time making an accurate tally. Alberta ducks generally migrate through the Sacramento and San Joaquin Delta regions.

Additional aerial surveys and brook counts will be needed before the Department of the Interior sets fall duck hunting regulations during August.

But this week, the Federal authorities did put out their first optimistic duck forecast since the late 1950's when ducks were so plentiful that California shooters were granted 105 days of hunting with a daily bag and possession limit of 10 birds.

Moody Late Arrival For Kemper

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP) — For the first time in his career, Orville Moody is ranked as one of the prime contenders for a pro golf crown.

The tough, stocky former Army sergeant who made last week's United States Open—the world's most prestigious title—his first tour victory, was one of the late arrivals for the $150,000 Kemper Open.

NO PRACTICE

The long-shot Open champion didn't get in from Texas in time to take a practice round on the long, lush Quail Hollow Country Club course, a rolling, 7,205 yard, par 72 layout.

But the ruddy-faced guy, a 14 - year Army veteran who came on the tour less than two years ago, was scheduled to participate in today's pro-am event that precedes tomorrow's start of the 72-hole event.

Among the missing in the chase for the $30,000 top prize are Jack Nicklaus and Billy Casper, who finished well back in the national championship, Gene Littler, who missed the cut for the final two rounds of the Open, and Miller Barber, the third round leader who blew to a 78 in the final round.

PALMER'S HERE

Besides Moody, other late arrivals included Arnold Palmer, the struggling dynamo whose last victory was in the Kemper last year, when it was played in New England, and Lee Trevino, the deposed Open champ who is bothered by an aching left knee.

Both Palmer and Trevino rank high among the challengers, along with Deane Beman, the little man from Bethesda, Md., who finished in a tie for second at the Open, gangling Masters champ George Archer and 49-year-old Julius Boros, the PGA titleholder.

"It's a very long course," the short-hitting Beman said. "But it should be a great test of golf.

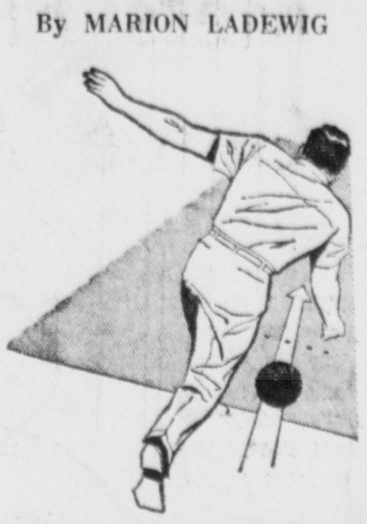
BOWLING TIPS

By MARION LADEWIG



Even beginning bowlers will usually do better if they adopt the spot system quickly, merely because it shortens their target distance. In the spot system you merely select the arrow some 15 feet out on the lane over which your ball rolls when it travels to the pocket. When you've found this arrow (or the board nearest it), that becomes your target instead of the pins some 60 feet away.

AT SEARS

Continental Drivers Chase Posey

The season point standings in the Sports Car Club of America's Continental Championships Series may undergo an overhaul after the noise dies down at Sears Point International Race in Sonoma County this weekend.

All top eight drivers in the point standings for the Formula A racers will be on hand for the fourth race in the series, a 49-lap, 123.6-mile test set for Sunday. Qualifying and Formula B and C races Saturday and Sunday will supplement the main event.

With nine points going to the winner of this race, 24-year-old Sam Posey of Sharon, Conn., could be deposed as current leader. He's now on top with 15 points but at least four other drivers have a shot at vaulting into the lead.

Closest is George Wintersteen, currently the runnerup with 11 points. Wintersteen, of Villanova, Pa., is last year's Formula A champion and is a consistent "in the money" driver.

CANNON TIED

In a third place tie are John Cannon, the former Canadian now living in Los Angeles, and Rich Simons of Salt Lake City, Utah, each with nine points.

Lothar Motschenbacher, veteran driver from Beverly Hills, is next with seven points.

Rounding out the top eight are Chuck Dietrich of Sandusky, Ohio, 1967 Formula B champion; Bud Morley of Denver, Colo., in his second year of Formula A racing, and Tony Adamowitz of New Jersey, each with four points.

The front-runners in the Continental series will be shooting for first-place prize money of $2,500 plus contingency and lap money.

MARIN COUNTY GOLF NOTES

Junior League In Full Swing

Two Marin County golf clubs are represented in the Bay Cities League of Junior Golfers, a league which has expanded from six to twelve teams during its three years of existence.

Meadow Club of Fairfax and Marin Country Club of Novato are in the league this year, with boys aged 12 through 20 getting in on the action.

"The league gives the 19 and 20-year-olders something to do," explains Bill Carewe of Meadow Club, head of the Fairfax team and an officer in the league.

TWO DIVISIONS

Growth of the league has forced it to split into two divisions of six teams each. Along with the two Marin teams in one division are Green Hills of Millbrae, Palo Alto Hills, Peninsula Club of San Mateo and Stanford Golf Club.

Marin Country Club's team has had two matches so far this season, losing twice to Peninsula Club, 30-6 the first time and then 24-12 in a rematch last Saturday on the Novato course. Meadow Club hasn't played any matches yet.

GAIN EXPERIENCE

Although there are 33 players on the Meadow Club team, only eight compete in the tourney championships, the others playing for the experience. Among the top players are Dave Basham, brothers George, Art and Ed Carewe, Bill Donaldson, Nip Grey, Steve Hartman, Tom Schaal, Jim Wilhelm and Jeb Harrison.

There are 16 players on the Marin C.C. team, led by Mike Ahern, Brian Telford, Greg Davenport, brothers Bob and Paul Sherry, Chuck Raznakov, brothers Dick and Jeff Lesieur Richard Taylor.

FOUR MARIN County golfers will be trying their hand in championship flight of the 58th annual California State Amateur championships at Cypress Point and Pebble Beach golf courses.

Mat Palacio Jr. of San Rafael, winner of this tournament in 1936, will be trying to bring back the good old days. Other Marin golfers who will be in the qualifying rounds next Monday and Tuesday include Buzz Beattie Jr. of Ross, Kai Thomsen of Novato, and Joseph Thurston of Mill Valley. Beattie is a two-handicapper, the other three carry handicaps of four strokes.

WITH VISIONS of Public Links championships in their heads, 10 Marin County golfers will be trying for four vacant spots alloted to the greater Bay Area for the 44th U.S. Amateur Public Links Championship scheduled July 9-12.

Teeing off at the Harding Park course in San Francisco Saturday, among 121 hopefuls, will be Jerry Santiago, George Greenwood, Mike Doris and Doug Francisco of San Rafael, Robert Shultz of Novato, Russ Adams of Kentfield, James Brown of San Geronimo, Kevin Hogan and David Haberlin of Mill Valley, and George Ambrosio of Forest Knolls. Adams is 1968 winner of the Marin County Tournament of Champions, representing Mill Valley Golf Club.

CONGRATULATIONS to Mrs. John Siebler of Novato for the hole-in-one she shot last week at Las Gallinas course north of San Rafael.

MARIO COLOMBO of San Rafael is an early entrant in the annual Nugget Golf Classic at Sparks, Nev., a 54-holer set June 23-26.

TWO MARIN COUNTY high school golfers will be playing in the Pro-Youth Golf Classic's California state finals next month in San Luis Obispo after qualifying at Napa's Silverado North course last weekend.

They are Kelly Wolfe, 17, of San Rafael High, and Arthur Cudworth III, 16, of Terra Linda High. With scores of 79 and 84 respectively, they were among 19 Northern California juniors who qualified for the state playoffs.

The three lowest qualifiers at San Luis Obispo will proceed to the nationals in Detroit Aug. 6-10 where they will be teamed with touring professionals.

The national tournament is sponsored by Independent Insurance Agents Association of America.

ALMANAC

Today is Wednesday, June 18, the 169th day of 1969 with 196 to follow.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus and Saturn. The evening stars are Mars and Jupiter.

On this day in history:

In 1812 the United States declared war on Britain for the second time in history.

In 1815 Napolean was defeated at the Battle of Waterloo.

In 1935 Adolf Hitler signed a treaty with Britain, promising not to expand the German Navy beyond 35 per cent of the Royal navy.

In 1953 Egypt was proclaimed a republic by the Army Council of the Revolution.

A thought for the day: Walter Pater said, "To know when one's self is interested is the first condition of interesting other people."

Tiburon Plans City Hall Fete

The City of Tiburon will hold an open house at its newly renovated city hall at 7:30 p.m. Monday to commemorate the fifth anniversary of the city's incorporation.

The city council will hold a brief business meeting at 8 p.m. followed by a cocktail party at the Dock Restaurant at 8:30 p.m.

Past and present council and commission members and other city officials will be at the open house and cocktail party to greet visitors.

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Remember The Lowest Trump Is A Most Important Tool

When you played your first hand of bridge somebody surely told you that even the lowest trump can win a trick from a side suit. Since we all need to be reminded now and then of first principles, perhaps this column will remind you of a good way to get proper mileage out of your trumps.

RUFFS HEART

South ruffed the first heart, led a trump to the ace and returned a trump to win a finesse with the jack. Declarer then drew the queen of trumps with his king.

South next led a diamond, losing dummy's queen to the ace. Back came a heart, and South had to ruff with his last trump. Now when the diamonds and clubs both failed to break, South could win only five trumps, one diamond and three clubs. Down one.

ABANDON TRUMPS

South should have remembered that dummy's five of trumps could win a heart trick — but only if declarer left one trump in the dummy. After drawing just two rounds of trumps (with the ace and the jack), South should have abandoned trumps. He should have switched at once to diamonds, losing dummy's queen to the ace.

East would return a heart, of course, and South should discard a diamond instead of ruffing. This would allow the defenders to take their second trick with the ace of hearts. If West continued with a heart, dummy could then stop the suit with the lowly five of trumps, allowing South to keep both of his own trumps. If West led anything else, South would have an easier time.

CAN REGAIN

Regardless of the defense, South could regain the lead, draw the queen of trumps and still have the eight of trumps to keep control. He could then cash the king of diamonds, give up a diamond and ruff the heart return with the eight of trumps to run the rest of the diamonds in safety.

DAILY QUESTION

Dealer, at your left, opens with one diamond. Your partner bids one heart, and the next player bids two clubs.

You hold:

♠—Q 10 4
♥—J 10 7 3 2
♦—A J 9
♣—10 9.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid four hearts if the vulnerability is equal or if only the opponents are vulnerable.

If only your side is vulnerable, jump to three hearts. When you have exceptional length in your partner's suit, bid as much as you safely can (and perhaps a bit more) and bid it without waiting. You may shut the opponents out of their best suit or induce them to sacrifice against a game that you were not going to make.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Ashland Oil Is In Three Hot Spots

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I would like your opinion on King Resources and Home Oil. I attended a sumposium where these two companies were enthusiastically talked up. Since this investment would be toward retirement in 10 years, it is important that I choose strong growth stocks. — J. B.

A. You've mentioned an industry that is ideally suited to your purposes. However, Home Oil has had a sharp run-up on the anticipated outcome of the well it is drilling on the North Slope. If the well hits, shares will move higher, but at current price level shares are too volatile for you.

HOLDINGS

I would certainly favor King Resources for long-term growth purchases. The company holds 29 million gross acres, or 15 per cent of the Arctic's Sverdrup Basin, making it the second largest landholder in the "high Arctic."

Additional holdings include 2.5 million acres of sulphur leases in and around the Arctic Islands and a good number of leasehold blocks on the Alaskan North Slope. Share earnings of $2.06 in 1968 could readily double this year, making the shares reasonably priced on the basis of the earnings multiple.

In place of Home Oil, Ashland Oil, with holdings in three of the world's petroleum "hot spots," looks promising. Through a 75 per cent interest in Circle Oil, Ashland will participate in a 4 to 5 well-drilling program in Libya this year.

In Indonesia, Ashland has ⅓ interest in a 37-million acre offshore tract adjacent to the Natomas discovery. Drilling on this property by Reading & Bates is scheduled to begin later this year.

On the Alaskan North Slpe, Ashland has a 22.5 percnet interest in an exploration program with Hamilton Brothers. A well-regarded refiner and marketer, zAshland stands to reap substantial supplies of crude petroleum if any or all of its drilling ventures hit pay dirt.

Earnings could reach $2.65 a share this year, up from $2.2 in 1968. A modest dividend adds to the appeal of the shares.

Sylvester Inc. Is Purchased

SAN LEANDRO (BW) — Pacific Growers, Inc., San Leandro-based distributor of Nulaid Eggs, has purchased Sylvester Dairies, Inc., San Francisco-headquartered distributor of eggs, butter, cheese and other dairy products.

The announcement was made jointly by Harry Trembath, executive vice president and general manager of Pacific Growers, and Sidney B. Weil, president of Sylvester.

They said Sylvester dairies will continue to operate as a wholly owned subsidiary under Weil and plans to diversify its product line are expected to be announced later.

GETTING ON TOP OF IT ALL

Open top vehicle above, looking like a miniature street sweeper, is an air-cushion auto-boat that rides four to six inches above the surface. It can reach 40 m.p.h. over land and 30 m.p.h. over water. It was developed by the Cushionflight Corp. of Sunnymead—and currently is illegal on public thoroughfares. (It doesn't have the minimum two wheels required by law). (Esquire photo)

Court Says CAB Must Investigate

BOSTON (UPI) — The Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) must investigate family fare plans offered by 29 airlines, the U.S. Court of Appeals has ordered.

The fare permits an adult at full-fare to bring along members of his family at reduced rates, often half-fare.

Transcontinental Bus Systems Inc. and Trailways of New England, a subsidiary, had contended the fares were discriminatory, unjust and unreasonable, and has asked the CAB to investigate. The CAB dismissed the petition.

Chief Judge Bailey Aldrich said in his decision the CAB ought to have held a hearing.

The decision said, "the board's compilation of reasons amount to little more than generalizations of principles, unsupported by underlying facts warranting either their invocation or their applicability to the apparent discriminatory aspects of the family fare."

Rate Review

WASHINGTON (UPI) — America Telephone & Telegraph Co. has asked the Federal Communications Commission for a rate review starting in July with a view to raising interstate rates.

Stocks Finish Down Again As Early Rally Evaporates

NEW YORK (UPI)—An early stock market rally evaporated today and prices closed irregularly lower in moderately active trading.

The initial upswing seemed to reflect House Ways and Means Committee approval of the surtax extension and the possibility of additional troop withdrawals from Vietnam. But the tight money situation, which has pressured the list for about a month, continued to disturb traders.

Electronics showed scattered strength, although several issues came down from their day's highs.

Rails were mixed after some early firmness. Airlines and aircrafts also traded in both directions and generally in narrow ranges.

Steels, motors and chemicals moved in fractions and without definite direction.

Oils worked lower, with Atlantic Richfield and Superior among the point-plus losers. The latter fell more than 4 yesterday.

Among the most active issues were Studebaker-Worthington Preferred A, Thiokol Chemical, FMC Corp., City Investing, Gulf Oil, and Mobil Oil.

Illinois Center

NEW YORK (UPI) — Atlantic Richfield Co. will establish a product research center at the former research center of Sinclair Oil Corp. at Harvey, Ill., and an enlarged chemicals research center at Philadelphia.

First DC-8-62 Is Delivered

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — The first of 10 super long-range jetliners capable of flying nonstop from New York to Honolulu has been delivered to United Air Lines by the McDonnell Douglas Corp.

The plane, called the DC-8-62, was turned over to technicians at United's San Francisco engineering and maintenance base for pre-service checks prior to being placed in operation later this month.

The huge craft is designed to carry 147 passengers and 13,720 pounds of cargo at speeds up to 550 miles an hour.

Golden Nugget To Buy Casino

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The Golden Nugget said it has completed negotiations to buy another downtown casino, the Nevada Club.

Golden Nugget President G.C. "Buck" Blain, said the Nevada Club was closed Monday and will reopen July 1 as an annex to the Golden Nugget. No purchase price was announced.

"We didn't buy a successful business," Blain said. "It was nothing as far as its operation is concerned."

New Soviet Jet May Land In U.S.

MOSCOW (UPI)—The first supersonic jetliner to land in the United States may wear the hammer-and-sickle insignia of the Soviet Union.

Alexander V. Bessedin, chief of the international division of the Soviet Ministry of Civil Aviation told United Press International it was "quite possible" the Kremlin might decide to use its supersonic jetliner on the Moscow-New York route.

The only competition for the Soviet TU144 supersonic jetliner is the British-French Concorde. The United States is in third place, and even its hold on that is shaky.

Both the TU144 and the Concorde already are being flight tested. But the U.S. SST still is held fast on a drawing board waiting for President Richard M. Nixon to decide whether he should ask Congress to finance the construction of two prototypes.

In Moscow, billboards around the city boast that the TU144 will be ready for the ticket-buying public by 1971. Bessedin also said Russia does not expect to keep the TU144 to itself. He said the Soviets hope to sell the plane on the world market in competition with the Concorde.

Despite the outward ballyhoo, the United States was never really in the running to be "first" with a supersonic airliner. But if it does decide to build its planned version of an SST, the plane will be bigger and faster than both the Soviet and the British-French jetliners.

The Soviet TU144 and the Concorde are not unalike. The delta-winged Soviet jetliner will carry 120 passengers at speeds of up to 1,500 miles an hour.

It was the first to get off the ground—making its test flight in December 1968. Earlier this year, a TU144 was reported to have crashed during a test. The Kremlin officially denied this, however.

The needle-nosed plane is powered with four jet engines slung under the fuselage and it is expected to operate at altitudes of up to 65,000 feet.

The Concorde is longer—190 feet compared to 180 for the TU144—but its top speed is 100 miles an hour less than the Tu144. Each plane will carry about the same number of passengers, 120.

The planned American SST is on a much bigger scale. Its top speed is 1,800 miles an hour. It will carry 300 passengers, but it is not expected to be delivered to the airlines until 1976, or even later.

Nixon is expected to make up his mind shortly on the SST. If he decides to go ahead with it, Congress may be asked to appropriate $250 million to start the prototype construction—a move that is certain to touch off a battle with the economy-minded Congress.

Nixon, however, has other alternatives. He can postpone the prototype construction, he can scrap the project, or he may endorse a new financing program for the plane.

One idea gaining support is to finance the SST through the sale of government-guaranteed bonds on the open market.

Even though this would avoid asking Congress for more funds, critics say that if the plane turned out to be a failure, the government would lose more money than it would under the current government-industry cost sharing formula.

Guilty Plea To Two Charges

Rudolph Anthony Del Sol, 26, of San Francisco pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to misdemeanor charges of being drunk in a public place and being in a place where drugs were being used.

He had originally been charged with a felony count of possessing dangerous drugs.

Judge Peter Allen Smith set sentencing for July 11.

Talks Halt In Nurses Strike

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Negotiations between nurses and five Bay Area Hospitals ended yesterday with no signs of progress in settling the walkout.

State conciliator James Marshall said he would call the disputing parties together again today in an effort to solve the strike which started last Thursday.

Spokesmen at the hospitals involved said the situation has remained almost the same. Services are cut sharply at St. Francis and French hospitals in San Francisco and at Children's Hospital in Oakland. Meanwhile, Alameda Hospital in Alameda and Herrick Hospital in Berkeley said they are slightly affected.

The nurses are striking for more authority in patient care and higher wages.

Black American Jews Attempt To Begin New Life In Liberia

By ARNOLD ZEITLIN

MONROVIA, Liberia (AP) — Black American Jews have made their impact on the Liberian scene since settling in this West African republic seeking a homeland. But they say the going is so rough they try to charge foreign newsmen $500 an interview.

"We are trying to make it, man, but it's rough with all this austerity here," said James Greer, 45, of Chicago, who calls himself Ben Yaakov. He is a leader of the band of American blacks who adopted Judaism, dubbed themselves Hebrew Israelites and moved to Liberia at the end of 1967.

Wearing a green paisley skullcap, Green explained the interview price list in one of his group's enterprises, Mesada Tova, a snack bar. Its name means "good restaurant."

A sign outside advertises "soul chicken."

Fried chicken is sold also in another Israelite shop in Gbargna, a bush crossroads about 100 miles north of Monrovia.

You can buy lemon-flavored "slush" in the American-style custard ice cream parlor the black Jews have opened here in the same building containing the Bureau of Immigration and Naturalization.

The nearness to the bureau is coincidental but symbolic.

The Hebrew Israelites have made a major impact on immigration policy in this country founded 153 years ago by freed slaves from America.

Liberia has a law allowing entry to all Negroes. But the Israelites probably would not make it en masse as they did in 1967 if they tried it today.

"Some day it will be all right for more to come," said lawyer J. Newton Garnet, secretary of the board of immigration President William V. S. Tubman named to handle the black Jews. "But we have to have a budget to take care of these people. The president hasn't given us a budget yet."

Edward Sumo Jones, the immigration commissioner, said the first batch of 159, including 78 adults, were in Liberia three weeks before the government discovered them.

By then they had hacked out a camp in a forest near a crossroads called Gbatala. The camp still exists run by the few who knew anything about farming. Most of the others were semiskilled laborers and artisans. Garnet said about two-thirds of the immigrants have drifted back to Monrovia; in addition to operating food stores, they have formed a band called the Soul Messengers to make money. About 20 have returned to the United States, said Garnet, but some of them plan to come back to Liberia once they have learned a skill.

The Liberians put the immigrants up rent-free for three months in a large house used for paramount chiefs visiting the capital. They provided each adult with a $60 monthly allowance. Garnet estimated all this cost the government $12,000.

Under Liberian law the Israelites eventually can become citizens. Few have the skills listed as most desirable in the Liberian immigration act. These run from physician and druggist to "persons skilled in prison management."

But making do are such persons as a 22-year-old Chicagoan who now calls himself Ovedy Israel and runs the Mesada Tova. His wife and 8-month-old baby stay in Gbatala while he dishes out soft ice cream in Monrovia. His grandmother, who came with the group at the age of 72, died in the camp. "I don't have that much value in material things," said Israel, who will talk even if a newsman customer only buys a milk shake from him. He worked in a Hyde Park, Chicago, factory before moving from the United States.

"There's been too much emphasis on this black thing," he said. "I'm here because I have an easier time serving God the way I want to serve him."

College Pools To Open Daily

College of Marin's summer recreation program will begin Monday with the college pools open daily except Sunday from 1 to 6 p.m. and on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7 to 9.

The pools will be open for community use through Aug. 23.

Other recreational activities include badminton, golf, tennis, volleyball and men's and women's personal fitness and weight training.

Most of the classes, some offering half-unit college credits and others no credit, end Aug. 1.

One Million Expected At State Lakes

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — William Gianelli, state water resources director, has reported he expects recreational use of state water project facilities to pass the one-million visitor mark during the year for the first time.

The director said that he expects boaters, fishermen, and other recreational enthusiasts will use project reservoirs in excess of the 908,000 visitor-days recorded in 1968.

Gianelli said that efforts are being made to meet the demand for recreational facilities with construction scheduled for camping units, boat-launching ramps, picnic sites and sanitary facilities being readied.

State water project units providing such facilities are at Frenchman, Antelope, and Davis lakes in the Feather River watershed in Plumas County; Lake Oroville and Thermalito in Butte County, and O'Neill Forebay in Merced County. Also in Merced County are fishing sites along the California Aqueduct.

Recreational day use of the facilities are reported as Oroville and Thermalito, 288,000 recreation days; Frenchman Lake, 312,000 visitor days; Antelope and Davis lakes, 260,000 recreation days, and O'Neill Forebay, 67,000 visitor days.

Final Meeting For Trustees

At a final meeting Monday night, the West Marin School trustees authorized $6,900 in work for the school and turned a closing balance of approximately $40,000 over to the Shoreline Unified School District, said Supt. Howard F. Brose.

The work authorized putting air circulating machines into the administration, nurses and speech therapist offices; replacing four light fixtures; replacing tile in the original four classrooms and purchasing two tumbling mats and two sewing machines.

The board authorized a letter to the Shoreline district board asking continuance of programs at the school, Brose said.

The board then adjourned permanently, as the district will become a part of the Shoreline district July 1.

Teen Theater Sets Rehearsals

Junior Theater of Marin, sponsoring a new Teen Theater Workshop this summer, will start rehearsals Tuesday at the First Methodist Church in San Rafael.

Rehearsals will be held three times a week from 7 to 9 p.m., reported Mrs. Virginia DePue, president. All high school students in Marin interested in dramatics are welcome to join the workshop, she said.

The group, under the direction of Greg Norgaard of San Anselmo, will present its first production, "The Thurber Carnival," Aug. 8 and 9 at San Rafael High School auditorium.

Further details may be obtained by telephoning Mrs. Patricia Mills, vice president of Junior Theater, 120 McAllister Avenue, Kentfield or writing Box 92, Kentfield.

Deluge Of Obscenity Linked To Revolution

At a used book store in downtown San Rafael, you (or your child) may buy copies of various "underground newspapers" replete with tales of revolution couched in gutter language and illustrated with obscene cartoons and pornographic photos.

Posters stuck to the windows of stores ranging from record shops to corner groceries employ suggestively outre art to promote rock-and-roll dances and "happenings."

And in mail boxes, unsolicited, arrive illustrated advertisements for such books of "Dynamic Intercourse," described as "an illustrated book of 150 rare coital positions."

THIS DELUGE of obscenity has resulted in several bills in Congress making it a federal crime to use the mails to deliver erotic material to those under 18 years of age or to promote exploitation of a prurient interest in sex through advertising. President Richard M. Nixon has called for a "citizens' crusade against the obscene," and has urged that the proposed laws include penalties of up to five years in prison or $50,000 fine for the first offense and double penalties for repeaters.

Postmasters throughout the country have received complaints by the thousands of the mailing of unsolicited advertising filth.

THERE ARE LAWS on the books against use of the mails to distribute obscene material. There are laws in California against its display and sale, which were tightened by the legislature this week. Yet they seem to accomplish little.

Some years back, it was rather commonplace for the Post Office Department, on its own, to ban a publication from the mails for obscenity. A series of court challenges, however, gradually ate away the department's authority to act as censor.

At present, the Post Office Department merely accepts the names of those who want no such material sent them, and informs the senders. The only punishment for ignoring the warning is a contempt action.

The Post Office Department is loath to go farther because of uncertainty as to what the courts will hold is obscene. The U.S. Supreme Court's so-called Roth ruling of 1957 is supposed to be the guide. It held that the test for obscenity is "whether to the average person, applying contemporary community standards, the dominant theme of the material taken as a whole appeals to prurient interests." The trouble is that court decisions have differed widely as to what are "contemporary community standards."

Enforcement of local and state anti-obscenity laws has run up against similar difficulties, since the U.S. Supreme Court's findings are taken as guides by lower courts and are so contradictory as to be of little help.

THERE IS, MEANWHILE, an evident tie between purveyors of obscenity and fomentors of revolution.

The organizations dedicated to overthrowing the present system, including the Black Panthers, Students for a Democratic Society, Red Guards, etc., customarily mix obscenity with their political propaganda. The same "newspapers" that promote their causes devote major space to pornography and obscenity. The attack on the existing order thus becomes a gutter attack, and at the same time lax morals and perversion are made to appear as contributing somehow to "power of the people."

THERE APPEAR TO BE two approaches to the problem: Wait for tougher federal laws, such as those advocated by the President, or try prosecuting under the present laws, including the new state measures, in the hope of getting some court guidelines that will be usable.

We suggest the second.

AFFAIRS OF STATE

Old Turkey Struts Again As Deddeh Revives ARCOSS

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — One can always depend on "old turkeys," bills which have been relegated to the dirt heap for years on end, to come back to haunt the legislature and the tax-paying public.

One such bill is AB 1148, by Assemblyman Waldie P. Deddeh, D-Los Angeles, a measure designed to use the taxpayers' money for the benefit of teachers in no inconsiderable sum, by transferring retirement rights they have built up in other states to California.

THIS MEASURE, known as the ARCOSS bill, was passed by the legislature last year, and sent to Gov. Ronald Reagan, who promptly vetoed it.

Deddeh, himself at one time a teacher in another state, re-introduced the legislation this year, although the 1969 measure reflects some reductions from the demands of 1968. Deddeh said estimates of the costs to the tax-paying public are now set at more than $91 million over a 40-year period, whereas last year's measure called for $215 million over the same period.

He said the measure is a matter of equity to the teachers who have brought their training to California from out of state.

The measure would fix the retirement benefits of the new arrivals, as well as those already in the state who have had teaching experience in other states, on a par with California teachers who are under the State Teachers Retirement System.

THE ASSEMBLY Ways and Means Committee approved the bill and sent it to the floor for further action. Although it could pass the Assembly, it may have a rougher ride when and if it reaches the Senate.

This, and the fact that the administration is against the measure, may save it this year from reaching the governor again and forcing another veto.

The state Department of Finance has six reasons for wanting to kill the bill.

REPRESENTATIVES of the department say the measure would cause a horrendous cost impact on the teachers retirement system, which it claims already is under-funded.

Also, it would violate the concept that California taxpayers should pay only for teaching services rendered within the state. Picking up the bill for other states could be figured as a gift of public money, prohibited by the constitution.

The measure sets a precedent, the department says, for every other group of public employees to ask for the same treatment, which could endanger other retirement systems.

Liberals Paved Way For Hitler

Nora La Carte Sugarman's letter to the editor (June 4), to save America via Western Union messages missed a few points.

Hitler's road to power was paved by a permissive ultra-liberal republic who refused to suppress militant student organizations, militant black and brown uniformed organizations and periodicals advocating racial strife — all in the name of freedom of speech and a truly democratic society.

Her comparison of an unfortunate incident of released tear gas with planned poisoning of millions in Europe, Santa Rita Prison Farm with concentration camps seems far-fetched. Any National Guardsman stabbing innocent people is subject to thorough inquiry.

The middle class citizen will have to choose between revolutionary violence or the American way of checks and balances. Ours is still a government of laws, in spite of some alarmists.

Such 'Progress' Should Be Fought

Francis Auger, whose letter appeared in last Friday's (June 13) I-J, is to be congratulated for his honesty. His contemptuous reference to "the quaint woodsy effect of 19th century living in Marin" clearly exposes an attitude held (as indicated by their actions) but prudently left unexpressed by the dollar-hungry proponents of the NOW environment: smog, concrete, bulldozed hills, scarred woodlands, chain-link fences and shabby, crackerbox housing.

Unfortunately the "enlightened progress" to which Mr. Auger refers is too often used to justify the steady downgrading of our once-beautiful surroundings here as well as elsewhere. "Enlightened progress" is something to be fought at every turn. And if that should mean a restoration of some phases of 19th century Marin living, I'm just awfully sorry about that!

Would Bring Suit Over Bond Defeat

Tuesday's defeat by 2,910 voters of San Rafael Elementary School District's $2.1 million bond issue leaves me feeling sold down the river.

If 2,910 votes can dictate to my duly elected and appointed representatives on the school board that they shall not acquire property for present and future site development; keep safe and enhance buildings currently in operation; supply adequate staff, certificated as well as non-certificated, to provide a proper per pupil-teacher ratio, then I say, this appears to be representation without taxation —

Nowhere in the United States Constitution, I believe, does it say that there shall be a two-thirds majority vote to pass laws governing capital expenditures as vital to our economy and to our society as providing schools. In 1966, the voters of te State of California voted down an amendment to the state constitution to change the two-thirds vote requirement to a 60-40 ratio. A simple majority could have passed it. Either the voters were apathetic or they went to the polls not knowing what they were doing. . . .

I say that 3,865 woters who voted yes on Tuesday's bond issue should institute an immeidate taxpayers' suit against the California State Legislature. Either it changes an unfair and inequitable law, or let us take it to Washington, D.C., to let the United States Supreme Court decide.

MRS. ULRICH KRAMER
San Rafael.

(Editor's note: A challenge to the two-thirds requirement for passage of bond issues originating in Idaho is now on the tortuous route through the courts that may eventually bring it before the U.S. Supreme Court.)

Council Merely Discussing Pay

May I bring to your attention two errors in your reporting of the June 12 Sausalito budget meeting in the I-J of June 13.

First, Sausalito city councilmen did not indicate that we would put ourselves on the city payroll! We simply indicated that we would discuss salary at a future budget meeting.

Secondly, Councilman (A. R.) Imlay and myself were quoted as favoring a salary for the council. This is not the case. We merely agreed to discuss the matter.

Why Few Speak Out At Public Meetings

Many people legitimately wonder why so few people try to voice an opinion at city council meetings, school board meetings and other public meetings around the country. The main reason these people don't come out is because they know what can happen to them if they oppose or try to criticize anything as was evidenced at last night's (June 10) city council meeting in San Anselmo.

One woman in this town had the courage to write a letter — the purpose of which was simply to ask the council not to accept as mandates the recommendations of the town meeting as sometimes only a few people actually voted for these recommendations. The woman was treated as though she were on trial. One panel chairman who may have shared some light on the accuracy of the letter was conspiciously not there.

After hearing from the audience for a least an hour, three councilmen read statements which had been prepared ahead of time denying her complaints as untrue but failed to back up their statements with facts. Actually, portions of their statements sounded a little silly after the hearing.

The three councilmen, Anderson (the most vicious), Reed and Ragan lashed their personal attack on her with snide, sarcastic remarks which were completely uncalled for and a disgrace to this town . . .

If what these people intended was to stifle all opposition and criticism in our town, they may well have succeeded. There were others who had come to this meeting prepared to speak out but lost their nerve when they saw the treatment given this one woman. . .

Cities' Money Goes To U.S. While Urban Problems Multiply

By ROSCOE and GEOFFREY DRUMMOND

PITTSBURGH — Conditions in the cities are not bad, they are perilous and getting worse, because the cities are simply not doing much about it.

It's not that they don't want to. They just don't have the money because the federal government takes too much from them and gives back too little.

This is why another anguished plea for help comes from the U. S. Conference of Mayors, meeting here this week and representing every major city in the nation.

Its plea is valid. It can't afford to go unheeded. The cities are beginning to drown in a sea of unsolved social, racial and economic problems.

They have long been acute, but they are now at the point of being unmanagable.

Continued inability to cope with them is causing the urban crisis to mount and is plunging local governments into financial and political bankruptcy.

THE STATES and cities are not refusing to tax themselves. They have simply exhausted revenue sources because state government and Washington gobble up so much.

How much?

About 80 per cent of all taxes collected in the cities goes to the states or to the federal government, yet the cities receive back only about 19 per cent of their funds from the states and only a tiny 3.5 per cent from the federal government.

This means that cities are forced to continue to rely largely on the inadequate and unjust property tax. The result is that industry and affluent home owners move to the suburbs, and cities are left with the very poor huddled in their ghettos.

The suburbs have the resources to devote about $1,100 per pupil per year to provide good education while the inner city schools can afford only $500 per pupil per year.

SAN FRANCISCO, for example, needs 13,000 new housing units per year for the next six years. Last year 112 single family homes were built and 111 demolished; a net of 777 apartments units were added. That's it — 778 built to 13,000 needed, and that's typical of most cities. Many are losing ground, not gaining.

As sources of revenue have declined, the cost of welfare has gone up and up in every large city. The case-load in San Francisco increased 135 per cent in 10 years and the cost increased 263 per cent.

Mayor Joseph Alioto of San Francisco put it starkly:

"The cities," he said, "are not looking for a handout but for determined and dynamic national participation in problems that clearly transcend the boundaries of any one city and affect the destiny of the entire country.

"History finds its momentum in the cities, and it is here that national commitment must concentrate. And this is what is asked of the present administration in Washington.

"Certainly the rush of events in our cities is as dangerous as any external threat to our nation and must be given priority equal to any we have internationally."

PRESIDENT NIXON agrees. At the Air Force Academy commencement he said:

"Let us not pose a false choice between meeting our responsibilities abroad and meeting the needs of our people at home. We shall meet both or we shall meet neither.

"The crisis within our society cannot be put on the back burner until we resolve the problem of Vietnam."

What the mayors are asking is: When do we begin?

WASHINGTON WINDOW

It Used To Be Capitol Hill; Now It's Information Gap

By FRANK ELEAZER

WASHINGTON (UPI) —For 169 years they have called it Capitol Hill. Now some lawmakers fear the name will have to be changed. They say Information Gap soon may be a more appropriate title.

Say a congressman wants to know what has happened to HR 1054, a bill to authorize a study of polar bears and for other purposes. He can:

1. — Look it up in the daily House congressional calendar.

2.—Search the digest of public general bills,

3.—Study the Congressional Record.

4.—Ask somebody.

NATURALLY, being a $42,500-a-year executive and busy with inquiries from the polar bear lobby and other big voter blocs, he asks somebody.

That is why each House member is provided with 11 or 12 assistants (senators get about twice that many). And when one of them gets the congressman's inquiry he has four options —as above —and resolves them the same way.

What he does is call the affected committee. Which is why each legislative committee has clerks and counsel, paid up to $32,239 yearly, and secretaries who sometimes draw as much as $18,000.

One of these experts takes the query and looks up the answer in a printed committee calendar compiled for that purpose.

That, of course, is one of the reasons we have the Government Printing Office, which works around the clock and is the world's busiest printer, at a cost to taxpayers of $39 million this year.

So now comes House Clerk W. Pat Jennings, who for his $40,000 a year figures there must be some better way for congressmen to keep track of their business —including the 25,000 or so bills introduced during an average Congress.

Jennings has nothing against reference works, clerks, committee staffers, or government printers. But he thinks computers can perform a lot of the work quicker, easier, and probably cheaper.

SO WHAT he recently installed in the Rayburn House Office Building was a sample data retrieval device. It looks like a TV set. A user asks his question by pointing his finger at appropriate categories, subcategories, and finally specific listings of information stored in a central computer.

The answer appears at once on the screen. HR1054, the computer advises, is lying doggo in the House Committee on Merchant Marine. The TV screen also offers up a capsule analysis of what the bill would do, in event it got passed.

Jennings told Speaker John W. McCormack that what he proposes to do —if the House will allow it —is install one of these wondrous computer outlets in every congressman's office.

The speaker, although impressed, received this news with mixed emotions. "Will that mean they all will be asking for additional space?" he wondered, out of 40 years' observation of legislative mores.

Unfortunately, Jennings' computer wasn't (and isn't likely to be) programmed with an answer for that.

THE PEOPLE'S SCHOOLS

Faculty Arrogance Draws Blame In Student Unrest

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

Faculty arrogance is largely to blame for the spread of student dissatisfaction on college campuses, a Stanford University professor told a graduating class last week.

Prof. Lewis B. Mayhew, outgoing president of the American Association for Higher Education, addressed himself only to the college scene in his commencement speech at Western Washington State College, Bellingham, Wash. But some of the evidences of faculty arrogance he cited are beginning to show up in California high schools — at the same time that student unrest is percolating down to that level.

SAID PROFESSOR Mayhew:

"Admired and well-paid professors in prestigious institutions are those who have gained the right to set their own goals, determine their own activities, and assess their own performance.

"Increasingly these do not include students . . . or at least are restricted to the few who are willing disciples. . . .

"Faculty members . . . also have limited the power of administration to make needed educational reforms. Much of ths trouble at San Francisco State College in 1968 and 1969" came about "because departments controlled all positions."

Further, he declared, arrogant faculty members imagine themselves capable of governing institutions of learning despite lack of background for such an enterprise. "The faculty senator, who would be the first to criticize a generalist or a popularizer, will meet for a dozen hours, skim reports, and vote to abolish a $60 million research installation or discredit a president's handling of a student uprising."

PROFESSOR MAYHEW is not the first to point out responsibility of faculties for much that has gone wrong at the colleges. However, he has catalogued faculty arrogance in a way to make the implications in high schools observable.

High school teachers are out to emulate the "admired and well-paid professors" by setting their own goals, determining their own activities, and assessing their own performance.

This year much more than heretofore, teacher groups in California high schools have insisted on participating in "all matters relating to educational objectives," a right guaranteed then under the Winton Act.

FLARE-UPS in various districts over what was being taught under the guise of American history, sociology, or English have brought retorts that the determination was up to the teacher, and that any suggestion that it should follow prescribed guidelines constituted a threat to academic freedom.

In many districts, teachers have injected themselves into the budgeting process, demanding that the school board change its priorities for use of funds — usually to the effect of devoting more to increasing teachers' salaries.

Although high school faculties do not control hiring their tenure rights under California law (much more ironclad than those of college professors) give them virtual immunity from interference with how they conduct their courses. Principals and superintendents, recognizing this, rarely attempt any reform or change without first winning majority faculty approval. And such changes as are made usually are at instigation of faculty groups rather than of the school board or administration.

PROFESSOR MAYHEW did not try to solve the chicken-or-egg enigma of whether faculties have become arrogant because of the powers given them or have seized those powers because of their arrogance. But either way, he held, the faculty has become "the real enemy of students."

The question arises: If it is true (and many agree with Mayhew that it is) that decisions by faculty on what should be taught and how, where funds should be allocated, and how teachers' time should be spent have helped bring about widespread unrest in colleges; then, if the same sort of decisions are put in faculty hands in high schools, can the same result be expected?

Pollution Helps Produce Food In Experimental Arizona Project

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — When Dr. Richard A. Kassander Jr. of the University of Arizona talks about pollution, he says one man's poison can become another man's meat.

Don't let pollution destroy indiscriminately and indefinitely, he says. Put pollution to work.

They're already doing this at Arizona with one type of pollution, so far experimentally.

As director of the UA Institute of Atmospheric Physics and director of the Water Resources Research Center, Kassander is responsible for Arizona's share of a project at Puerto Penasco in Mexico for the production of power, water and food. Power is generated by diesel engines. The engines throw off carbon dioxide. Instead of helping pollute the air, here the engine exhaust is fed into a greenhouse to help increase the production of food plants.

"In the 'have not' parts of the world, population is outstripping its food supply," says Kassander. "In the 'have' parts the population can't escape its own waste products.

"Although the laws of conservation of mass and energy tell us we can't believe the results, we can foretell the day when the weight of people equals the weight of the earth. From extrapolation of population curves, we can also foretell the day when the last man eats the last plant or when suffocation overtakes the population.

"The laws of physics tell us that the results are false, but they don't tell us whether famine, poison or nuclear holocaust will change the trend. It is our business, and it may not be quite too late, to determine that any changes will be in the direction that will be most satisfactory."

Animals, especially humans, are incredibly inefficient machines," Kassander says. "They consume a tremendous amount of valuable fuel, produce an outrageously small amount of useful work and the balance of the fuel is released as waste which is poisonous to the animal and most of the beneficial aspects of his environment."

Waste pollutes. "So why not use the waste?" he says. "Household garbage, when burned, produces heat at the rate of about 4500 BTUs per pound. This means common garbage is approximately one-third as good as fuel as the best quality soft coal.

"With a little imagination, it can be determined that almost every waste product has economic value, directly or as a processed material," he says.

Kassander suggests that the cost of operating waste disposal and sanitary engineering plants include the cost of putting these pollutants to work. "Why can't we pay to protect our environment?" he asks.

In Arizona, he says, sulphuric acid can — and is being — produced from air-polluting sulphur dioxide as it leaves copper smelter stacks.

"Electrostatic precipitation of solid particles from smoke stacks has been a very lucrative source of material such as arsenic," he says.

"Even the lowly fly ash, the most common stack effluent, has value. In the Tennessee Valley Authority, fly ash recovered by mechanical means replaced 20 per cent of the cement and 10.5 per cent of sand necessary for the concrete at Wilson Dam lock."

India has a tremendous food problem, yet in a normal year it is short only 10 to 15 per cent in the grain production necessary to feed its people. Power to till the fields is produced by oxen. It is estimated that oxen consume about 30 per cent of the food they help produce. A machine could be 20 times as efficient — and not eat food — if a fuel could be found.

"This fuel, in fact, exists — in the waste product of the fields," Kassander says.

Straw from an acre producing two and a half tons of rice theoretically could be made to produce 2,358 horsepower hours of work per acre assuming reasonable efficiencies. This is enough energy to lift enough water from 260 feet to cover an acre of farm land to a depth of four feet.

"It would appear that the time has come to move in these directions — in the exploitation of waste to improve the quality of environment," Kassander says.

"In the last few years, we have seen massive capital investment which recognizes the value of improving the quality of the environment for future yields. This is precisely the philosophy of urban renewal programs.

"I believe it will be possible to extend this philosophy to our basic urban waste production process in a way that will make the poisons we produce sources of value to our economy."

5 Pct. Pay Hike Being Recommended

A five per cent across-the-board 1969-70 salary scale increase for Marin County Schools employees is being recommended to the Marin County Board of Education.

The increase, representing a $36,000 hike above the current budget, will be presented to the board by the administrative services committee at the board's next regular meeting at 8 p.m. July 7 in the County Schools office.

The 5 per cent proposal, termed a cost-of-living increase by the committee, will be in addition to the automatic annual 2.5 per cent increment, Robert E. Spain, director, administrative services, reported.

If approved, the salary schedule would be increased from the present $7,315 - $14,089 to a schedule of $7,681 - $14,793, with the top salary in each case requiring a doctorate degree.

The three committees of the board agreed upon the recommendation at their Monday night meetings, Spain said.

Emphasis in the in-service program for 1969-70 will be on working with school administrators in addition to the regular teacher's in-service program. Ideas to be considered will be student and teacher militancy and teachers' salary negotiations, members of the educational services committee decided.

The special services committee heard a request from several school districts for an educationally handicapped program for junior high age students but continued study until a formal proposal can be submitted by the staff.

Man Charged In Shooting Case

Marin Frank Perry, 57, of 12 Ross Street, San Rafael, has been charged in Marin Municipal Court with two felony counts for allegedly shooting at a house where his wife was Friday.

He is accused of assaulting Stella Perry with a deadly weapon as well as shooting at an occupied residence.

Police said they were called by Paul Herman Weeks to his home at 188 Greenfield Avenue, and that Weeks told them Perry had shot at the house.

When arrested near the house, Perry had a hunting rifle on the floor of the car, police said.

His case has been continued until tomorrow for entry of plea and he is free on $6,250 bail.

RACIAL STRIFE NEXT?

Immigration Again Rousing Britishers

By YORKE HENDERSON
London Express

LONDON — Enoch's been at it again.

The Right Honorable John Enoch Powell, member of her Majesty's Privy Council, member of the Order of the British Empire, Master of Arts of the University of Cambridge and Conservative member of Parliament for Wolverhampton, has been warning the British of the racial strife that lies ahead for them if they don't do something about immigration.

It was Enoch Powell who, just over a year ago, cast the color question into the political cockpit with a speech to his constituents which said all the sort of things people had been saying in private but which no one had had the gall to pronounce publicly. He warned then that untrammeled immigration of "colored" people must inevitably lead to strife.

The strength of popular reaction shook pundits to the core and with them politicians and professional liberals. Virtually overnight Powell became — by reliable estimate — just about the most popular individual politician in the country. Significantly his most glamorous support came not from the middle class blimps and shellback reactionaires but from the working class, by tradition predominantly leftwing. Dockers (longshoremen) and tough bumarees (meat-market porters) marched through London in support of him.

His latest speech, made to constituents in the heart of England's black country (the reference is to the accumulation of industrial dirt), offered little that was dramatically different.

The dramatic difference lay in the reaction to it.

Last time there was shock and consternation. Vilification was heaped on Powell and even his own party leaders disavowed him, before the full extent of his popular support was realized.

In the year and more since then Powell has barely touched on the subject of immigration, although he has remained the embodiment of all they hate for militant leftwingers, Black Power disciples and protesting students. "Powellism" has become an epithet in their mouths.

But as reaction to his latest speech shows, his first speech was something of a political watershed. It changed the mood and attitude of the country. Before it was made, apprehensiveness about immigration was like sex to the Victorians: You knew it existed and tried to pretend it didn't.

Now it can be expressed with almost as much freedom as support for marijuana smoking, premarital copulation and Chairman Mao.

The divergence of political opinion is over how it should be dealt with.

The Socialist administration which so recently vilified Powell has tightened control of immigration; while his own Tories who chucked him out of the shadow cabinet have officially espoused his idea of voluntary subsidized repatriation of immigrants.

And Powell's speech the other day, while featured largely on the front pages of the national press, on television and radio, has inspired nothing like the shrill near-hysteria of the first occasion.

In large measure that is due to the changed mood of the country. But it owes something, too, to the form of the speech itself.

Free of any taint of emotionalism or demagoguery, it concentrated on the increasing proportion of colored immigrants in the areas where they have congregated and on statistical forecasts of how those proportions will grow over the years. Powell's reputation as an academic and his aridly donnish way of speaking lent them far more weight than any amount of rhetoric.

But the significant strength of Powell's speech lay in his rationalization of why it was justifiable to be alarmed at the prospect of a growing colored population.

It is on this score that the ordinary inarticulate bloke is so easily confounded by the eloquent "liberal" pundit.

Confronted by the question of why he is perturbed about the increasing number of immigrants, the ordinary bloke cannot translate the nuances of his unease into words. Either he holds his tongue and appears a sullen clodhopper or resorts in desperation to one of the fatuous stereotype answers that he doesn't even believe himself about noisy parties, smelly cooking or sexual promiscuity.

What Powell did was to crystallize and articulate what a lot of ordinary Britishers think:

"They tell us that we must be prepared to contemplate, in fact to welcome, the alteration and alienation of our cities and towns. They tell us there is no such thing as our own people and our own country. Indeed there is, and I say it in no mean or arrogant or exclusive spirit.

"What I know is that we have an identity of our own, as we have a territory of our own, and that the instinct to preserve that identity, as to defend that territory, is one of the deepest and strongest implanted in mankind. I happen also to believe that the instinct is good and that its beneficent effects are not exhausted.

"In claiming this we claim no more than others. We claim no more than we ourselves have often helped others to vindicate.

"In our time that identity has been threatened more than once. In the past it was threatened by violence and aggression from without. It is not threatened from within by the foreseeable consequences of a massive but unpremeditated and fortunately, in substantial measure, reversible immigration."

Powell's only concession to rhetoric was to quote the Greek Themistocles: "Strike me if you must, but hear me."

This time there was much less of a rush to strike him.

And the nation had heard him.

Herr Oberregierungsrat? In Germany It's Losing Out

BAD GODESBERG, Germany (GF) — Those long, high-sounding titles that have long been used to connote success and prestige in Germany may be coming to an end in at least one sector — the country's civil service.

An organization representing the some 60,000-strong youth set — age 25 and under — of the country's civil service recently decided in favor of reforms which would do away with such titles.

Today, civil servants not only have grades — a system which youth would like to retain. But position also brings titles like herr inspektor and herr regierungsrat or even herr oberregierungsrat (government advisor and upper government advisor), which are normally used along with the person's family name. Calling a government advisor "Herr Schmidt" instead of Herr Regierungsrat Schmidt is considered a highly discourteous breach of good social behavior. The titles are used not only on the job, but after work socially too.

The young civil servants, aligning themselves with the rest of the country's reform-minded youth, hope now to bring an end to the practice in their profession. They also demand a greater number of political meetings for younger groups in order to encourage discussion between political leaders and the coming generation of voters

Maddox Says Wife May Run

JEKYLL ISLAND, Ga. (UPI) —Gov. Lester Maddox, ired by a speedy legislative rebuff of his tax program, hinted broadly yesterday that he might run his wife for governor in 1970.

Maddox is prohibited from succeeding himself. But he told the Georgia Municipal Association that either he or his wife, Virginia, would be in the gubernatorial race next year.

He said that he would continue to push for his tax and budget program and, if he did not get approval, "some other people may have a chance to vote for Virginia."

Fawn Takers Warned Fines Can Be Heavy

A lonely fawn should be left alone.

This warning, now that fawning season is here, was issued today by Alfred F. Giddings, state fish and game warden.

Under the Fish and Game Code it is illegal to possess a fawn, but each year at this time there are people who violate the law, Giddings said.

Some people want a fawn for a pet and attempt to locate and capture one. "These people are cited and prosecuted if apprehended," he said.

Some people find a fawn that is alone and seemingly unattended, "but whose mother is usually only away for a short feeding or watering trip."

No mother deer will intentionally abandon her fawn, he noted, and almost invariably find a fawn that seems lost. These people have no intent to commit a crime, but taking the fawn is still a crime, Giddings said.

Some people find a dead doe and a motherless fawn nearby and take the fawn home, he said. There is no prosecution in these cases, but the fawn is taken from them, he reported. What they should do, he said, is notify the Fish and Game Department of the doe's death.

The law is for the good of everyone including the fawn, Giddings contended. "It takes a certain formula to feed a fawn properly. Even then most die."

The Humane Society of Marin County and the Marin Junior Museum have enough deer to take care of already, and most owners don't want them when they grow up because they are too big to handle, he noted.

"And when the fawns live in this civilized environment away from the other deer and the wilds, they create all kinds of problems," he added.

Motorcycle Stolen

A motorcycle valued at $1,500 was taken from a driveway at 515 Arlington Circie, Novato, between 9:30 p.m., Monday and 7:30 a.m. yesterday, Thomas B. Estes, 37, reported yesterday to police.

City Schools Budget Request

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Even though San Francisco schools will have 2,000 fewer children next year, Superintendent Robert Jenkins wants to increase his budget $14 million to a record $111 million.

Jenkins presented the budget to the board of education last night. He said it contained no program cutbacks, but failed to include some projects the district would like to start.

The school official said student enrollment would probably drop to 101,788 next year.

Major increases in the budget provided for salary hikes of $4.5 million and the addition of 300 teachers at a cost of $2.4 million.

NEWMAN-WOODWARD TEAMED IN 'WINNING'

"Winning," a saga of the world of auto racing, has entered its second week at the Rafael. It stars the husband and wife team of Paul Newman and Joanne Woodward. The second feature stars Doris Day in the "Ballad of Josie." The theater has switched to its summertime schedule with daily matinees.

Nine Marin Youngsters Cast In Shakespeare Play

Nine Marin County youngsters have been cast as members of Puck's gang in the Marin Shakespeare Festival's production of "Midsummer Night's Dream," which opens July 17 at the Forest Meadows Theater.

The youngsters are Pete Battaglio of Terra Linda, Jay Brebner and Sandy Brebner of Sausalito, John Alderson, Dan Bagshaw, Jim Dodson, Bob Meeker, Kent Pinkerton and Steve Whiteman, all of San Rafael.

Other Marinites who will be playing in the season's productions of "Midsummer Night's Dream," "Two Gentlemen of Vernona," and "Richard II" include Bob Feero of San Anselmo; David Gilliam, George Pritzker, Alice Rorvik and Philip Sheridan of Mill Valley; Sue Glausen and Dianne Winsor of Fairfax; Abe Kalish of Sausalito; Max Klein and Bob Meeker of San Rafael; Suzanne O'Hare of Dominican College, and William Remak of Novato.

The festival's madrigal singers need additional male vocalists, especially bass and tenor. The singers specialize in Elizabethan songs and madrigals and will make appearances this summer in Marin and Sonoma counties and San Francisco.

Young Woman To Be Planner

A green-eyed blonde from Pennsylvania will join the Marin County Planning Department as senior planner next week.

She is Margaret Lee Porter, 26, who will replace John Dole, who resigned on June 1 to work with the Ecumenical Association for Housing in Marin. Miss Porter will work in the advance planning section headed by Albert Solnit. She will draw $829 per month.

She is a graduate of Bryn Mawr College and the University of Pennsylvania where she won her master's degree in city planning. She then worked in a Negro ghetto of central Brooklyn, then as a housing specialist in a Philadelphia model cities program where she helped prepare housing action programs with the people in slum communities.

Boy's Head Bruised When Hit By Auto

Brent E. Collins, 4, of 182 Belvedere Street, San Rafael, was treated at Marin General Hospital yesterday for a bruised head after he was hit by a car driven by Robert E. Springer, 23, of 140 Lower Via Casitas, Greenbrae, San Rafael police reported.

Springer said he was traveling at about 15 miles per hour west on Belvedere Street when the child ran into the street from between two parked cars. No charges were cited.

'TORA, TORA, TORA'

Laird Disclaims Navy's Movie Role

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird has disclaimed any Nixon administration association with a controversial movie in which U.S. warships portrayed Papanese vessels in the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor.

Laird wrote Rep. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., yesterday that "all decisions" allowing the USS Yorktown to play a Japanese attack ship were made by the Johnson administration. Six American sailors who volunteered as extras suffered burns during the filming of Tora, Tora, Tora."

It also was announced yesterday that the House Armed Services Committee would investigate use of the ship.

Laird also disavowed a full-page advertisement published Monday and placed by Darryl F. Zanuck, president and chief executive officer of Twentieth Century Fox, which said the movie was "officially approved" by both the U. S. and Japanese defense departments.

"As far as I'm concerned, I have no basis on which to approve or disapprove this film," Laird said.

Laird did not rule out future loans of ships for movies, but laid down some guidelines:

"I do have a basis, however, for insisting that cooperation with film producers in future matters of this kind be restricted to situations in which such cooperation can be accomplished without interfering with normal operations and without cost to the government."

Word of the armed services committee's plan to investigate the filming came from Rep. John M. Murphy, D-N.Y., who has severely criticized the arrangement in which the Navy cooperated with the movie firm. He said L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., chairman, told him that hearings probably would start in late July.

The official reason for the hearings will be to consider a bill by Murphy that would prevent similar instances of cooperation between the armed forces and commercial filmmakers.

Following a meeting of the two men this morning, Rivers authorized Murphy to issue this statement:

"I am sympathetic with the objectives you seek in the bill you have introduced, a bill which would put a stop to the indiscriminate use of military personnel and equipment for the production of movies, television programs or anything else for profit."

The Navy has defended its actions, contending that it was merely aiding those seeking to present historically accurate information to the American people.

Zanuck bought full page ads in the Washington Post and the New York Times Monday to defend the film. Twentieth Century told Murphy in a telegram that the movie "is historical in every sense."

Violinist At College Sunday

Marin Music Chest will open its 1969 summer concert season at 3 p.m. Sunday with a recital by 22-year-old Korean violinist, Young Uck Kim, at Forest Meadows, Dominican College, San Rafael.

Kim, called a "genius" by Leonard Bernstein after his appearance as a soloist with the New York Philharmonic, will play compositions of Pergolesi, Mozart, Bach, Hindemith, and Szymanowski. Rosalyn Franz Miller will be at the piano.

Childern under 12, when accompanied by an adult, are admitted without charge. Nonsubscribers to the series, can obtain tickets at the gate the afternoon of the concert. Gates open at 1:30 p.m. and there are no reserved seats.

Czech Organist To Give Recital

Organist Maria Byma of Czechoslovakia will present her first solo recital at the First Presbyterian Church in San Anselmo Sunday at 8 p.m.

She will perform works by older and contemporary Czech and Slovak composers, including Cernohorsky, Eben, Nemeth and Zimmer.

The organist studied music at the Conservatory of Music in Bratislava and at the Bratislava Academy of Arts. She has performed with the Slovak Philharmoic Orchestra and has given organ recitals in various cities in Bohemia and Slovakia.

She has also performed extensively for the Czechoslovakian Radio and Television Network and the National Theatre in Bratislava.

Mrs. Byma and her husband and two children were in Austria when the Russians invaded Czechoslovakia and were advised not to return. After spending some time in a displaced persons camp, they came to California with the help of a friend who had been a pen pal for eight years and who agreed to act as their sponsor.

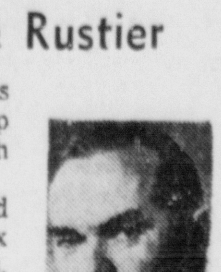
HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

With Advancing Years, Joints May Seem To Become Rustier



VAN DELLEN

Joints stiffen with advancing age. This is not news to millions of oldsters who get up more slowly and no longer glide about with grace and ease.

Mobility of these junctions can be tested and it has been shown that the ability to flex the back is dependent on age in both sexes, but more so in women.

THE CONNECTIVE TISSUE of the skin and the joint capsule becomes stiffer after the age of 50. The fluid that lubricates the hinges loses some of its viscosity and becomes lighter in texture.

Some of these changes are associated with osteoarthritis, a condition that usually begins in the cartilages lining the inside of the joints. The covering becomes thin and fragmented and in time, erodes through to the bone. The ends of the bone thicken and produce an overgrowth that protrudes from the rim as a smooth lip or sharp spur.

Eighty per cent of all people over 50 have X-ray evidence of joint degeneration. But only 5 to 10 per cent develop symptoms that require treatment. It is surprising that even though the X-ray reveals many changes, the individual has little or no discomfort.

The most commonly involved structues are the fingers, and weight-bearing joints, such as the spine, hips, and knees.

THE BONY CHANGES associated with osteoarthritis are irreversible, but pain tends to come and go. Aspirin and heat are the best remedies. Cortisone-type products are seldom needed unless pain is severe and disabling. It is advisable to check for gout because one condition may mimic the other and treatments differ.

Weight reduction may be followed by drastic improvement in the knees, hips, and back. Correcting posture may do the same.

Diet is not curative but many feel better after eating nutritious, well-balanced menus.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the I-J.)

ENLARGED COLON AT 13

M. M. writes: What causes an enlarged colon in a boy of 13?

REPLY

Megacolon usually is more annoying than serious. The underlying fault is a congenital lack of propulsion power in the rectum. The condition leads to constipation and abdominal distention. In the majority, the dilated intestine can be made to contract with the use of one of the cholinergic drugs. Enemas may be necessary as well as training in bowel habits. Surgery is curative when conservative measures fail.

CORN OIL COCKTAILS

L. B. writes: What are corn oil cocktails used for?

REPLY

To lower blood cholesterol. Several years ago physicians recommended a mixture of corn oil and skim milk powder for this purpose. Today medicines ar used along with a low animal fat diet supplemented with vegetable salad oils and polyunsaturated fatty acid spreads.

ANGINAL PAIN ON RIGHT

L. F. writes: I have pain in the right shoulder which the doctor said is angina pectoris. I always thought heart pain was on the left side. Please set me straight.

REPLY

Anginal pain usually involves the left side, but in some, it involves the right shoulder, both shoulders, or neither.

CONSTIPATED CHILD

E. L. writes: How can constipation be cured in a child?

REPLY

CONSTIPATED CHILD

By diet—not enemas or laxatives. Add more proteins, fruits, vegetables, cereals, and liquids. We assume that the youngster is otherwise healthy.

THE JUVENILE DIABETIC

Mrs. J. writes: Why can't diabetic chidren use the new pills?

REPLY

Because in juvenile diabetes the pancreas cannot be stimulated to form an adequate amount of insulin. Antidiabetic tablets work best in older persons who usually have a milder form of the disease. The insulin-producing cells are more active then they are in diabetic children.

ALUM SUPPOSITORIES

A reader writes: Will the use of alum suppositories shrink hemorrhoids?

REPLY

No. Alum is a shrinker but I doubt it will reduce the size of a hemorrhoidal blood vessel.

ANGINA AND EXERCISE

E. U. writes: Can a person safely continue exercising daily after he develops angina?

REPLY

Yes, provided the activity does not induce anginal pain. Many physicians recommened increasing daily activity.

SACRAMENTO ROUNDUP

Ivy Baker Priest To Seek Reelection

SACRAMENTO (AP) — State Treasurer Ivy Baker Priest revealed today she will seek reelection in 1970 as chief banker for the nation's richest state.

"I'd like to complete what I've started," said the 63-year-old grandmother, who was Treasurer of the United States during the eight-year Dwight D. Eisenhower administration.

Three years ago the attractive Republican ousted Democratic Treasurer Bert A. Betts and became the first woman ever to hold constitutional office in California.

Mrs. Priest said in an interview her three years as state treasurer have been "more challenging and more interesting" than her eight years in Washington as U. S. Treasurer.

As U. S. Treasurer, she said, she was responsible for issuing currency and supervising government depositories all over the world—"but I didn't have the responsibility of investing money and selling bonds" that go with the state treasurer's job.

WATER BONDS

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The Assembly Revenue and Taxation Committee has approved of a bill of questionable legality permitting the state to sell anticipatory water bond notes at a higher rate of interest than allowed by the California Constitution.

If enacted, the bill probably would wind up in a court test.

The measure by Sen. Gordon Cologne, R-Indio, was sent to the ways and means committee yesterday.

Cologne and committee members agreed it probably was illegal to sell notes to finance the gigantic water project at up to 7 per cent interest when the constitution limits the rate to 5 per cent.

Voters won't have a chance to amend the constitution until the 1970 election. The state wants to sell the bonds before then.

Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, chairman of the revenue and taxation committee, said there were two other methods which could be used to provide immediate funds for the water project.

He said the state could adopt mandatory withholding of state income taxes—which would net the state an additional $100 million annually—or use the $100 million surplus Gov. Ronald Reagan has allocated as an income tax rebate next year.

The water project has enough money to continue construction only through September. Bonds for the project cannot be sold because of the high interest rates brought on by inflation.

"I'd like to see the administration look into—with their blinders off—other alternatives," said Bagley.

But Finance Director Caspar W. Weinberger said neither the income tax refund or withholding was a good alternative. The income tax refund was "imminently proper" and withholding was "too high a price to pay," he said.

PENSIONS

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—A bill which includes four legislative employees in the generous retirement plan provided for members of the Assembly and Senate has been signed by Gov. Ronald Reagan without fanfare.

An aide to the governor disclosed yesterday that Reagan signed the measure Monday in the presence of former Senate President Pro Tem Hugh Burns, D-Fresno, and its author, Sen. Jack Schrade, R-San Diego.

There was no public announcement about the signing.

The politically sensitive bill could cost the state nearly a half million dollars.

Bill In Senate On Sonoma Span Member

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A bill to circumvent a 1968 law requiring that a Sonoma County supervisor serve on the board of directors of the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District has cleared the Assembly and gone to the Senate for hearing.

The bill (AB 1812), by Assemblyman Frank P. Belotti, D-Eureka, was introduced at the request of one of Sonoma's three representatives on the bridge board, E. J. Guidotti of Guerneville. His term expired in December, and the 1968 law requires that the supervisors replace him with one of their own members, but the supervisors have stalled replacing Guidotti.

The bill was thought to be dead a few weeks ago, largely because of the opposition by the author of the 1968 law, Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael. He had objected the bill would undermine the intent of his law, which was to increase the "responsiveness" of the bridge board by putting elected officials on it.

But Bagley now supports the bill because it has been amended to postpone to December 1970, the requirement that a supervisor be among Sonoma's three representatives. Guidotti was an "unfair victim" of the new law, Bagley told the Independent-Journal.

The result of the amendment would be that the Sonoma supervisors next year would have to choose which of their two veteran bridge board representatives they want to dump.

Guidotti, a former member of the board of supervisors, reportedly was pleased with the amendment.

Next year either he or his fellow bridge director, L. E. Castner of Boyes Hot Springs, will have to be replaced by a supervisor.

Sonoma County's third representative on the bridge board is W. R. Lucius, Healdsburg city councilman. Bagley's 1968 law gave Sonoma a third seat on the bridge board to be filled by a member of a city council.

Collier Seeks Hiking Span Directors' Meeting Pay $25

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Legislation to double the pay of Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District directors from $25 to $50 a meeting has been introduced by Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka.

The measure also would delete the limitation that directors may not be paid for attending more than four board or committee meetings in one month.

The pay hike was favored by a majority of the 18 bridge directors when they broached the subject four months ago, but they declined to vote formally to seek it. News reports of their discussion would be ample notice to legislators that they wanted the increase, directors agreed.

Directors from Sonoma, Napa, Mendocino and Del Norte counties also paid mileage and meal allowances.

San Francisco Supervisor William C. Blake, a member of the bridge board, had suggested directors be paid $100 a meeting when he first brought up the subject in February.

The period to introduce new legislation passed in April, but Collier grated the pay hike onto a "skeleton" bill that previously made no substantive change in the act that set up the bridge district.

Native Daughters Name President

LOS BANOS (AP)—An Oakland woman has been elected grand president of the Native Daughters of the Golden West.

Mrs. Nancy Conens was selected to succeed Mrs. Hazel Malette of Oroville as head of the 15,000 member organization.

More than 600 delegates attending the group's convention here were to take part in dedication of Pacheco Pass as an historic monument today.

The new officers will be installed at the close of the five-day convention tomorrow.

Other new officers include Mrs. Irene Bondanza of San Francisco as vice-president and Mrs. Cirgilia McCombs of Modesto as grand marshal.

Elected trustees were Gertrude L. Doss, Whittier; Marie C. Landini, San Jose; Betty Curilich, Jackson; Lila Hummel, Inglewood; Marion Maguire, Berkeley; Helen McCarthy, San Francisco; and Meredyth Burnett, Sonora.

IN SOUTH DAKOTA

Dream Is To Carve Tribute To Indians

CUSTER, S. D. (AP) — Korczak Ziolkowski has a marvelous dream to carve the world's largest monument.

Ziolkowski is the owner of a 6,700-foot mountain on which he is carving a monument to the Indian warrior Crazy Horse.

He also envisions a cultural center at the foot of his gigantic monument where North American Indians could recapture the dignity that once was theirs.

For 18 years the giant man — sporting a heavy, graying beard and wearing a well-worn deer leather jacket — has plodded up and down the mountain, chiseling away to realize his dream. Slowly it emerges, but at a pace that taxes the artist's patience and exasperates the earthlings who wait and watch below.

Nearby stands a national monument — Mount Rushmore.

But Ziolkowski's wife, Ruth, tells tourists who visit the site each year that two million tons of rock have already been removed for the carving. That is six times more than were taken from Mount Rushmore during the period it was carved.

And Ziolkowski is proud of what he has accomplished without state or federal aid. Signs at the gate announced: "This is not a state or federal project."

Crazy Horse is one man's dream and one man's project, but it is a family operation. Little Ziolkowskis share the work. They are paid modest wages, but there are fringe benefits like the swimming pool their father built for them. There are, however, no vacations, and summer means mainly work.

On display at the sculptor's home, overlooking the gigantic mountain, are Ziolkowski's other works of art.

Among them are pieces in wood and marble — busts, statues and bas-reliefs of such dignitaries as the Polish patriot Paderewski; the famous actress Blanche Yurka; Connecticut's great Gov. Wilbur Cross; Gutzon Borglum, the sculptor of Mount Rushmore, and the late President John F. Kennedy.

From the studio gallery the visitor is able to look down into the sculptor's work area, which is idle during the summer while he devotes all of his time to Crazy Horse. His materials and tools, as well as works in various stages of completion, give an intimate and rare view of the ancient art of sculpturing.

Controversy and financial problems have plagued the sculptor. He thrives on the one and reacts realistically to the other.

No benefactor is providing the gigantic sums necessary to carve the three-dimensional Crazy Horse. No one but Ziolkowski provides the wherewithal to feed, clothe and educate the sculptor's 10 children.

Commissioned works provide some income. There are always several pieces in progress in Ziolkowski's studio.

Bringing Crazy Horse to its present state of completion has been a Herculean task. But things are looking up. A power line was brought up to the top of the mountain, making it possible for more powerful equipment to be put to work.

After 18 years, another surprising thing seems to be happening. The people in Custer are beginning to realize that their giant is going to be there tomorrow.

U.S. Agencies Big In Alaska

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP)—The federal government represents a greater percentage of employment and income in Alaska than in any other state.

This is understandable in view of the fact that about 97 per cent of the land in Alaska is government-owned.

Corte Madera Center Giving Canadian Voyage For Two

Where in the world would you like to go??!!

Corte Madera Shopping Center's Merchants' Council — with the cooperation of P and O Steamship Lines — is offering to a fortunate winner a combination sea-air-shore excursion vacation for two to Vancouver and Victoria, B.C., and Seattle, Wash.

Departing from San Francisco Aug. 31, two vacationers will sail aboard the beautiful SS Oriana, P and O's sleek superliner with 11 passenger decks, 25 public rooms, a theater two decks high for showing wide screen stereophonic motion pictures, four swimming pools, beautifully appointed cabins, and all the other amenities of gracious living including excellent cuisine.

Arriving in Vancouver at noon Sept. 2, the lucky trip winners will be taxied to the Bay Shore Inn, their place of residence while not engaged in free-time exploration of this beautiful city or on guided tours by Gray Line motorcoach. Sights to be seen will include Burrard Inlet, Capilano Canyon and its suspension bridge, Lions Gate suspension bridge, and British Properties.

Tour winners will leave for Victoria on Sept. 4 by way of Gray Line's "Royal Victoria" motor coach to Tsawwassen and a ferry boat cruise through the famous Gulf Islands to Swartz Bay. After checking into the Empress Hotel, their evening will begin with dinner at the Red Lion Theater-Restaurant followed by a visit to the Burchart Gardens.

Next day, after a free morning, there will be a trip to the new Undersea Marine World where visitors descend beneath the sea to view a wonderland of sea animals and plant life from North Pacific waters.

On the evening of Sept. 6, tour winners will board a Canadian Pacific steamer for Seattle where the night will be spent at the Benjamin Franklin hotel, and the following day will include a tour to Mt. Rainier through the majestic Cascade range.

The vacation will draw to a close on the evening of Sept. 7 when the vacationers board a Western Airlines flight which will arrive in San Francisco

WHO WILL THEY BE—On P and O's beautiful SS Oriana will sail from San Francisco Aug. 31, enroute to Vancouver, British Columbia. Corte Madera Shopping Center's Merchants' Council and P and O Steamship Lines offer Marin County shoppers the opportunity to be among the passengers through a tour contest to be held tomorrow through Saturday, with all travel arrangements through Northgate Travel Center.

Oriana Is Speediest Liner On Pacific Run

SS Oriana, the fastest passenger ship in the Pacific, made her maiden voyage to San Francisco in February 1961, inaugurating her regular round-world service at that time. The superliner, which has broken every speed record east of Gibraltar, is one of the largest liners to call at West Coast ports.

The 42,000-ton vessel, which carries more than 2,100 passengers and a crew of 900, visits Vancouver, San Francisco and Los Angeles four or five times a year, when she is sailing one of P and O's six basic routes: to or from Europe via the Pacific; to or from the Orient; on a circle-Pacific voyage; to or from Europe via the Panama Canal and Caribbean (Oriana sails from San Francisco June 4 on such a voyage; return from England in August via the Panama); or to Europe via the Pacific and South Africa.

Twin-stacked, the liner is more than two and a half times the length of a football field (804 feet). She is equipped with gyro-stabilizers to minimize roll and a transverse propulsion system enabling her to maneuver directly sideways in either direction, an aid in navigating in close quarters.

One of the most notable features of Oriana is the ship's extensive use of aluminum — more than 1,000 tons of it are used in the superstructure. The ship is also air-conditioned and humidity controlled throughout.

The P and O liner is equipped with television, capable of picking up local programs while in ports and of transmitting closed circuit, taped programs while at sea.

In interior design, Oriana has a number of unique features. The Red Carpet room features television, as well as hi-fi and motion picture projection equipment. An electronic baby sitter monitored by a switchboard operator pages parents should a child awaken and cry. Passenger baggage is handled by fast-moving electrical conveyors and elevators.

Many first class cabins are built around a series of courts which permit each cabin to have a view of the sea and natural daylight. Tourist class cabins are either two or four-berth.

Oriana has a theater two decks high, for showing wide screen stereophonic motion pictures or for producing live

MUSIC LOVERS—Girls and guys of all ages can't keep from a little foot stompin' and string strummin' when they get a guitar from Butlers Magnavox in their hands. These youths (from left) Judy Pike, Al Sifford, Cindy Butler, Jack Barcewski, Roberta Butler and Mike Butler, are no exception and the looks on their faces are proof enough that they're delighted with the fine quality instruments available at Butler's in Corte Madera Center.

The big P and O liner made a sell-out Caribbean Christmas cruise from the West Coast last December and will repeat the three-week cruise again this December. Another P and O passenger ship, SS Arcadia, will also spend three months cruising from the West Coast to British Columbia and Alaska. These two ships are part of the world's oldest and largest passenger steamship line. Other regular P and O visitors to West Coast ports are: Canberra, Iberia, Orsova and Oronsay.

Butler TV, Music Is A Family Affair

A "family affair" is the best way to describe the management of the Butler TV and Music Center located in the Corte Madera Shopping Center.

This remarkable venture first started when Sally (Mrs. Robert) Butler urged her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Max Daoust, to come to California and asked her father to join with her in opening a music store.

Known first as the Harmony Music Center, the store opened in the center in March of 1965, and moved to its new quarters in the center under its present name in 1967.

Mrs. Butler's husband, Robert, became so engrossed in the business he gave up his electrician's trade to join the family shop full time. As the business expanded, other members of the family became involved.

Also employed part time in the Corte Madera shop are the older Butler children, Roberta, 16, and Michael, 14, and a niece, Jackie Perry.

Members of the family join together for activities other than business. The Butler summer home at Clear Lake is the gathering place for those who enjoy water skiing and swimming.

Center Answers Variety Of Needs

Corte Madera Shopping Center offers to the resident of Marin a one-stop shopping facility located immediately adjacent to a major state highway yet set in the quiet atmosphere created by an attractive town of wooded hills, pleasant homes, and a spacious park.

All financial transactions can be resolved at Crocker-Citizen's National Bank or Tamalpais Savings and Loan Association.

Groceries for the family may be purchased at Cala Foods, delicious pastries at Lady Baltimore Bakery, and the weary shopper can be refreshed at Zim's Restaurant or Herbert's Sherbet Shoppe.

Special needs can be handled by Hollie Smith's A Associates Insurance, and Dr. Shuso Kumata, Optometrist, and by a law office.

Montgomery Ward Co. and J. C. Penny Co. provide the myriad necessities of living from sports equipment to childrens' clothing and draperies, which can be cleaned expertly at Peerless Cleaners or Kerns and Walker Cleaners.

Thom McAn and Gallenkamps shoe stores do an excellent job of providing the family with foot apparel, and Louis-George and Smith's Mens' clothing shops carry distinctive styles for the man of the house.

Kiosk, Inc. is the place to look for unusual gift items, which can be accompanied by attractive cards from The Card Corner.

Toy World and F. W. Woolworth Co. contain many items that delight the eyes of the younger set — and their parents — and the House of Fabrics is a wonderland for the woman with a seamstress' talent.

Then, after viewing the selection of television sets and musical instruments at Butler's TV and Music Center, the man of the family may relax and have his hair cut at Corte Madera Barbers, while milady enjoys a shampoo and set at Mam'Selle Beauty Salon.

And on the way home mail that package at the self-service center provided by the U.S. Post Office.

Two particular favorites of Marin County children will be back for repeat performances — the Petting Zoo and the Huck Finn Fishing Hole.

Four skill games will be conducted by members of the Southern Marin Boys Club directed by Jack Benjamin. Proceeds from these events will go towards the work with youngsters conducted by each organization.

Higher Income, Illness Linked

NEW DELHI (AP) — The more your salary the more prone you are to certain chronic ailments, according to an Indian medical survey.

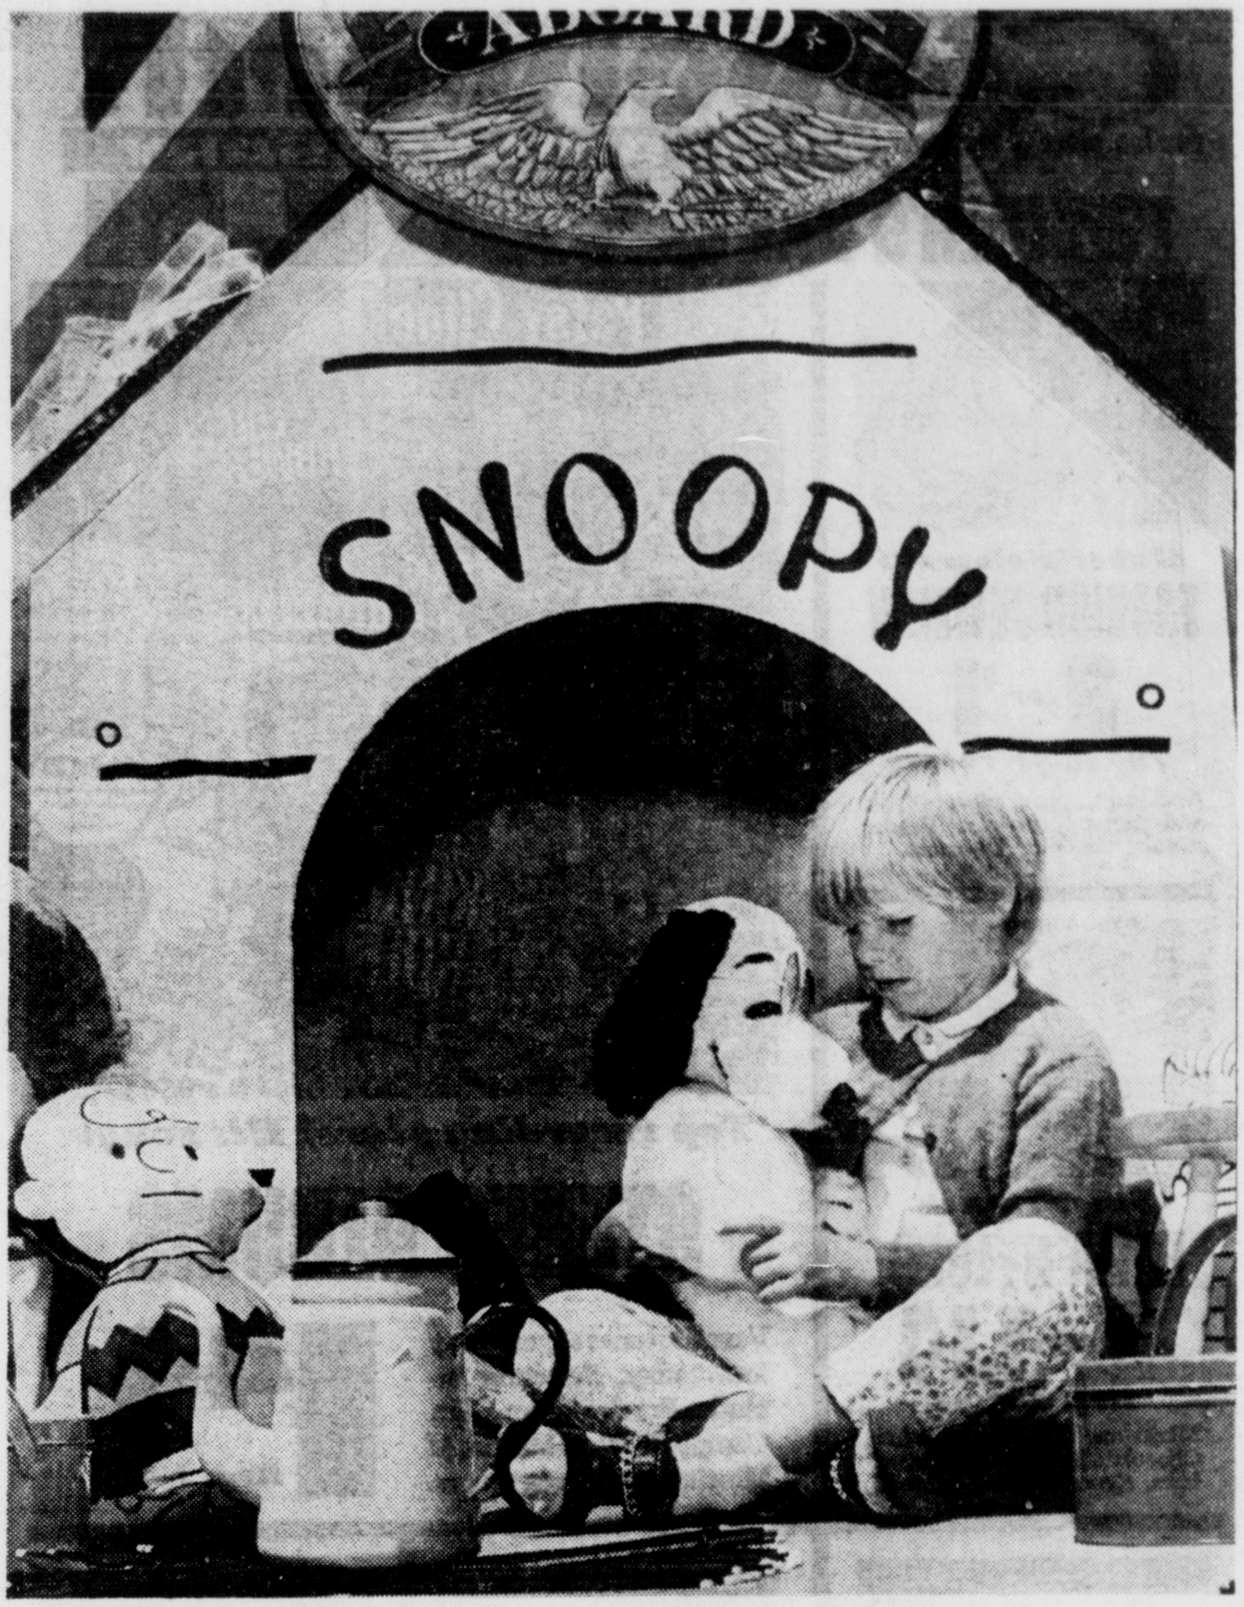
Four out of 10 families with a monthly income of more than rupees 2,000 ($266) suffer from high blood pressure, diabetes, cancer and heart ailments, the survey said.

Kentucky Crank Phones Fading

ELIZABETHTOWN, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky's last handcranked telephone system is on the way out.

The state authorized General Telephone Co. to install modern dial equipment by the middle of 1969 to serve the Upton exchange in Hardin County. Upton's 325 customers have been using old-time phones provided by the Farmers Telephone Company.

Upton is a farming community 60 miles south of Louisville.



SNOOPY'S SUMMER HOME?

While the rest of the Peanuts gang stands around, Snoopy sits contentedly, if a bit scholarly, on the lap of his newest friend, Becky Schubert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gage Schubert. Snoopy's house, minus his pool table and collection of paintings, can be found in front of Kiosk at the Corte Madera Center. CMC stores are sponsoring an "Escape to Sea" trip for two to Canada, and entry blanks are available at Kiosk as well as all other participating stores. (See story on page S-2.)

Oregon Commune Seemingly Like Hippies, But Differs

GRANTS PASS, Ore. (UPI)— Deep in the rolling timber country of southern Oregon a "family" of 60 young people live together in utter simplicity and guided only—as they explain it—by "God and love."

All are droputs from normal society and most came to their haven after deciding that the LSD from which they'd been getting their kicks provided only an illusory escape.

They have returned, they say, to "the natural ways of the earth." Their home is a huge lodge, self-built out of the forest, and most of their food comes from a two-acre vegetable garden.

"The ultimate consideration of everything we do here," said Nancy, a former Radcliffe student and mother of four lovely blonde girls, "is, 'can it get us higher with God'?"

Nancy's "family" came into being last Thanksgiving. Pam, 20, another member and a sprightly brunette from San Diego, said they all joined hands, formed a circle in a clearing, and were married—all to each other "but most to another person."

PIONEER HIPPIES

A few months earlier, the first members of the commune had bought 250 acres of land from the state under a longterm payment plan. Now, with its 60-member family, the commune has the aspects of a pioneer settlement.

The "brothers" and "sisters," as they call each other, have abandoned civilization to become deeply involved with one another. They are close to the earth but not dirty, sensual but not lazy, noncompetitive but not incompetent—and they seem very happy.

Noticeably absent are television, liquor, electricity, meat, drugs of any kind (even aspirin), clocks, shaving equipment and physical modesty in the natural sense.

They are longhaired and mostly denim clad but are not the stereotyped illkempt, smelly hippies. They cleanse themselves daily in a communal sauna constructed of an old tool shed and an oil drum stove.

All the world's deities, they say, are one to them and, in drum beating sessions each evening before supper they gather to chant homage to God—'God is love; I love God." The spiritual high mark of the day is the ritual "om" a Buddhist syllable having to do with the unity of all people and things. The family joins hands around a central hearth and communes in a resonant hum.

MANY CHILDREN

The ultimate test of the commune system could well come when its children—and there are many children in this "no pill" world—leave home to face life as it is on the outside.

"They will have no problem," Ron said, confidently. He is the father of four. He left his job as a computer science professor in southern California for communal life in the Oregon woods. "They," he said of the children, "will have grown up with love. They are universal children at peace with themselves."

With the approval of the local educational authorities, teaching of the children is done by members of the family who include three holders of master's degrees and several B.A.'s. "The children are wise beyond their years," Pam bragged.

All members of the family have taken an oath of poverty and share possessions equally on a communal basis. This family, recognized as a non-profit religious institution, is tax-exempt.

Original funding came from a modest "stash" contributed by each newcomer and some of this remains on account for land payments. Little additional money is needed, even for food, since U.S. government surplus food programs provide such nourishment as does not come from the garden or forest floor.

The family has found acceptance from the surrounding community. About 50 "straights" threw a housewarming potluck dinner for members of the commune, and many return on Saturdays, the visiting day.

"In suburbia when I was a good neighbor as society defines that," Nancy said, "my neighbors were never good to me. But here, where we all live for (vibrations) the neighbors love God and put out love vibes us."

India To Gain More Laborers

NEW DELHI (AP) — Repatriation of people of Indian origin from Ceylon will help boost production of tea and rubber in India, according to official forecasts.

Under an agreement arrived at between the prime ministers of the two countries in 1964, about 525,000 persons will move into India over the next few years. Ninety per cent of them are plantation laborers.

The Indian government has drawn up plans to convert about 20,000 acres as tea and rubber plantations for the rehabilitation of these displaced persons. These will be in the hilly districts of Madras and Mysore states and in the Andaman group of islands in the Bay of Bengal.
